So What is Financial Literacy?

Financial Literacy is the understanding and effective use of the essential principles to smart personal financial management to address everyday financial decisions in an informed manner, thus empowering people to

- Make better informed and productive everyday money decisions
- Save time and money with their financial advisors and service providers
- Have the best opportunities to reach and maintain their personal / family financial dreams
- Enjoy a financially secure debt free future
- Advance their philanthropy and legacy plans.

Most Americans lack personal finance knowledge for making appropriate financial decisions in the normal course of life. On average, U.S. adults answered 50% of the P-Fin Index questions correctly. In addition, there is essentially a 50/50 split between those who were able to answer one-half of the index questions correctly and those who were not able to do so. - The TIAA Institute-GFLEC Personal Finance Index - https://www.tiaainstitute.org/sites/default/files/presentations/2018-04/TIAA%20Institute\_GFLEC\_P-Fin%20Index\_April%202018.pdf

VERY IMPORTANT MESSAGE

“Basic financial literacy is an essential life skill. Individuals make financial decisions for themselves at all ages: from children deciding how to spend their pocket money to teenagers entering the world of work, from young adults purchasing their first home to older adults managing their retirement savings. Financial literacy helps individuals to navigate these decisions and strengthens their financial well-being. In this spirit, it also promotes inclusive growth and more resilient financial systems and economies.

For the second time, the latest edition of the OECD's Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) – which serves as the world's premier yardstick for evaluating the quality, equity and efficiency of school systems – assessed the financial literacy of 15-year-old students. In particular, it examined their capacity to apply their financial knowledge and skills to real-life situations involving financial issues and decisions.

The results call for greater investments in financial literacy from a young age. Students performing at the highest levels of proficiency in financial literacy are more likely than lower-performing students to be oriented towards saving, to expect to complete a university education, and to work in a high-skilled occupation. This suggests that financially literate students may be better able to recognise the value of investing in their human and financial capital.

But PISA 2015 data show that far too many students around the world are failing to attain a baseline level of proficiency. Even in countries and economies that perform at or above the OECD average – including Australia, Italy, the Netherlands, Poland and the United States – at least one fifth of students perform below the baseline level of proficiency. This means that these students cannot even recognise the value of a simple budget or understand the relationship between how much a vehicle is used and the costs incurred.

There is thus an urgent need for all countries, regardless of their economic and financial development, to improve the financial literacy of their students. While we don't yet have all the answers, the PISA 2015 Financial Literacy Assessment shines the spotlight on a number of important policy considerations.”

Big Social Challenge That Requires Immediate Attention

So many people are on the verge of running out of money prematurely. Many families are burdened with large amounts of student loans and other forms of debt; more than half of our adults in America (120 million – poor to wealthy) do not have an up-to-date financial, estate and gift plans to protect themselves and their families. We have a serious problem. This lack of financial awareness, along with the financial illiteracy epidemic places a HUGE growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits; as well as the ultimate safety net the state and federal government. This is not just a US epidemic it's an international one.

Many people don't realize that

- The majority of the adults in the US that reach the age of 70 are almost out of money, but have life expectancies well into their mid-80's and maybe into their 90's. That's disastrous. Who will be responsible for them? The choices are few, family and friends, employers, nonprofits and people with money, and the government as a final safety net.
- Over 120 million adults, 50% of our adult population (that could be half your family and friends and business associates, and for universities and nonprofits half your potential donors) don't have nor understand the importance of having a current estate & gift plan to protect themselves and their assets and family in the event of sickness or when they pass away. This is a real problem, as most feel they don't have an estate to plan for; this is NOT TRUE. Estate planning is not just for the wealthy or elderly; it's important for everyone. With some advance planning, issues such as managing bill paying and assets in the event of sickness or disability, guardianship of children, care of a special needs child and long-term care needs, and distribution of retirement plan and other assets to the correct person(s) and nonprofit(s) at one's death can all be handled with sensitivity, care, and at a reasonable cost.

- To execute a will and powers of attorney, you must have the legal ability to enter a contract, meaning that in California you must be mentally competent and at least 18 years old.
- As you may know if people don't have an estate plan, their assets may not pass to their desired party, and there is no way for their assets (significant or modest) to get to their favorite charities or causes unless some advance arrangements are made. Asset pass at death by title, beneficiary designation, and if there is no will or trusts via the state laws of intestate succession which by default goes to close, then distant, family; if none exist they then revert to the state of domicile after taxes and costs.
- What could Prince's estate of $300+ million do in the right hands? Music scholarships, teach entrepreneurship, help advance cures for health problems, help feed many, improve financial awareness and financial literacy, etc.

- Too many young people and their families are burdened with excessive education debt and other forms of debt. Student loan debt exceeds $1.3 trillion and is the 2nd largest class of consumer debt after mortgages; members of the class of 2016 graduated with an AVERAGE of $37,000 in student loan debt. Those with graduate degrees are significantly greater.
- The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau released a report last January that examined the link between financial education and financial well-being. A key finding was that while many adults desire to educate themselves to become more financially literate, they often seek out that information only within their social networks. This cuts across all demographics, including education level and income. This is quite alarming: People are making critical life decisions based on information gained from non-experts and fragmented sources.
- We have entered into the greatest wealth transfer in history. An estimated $59 trillion - divided among heirs, charities, estate taxes and estate closing costs expectancies well into their mid-80's and maybe into their 90's. That's disastrous. Who will be responsible for them? The choices are few, family and friends, employers, nonprofits and people with money, and the will be transferred from 116 million American households from 2007 to 2061 as reported by John J. Havens and Paul G. Schervish from the Center on Wealth and Philanthropy Boston College.
- Without some financial and estate planning a significant amount of these assets will be wasted; much of the remaining assets may not go to the right person(s) or organization(s), and or may not be used as intended.
- However, this huge wealth transfer is not for all families, many will
- This is not just a domestic epidemic it is an international one.

Managing personal finances today is more complicated and more important than ever. We're living longer, but saving proportionately less. Scores of us feel less secure in our jobs and homes than we did in the past.

Most people are not taught the essential principle to smart personal financial management at home or in school, thus they don't have the proper tools to address every day financial decisions in an informed manner. This jeopardizes their financial and physical wellness, their ability to realistically achieve and maintain their personal and financial dreams, let alone enjoy a financially secure debt free future.

People need access to better personal financial management tools and information, to communicate and work more effectively with their financial advisors, and to make better every day informed financial decisions.

To learn more about this epidemic review our white paper

We Have a Lack of Financial Awareness & a Financial Illiteracy Epidemic that Requires Immediate Attention

Together we have the potential to advance and contribute to one of the most amazing, broad-based, multifaceted campaigns for improving financial awareness and financial literacy.

The Master Plan and How Everyone Benefits

There is a real solution to this lack of financial awareness and financial literacy epidemic that revolves around better educating the general public, financial service and nonprofit professionals to the essential principles to smart personal financial management – the foundation to personal finance knowledge - while motivating them to take appropriate actions. People need access to better personal financial management tools and information, to communicate and work more effectively with their financial advisors, and to make better every day informed money decisions. We can use your assistance.

You can play an integral role in joining with your colleagues from the financial service, nonprofit, academic communities, employers, government agencies, and the news media in supporting and actively participating in building semiannual financial awareness programs to touch the vast majority of the general public. This can be accomplished with the subtle concentrated personal finance content media blitz around the strategic campaign venues of:

- National Financial Literacy Month (NFLM - April)
- National Estate Planning Awareness Month / Week (NEPAW - 3rd Week in October)

The plan is to touch the majority of the general public, high net worth individuals, financial service and nonprofit professionals and their organizations at least twice a year through these strategic campaign venues, with educational and motivating reminders to get and keep your financial, estate and gift plans in order.

The objective is to encourage you and other financial / nonprofit / education professionals and their organizations, employers, municipalities, and the news media to actively participate in this movement to alert, educate, motivate, and assist everyone to cost effectively establish and keep their estate and financial plans and gifting plans current. 120 million America's-half the adults; rich to poor - don't have plans, that's a lot of quality business for the financial service and nonprofit professionals!

Please join us and other financial service and nonprofit organizations and professional associations such as: the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Society of Attorney-Certified Public Accountants, the American Bar Association, the Association of Fundraising Professionals, the Society of Financial Service Professionals, the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys, National Association of Estate Planners and Councils, the National Association of Charitable Gift Planners, the Financial Planning Association®, and The International Association of Advisors in Philanthropy that have supported National Financial Literacy Month and National Estate Planning Awareness Month/Week.

We understand that this is a massive undertaking. As we move into the 10th year of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement it's being accomplished through leading organizations and their associates that include:

- Financial service associations and their members
- Nonprofit associations and their members
- Financial service professionals and their companies
- Nonprofits / Employers / Technology companies
- Educational institutions
- Government entities
- News media

Together these organizations represent nearly 1,000,000 financial professionals. The accountants, attorneys, estate planners, financial planners and advisors, insurance agents and brokers, trust officers, and nonprofit executive directors and development officers that are members of these organizations are helping to mobilize the financial and estate planning and nonprofit communities by providing support, tools, and education for their professionals and the general public they serve.

Who benefits from this undertaking?

What a great chance for you to create goodwill and new revenue opportunities while performing a very important and valuable community service.

- You benefit by being recognized as a thought leader that is significantly helping to solve a major social problem. This will create goodwill for you and your organization that will attract new patrons, retain existing ones, and build support for your own other initiatives.
- You, your employees, patrons, and prospects benefit by receiving personal financial and estate planning materials to improve their personal financial position and receive a powerful campaign and program to use within your organization to generate new sources of revenues.
- Families benefit by learning the essential fundamentals of smart financial management so they can make better every day informed financial decisions, and have the best possibilities to reach and maintain their personal financial freedom, security and advance their personal philanthropy.
- Financial advisors and their organizations benefit by acquiring new business from more informed and motivated clients.
- Employer benefit from having less stressed and happier more productive employees.
- Nonprofits benefit with increased donations, planned gifts, alternate beneficiary selections and bequests from more informed and motivated donors and volunteers.
- Philanthropists benefit by helping to solve a major social problem that leads to better world.
- Universities benefit by having alumni, faculty and staff who are less stressed, happier and more productive and more philanthropic.
- News media benefits by providing their readers with timely valuable information.
- Municipalities, states, and the federal government benefits by having more productive, happier, and more financially stable constituents; with less demands on their social welfare resources.
- Everyone actually benefits with a stronger and financially sound economy.

Together we have the potential to help solve a this major social challenge by advancing and contributing to one of the most amazing, broad-based, multifaceted moments for improving financial awareness and financial literacy movement while advancing philanthropy.

Ways to Partake in The Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement & Campaigns

Remember the plan is to touch the majority of the general public – poor to rich, financial service and nonprofit professionals and their organizations at least twice a year through these strategic venues, with educational and motivating reminders to get and keep their financial, estate and gift plans in order.

1. Place financial and estate planning editorial content into your website, newsletters, social media groups, your chapters local newspapers, and radio/television/web-based shows and ads, in support of National Financial Literacy Month (April) and National Estate Planning Awareness Month/Week (3rd week in October). If you need some financial and estate planning content contact us.
2. Add the We Support Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Co-Branded Icon to your website with a link to

<http://home.thefinancialawarenessfoundation.org/campaigns.html>

Co-Brand by placing your logo here

Here's a link to download the Foundation graphic

Here's a link to download the Co-Brandable graphic

<http://www.thefinancialawarenessfoundation.org/pdf/Co-brand-IFAFL-BI-Graphic.jpg>

3. Add an "Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Page to your website. This is an excellent opportunity to show your support and to provide your employees, clients, prospects, and members of your community with a great platform to share important financial information.
4. Host and present a 'general public' and a 'professional' national webinar built around built around personal financial and estate planning during the months of April and October. If you need content ideas or a scripted webinar contact us.

5. Provide local seminars and workshops. Encourage your local

- Financial Planning Association Chapter
- Estate Planning Council
- Partnership in Philanthropic Planning Council
- Association of Fundraising Professionals Chapter
- International Association of Advisors in Philanthropy Chapter
- Society of Financial Service Professionals Chapter
- Nonprofits

and their financial professional associates to join in with you to host or take part in community-wide programs built around personal financial and estate planning during the months of April and October in support of improving financial awareness and financial literacy.

6. Circulate financial awareness campaign materials and the Press & Industry Media Kit and Guides to your members, colleagues, associates, and encourage them to support and participate in these important events. These can be found under the Campaign tab on www.TheFinancialAwarenessFoundation.org beneath downloads. We can work with you to customize and co-brand an Improving Financial Awareness & Literacy Campaign Guide & Information Kit to meet your needs.

7. Ask your State Governor and other political contacts to provide supporting proclamations for National Financial Literacy Month April and for Estate Planning Awareness Month in October. Semi-annually contact your state governor and request a supporting proclamation for

- Financial Literacy Month (April)
- Estate & Gift Planning Awareness Month (October)

8. Build and schedule some of your organizations annual marketing, branding, advertising, and social media programs and conferences around these strategic venues for improving financial awareness and financial literacy to take full advantage of the concentrated media blitz on your members, their organization's employees, donors, and prospects.

9. Further possibilities and ideas are provided later in this report.

We hope you will join us in communicating these important opportunities with your colleagues and we look forward to working with you on Estate & Gift Planning Awareness Month and Financial Literacy Month and the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement.

So What is Financial Literacy?

Financial Literacy means possessing the skills and knowledge on financial matters to confidently take effective action that best fulfills an individual's personal, family and global community goals.

- The National Financial Educators Council

Financial literacy is the ability to understand how money works in the world: how someone manages to earn or make it, how that person manages it, how he/she invests it, or how that person donates it to help others.

2. OECD/INFE International Survey of Adult Financial Literacy Competencies

Assessing the levels of financial literacy in the population is a key component of a successful national strategy for financial education, enabling policy makers to identify gaps and design appropriate responses. International comparisons increase the value of such an assessment by allowing countries to benchmark themselves with other countries. Where similar patterns are identified across countries, national authorities can work together to find common methods for improving financial literacy within their respective populations.

Addressing a call by G20 Leaders to develop practical tools for financial literacy measurement, the OECD/INFE has conducted an international data collection exercise to measure financial literacy and financial inclusion. A total of 51,650 adults aged 18 to 79 from 30 countries and economies participated in the survey.

The survey results were released at the Global Symposium on Financial Education in Auckland, New Zealand, on 12 October 2016.

3. PISA 2015 Results – Students’ Financial Literacy Volume IV– May 2017

Basic financial literacy is an essential life skill. Individuals make financial decisions for themselves at all ages: from children deciding how to spend their pocket money to teenagers entering the world of work, from young adults purchasing their first home to older adults managing their retirement savings. Financial literacy helps individuals to navigate these decisions and strengthens their financial well-being. In this spirit, it also promotes inclusive growth and more resilient financial systems and economies.

For the second time, the latest edition of the OECD’s Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) – which serves as the world’s premier yardstick for evaluating the quality, equity and efficiency of school systems – assessed the financial literacy of 15-year-old students. In particular, it examined their capacity to apply their financial knowledge and skills to real-life situations involving financial issues and decisions.

The results call for greater investments in financial literacy from a young age. Students performing at the highest levels of proficiency in financial literacy are more likely than lower-performing students to be oriented towards saving, to expect to complete a university education, and to work in a high-skilled occupation. This suggests that financially literate students may be better able to recognize the value of investing in their human and financial capital.

But PISA 2015 data show that far too many students around the world are failing to attain a baseline level of proficiency. Even in countries and economies that perform at or above the OECD average – including Australia, Italy, the Netherlands, Poland and the United States – at least one fifth of students perform below the baseline level of proficiency. This means that these students cannot even recognize the value of a simple budget or understand the relationship between how much a vehicle is used and the costs incurred.

There is thus an urgent need for all countries, regardless of their economic and financial development, to improve the financial literacy of their students. While we don't yet have all the answers, the PISA 2015 Financial Literacy Assessment shines the spotlight on a number of important policy considerations.

4. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau released a report in January that examined the link between financial education and financial well-being. A key finding was that while many adults desire to educate themselves to become more financially literate, they often seek out that information only within their social networks. This cuts across all demographics, including education level and income. This is quite alarming: People are making critical life decisions based on information gained from non-experts and fragmented sources.

5. State Personal Income

State personal income increased 4.3 percent at an annual rate in the first quarter of 2018, after increasing 4.7 percent in the fourth quarter of 2017, according to estimates released today by the Bureau of Economic Analysis<sup>1</sup> (table 1). Personal income increased in all states and the District of Columbia. The percent change in personal income across all states ranged from 7.4 percent in Washington to 2.0 percent in Idaho.

6. Consumer Financial Literacy Survey

According to the National Foundation for Credit Counseling's (NFCC) 2016 Consumer Financial Literacy Survey, 45 percent of adults gave themselves grades C, D or F with regard to their personal finance knowledge, 26 percent have not saved anything for retirement, 31 percent have no savings other than retirement savings, 60 percent do not have a budget and 22 percent do not pay their bills on time. Such negative financial outcomes and low levels of consumer knowledge and confidence make it crystal clear that financial literacy in America should be a national priority.

Champlain College's Center for Financial Literacy is based in Vermont. We have participated in a variety of state task forces, commissions and boards focused on increasing the financial literacy and capability of Vermonters. Each of these groups started their efforts the same way, by trying to obtain data on how financially literate or capable our adult citizens are and wondering how well they fare compared to our neighboring states or the nation. Although data on these subjects exist in all states, it is often hard to find and is dispersed in reports and websites or gathered by private enterprises for use by paying customers. Organizations that gather data on these subjects often wish that there was a report that collected state-specific data in one place, and that indicated how each state was doing against its peers and the nation.

10. Survey of the States: Economic and Personal Finance Education in Our Nation's Schools - Council for Economic Education

The 2016 Survey of the States shows that there has been slow growth in personal finance education in recent years and no improvement in economic education. 2016 Key Findings

- Since 2014, two additional states include personal finance in their K-12 standards and require those standards to be taught.
- While more states are implementing standards in personal finance, the number of states that require high school students to take a course in personal finance remains unchanged since 2014 – just 17 states.
- Only 20 states require high school students to take a course in economics – that's less than half the country and two fewer states than in 2014.
- There has been no change in the number of states that require standardized testing of economic concepts – the number remains at 16.

11. Financial literacy and financial inclusion in Vietnam: A way back and forth – February 2018 – By GIZ

Financial literacy strategies and programs need to be improved in Vietnam. A survey on financial literacy has just been conducted and its findings need to be shared with the relevant stakeholders. A tailored made financial literacy survey for Vietnam taking into account the distinctive features of the country would be an advantage. There are few programs in place in the public or private sectors regarding financial literacy and a national strategy on financial literacy needs to be developed. Regulators still play a limited role in relation to improving financial literacy

13. Student Debt and the Class of 2016 by The Institute for College Access & Success.

Student Debt and the Class of 2016 is TICAS' twelfth annual report on the student loan debt of recent graduates from four-year colleges, documenting the rise in student loan debt and variation among states as well as colleges. Unless otherwise noted, the figures in this report are only for public and nonprofit colleges, because virtually no for-profit colleges report what their graduates owe.

State averages for debt at graduation ranged from a low of $20,000 (Utah) to a high of $36,350 (New Hampshire), and new graduates' likelihood of having debt varied from 43 percent (Utah) to 77 percent (West Virginia). In 17 states, average debt was more than $30,000. Many of the same states appear at the high and low ends of the spectrum as in previous years. High-debt states remain concentrated in the Northeast and Midwest, and low-debt states are mainly in the West. See page 7 for a complete state-by-state table. At the college level, average debt at graduation covers an enormous range, from $4,600 to $59,100.

14. HIGH-PERFORMANCE TEAMING & PROFESSIONAL COLLABORATION - A MULTI-DISCIPLINARY TEAM APPROACH TO ESTATE PLANNING by NAEPC

Over the past several decades, the estate planning world has become increasingly complex and inter-dependent: Everything any advisor does impacts the work of the remaining team members. The purpose of this white paper, then, is to offer guidance on collaboration-related topics and to encourage the multi-disciplinary professionals who are part of an estate planning team to incorporate collaboration more deliberately into their everyday practice.

15. Bridging the Financial Literacy Gap: Empowering teachers to support the next generation by PWC. This report found

- Many teachers believe financial literacy should start as early as elementary school, but most don't feel comfortable teaching it.
- Four primary barriers exist, according to the report: teachers say they lack appropriate curriculum, qualifications and take-home materials to teach financial literacy, and financial education isn't seen as a critical skill for college and career readiness.
- Millennial teachers are twice as likely to seek funding for missing materials as their more seasoned counterparts.

18. S&P Ratings Services Global Financial Literacy Survey - Financial literacy is a critical barrier to financial and economic participation. Because of a lack of knowledge about finance and financial products, many people – especially the poor and women – are not able to access banking and financial services, and are therefore kept out of financial markets. McGraw Hill Financial (MHFI)’s Corporate Responsibility commitment is to contribute to closing the global financial inclusion gap. We believe that increased financial literacy is linked to financial inclusion, economic opportunity, and the development of stronger capital markets all over the world. MHFI worked with Gallup to create the S&P Ratings Services Global Financial Literacy Survey – one of the most extensive measurements of global financial literacy to date. The survey was based on interviews with more than 150,000 adults across 148 countries. Of the 148 countries targeted for data collection in 2014, 144 countries successfully collected data and met Gallup quality standards.

- 20. The American Community Survey (ACS) is an ongoing survey that provides vital information on a yearly basis about our nation and its people. Information from the survey generates data that help determine how more than $400 billion in federal and state funds are distributed each year. Through the ACS, we know more about jobs and occupations, educational attainment, veterans, whether people own or rent their home, and other topics. Public officials, planners, and entrepreneurs use this information to assess the past and plan the future. When you respond to the ACS, you are doing your part to help your community plan hospitals and schools, support school lunch programs, improve emergency services, build bridges, and inform businesses looking to add jobs and expand to new markets, and more.

- 21. The Millennials, JPMorgan Asset Management makes the argument that not only should people in their twenties save money, but they should be saving 15% of their income if they want to be prepared for everything life will throw at them. And for those who think, "what could possibly happen to me?" the report, provides a rude awakening.

- 22. The Aegon Retirement Readiness Survey revealed only 12% of people around the world say that they are very prepared and already saving enough for their retirement. In fact, 39% don't have a retirement plan at all.

- 23. FINANCIAL LITERACY AMONG THE US. Financial Literacy Among the US: Actual and Further Investigation The lack of financial literacy is an issue that has been affecting the population of the United States. In general terms and as itself suggests, lack of financial literacy is the absence of literacy in personal financial transactions. It is important to highlight that for the purposes of this study, a new definition of financial literacy was developed which was possible because this term does not have an accepted universal definition. The new definition is based in the principles that Huston stated which are: "financial literacy could be conceptualized as having two dimensions -- understanding (personal finance knowledge) and use (personal finance application).

- 26. MasterCard Financial Literacy Index Report (2014H1) The ongoing drive to equip consumers with essential financial skills and inculcate a culture of effective financial learning throughout life is manifested through various financial knowledge enhancement strategies and programs that have been initiated across many countries. Although the issue of financial wellbeing has progressively gained recognition as a vital and important life skill, many are still finding it challenging to deal with financial complexities on a daily basis. This is reflected in MasterCard's latest 2014H1 Financial Literacy Index results which underscore that progress towards improving financial well-being remains stagnant in the majority of markets in Asia Pacific.

- 27. 2018's The Most & Least Financially Literate States in America by John S

Kiernan After the Great Recession, it became clear that more people needed to learn financial literacy. The housing-market collapse and following financial crisis reminded Americans of our obsession with debt and the dangers of quick access to finances for under-informed consumers. But how much have we learned since, and what are we doing to help future generations avoid repeating our mistakes?

Not enough, it would seem. We ended 2017 with $92.2 billion in new credit-card debt, the highest increase since 2007. That's unsurprising, considering that only two in five adults actually have a budget. For the first time ever, total American credit card debt has passed $1 trillion, so it's clear that better financial education is necessary to try to turn this trend around. But the problems aren't as pronounced in every state; some are more responsible than others.

- 28. Report on the Economic Well-Being of U.S. Households in 2015 - May 2017 by The Federal Reserve Board - Overall, the modest improvements in financial wellbeing that were observed in recent years continued into 2016. However, those with more education appear to have driven most of the observed gains in well-being relative to the previous year.

- Seventy percent of adults report that they are either living comfortably or doing okay financially, compared to 69 percent in 2015 and 62 percent when the question was first asked in 2013. However, 30 percent, or approximately 73 million adults, are either finding it difficult to get by or are just getting by financially.

- 29. Financial Capability in the United States 2016 – FINRA Investor Education Foundation – July 2016 - While many Americans are benefiting from the economic recovery of recent years, real median household income is still catching up to its pre-recession level. The 2015 NFCS shows that large segments of society continue to face financial difficulties, particularly minority populations and those without a college education.

30. The Effect of Financial Education on the Quality of Decision Making – August 2016 – By Sandro Ambuehl, B. Douglas Bernheim, and Annamaria Lusardi

WP 2016-2. We introduce a method for measuring the quality of financial decision making built around a notion of financial competence, which gauges the alignment between individuals' choices and those they would make if they properly understood their opportunities. We use it to document the potential pitfalls of the types of brief rhetoric-laden interventions commonly used for adult financial education. Motivational rhetoric can render the effects of such interventions indiscriminate even when people appear to understand and internalize the targeted concepts. Conventional methods of evaluation involving financial literacy, self-reported decision strategies, and directional effects on choices do not reliably detect these deficiencies.

31. The Standard & Poor's Ratings Services Global Financial Literacy Survey –

By Leora Klapper World Bank Development Research Group Annamaria Lusardi The George Washington University School of Business Peter van Oudheusden World Bank Development Research Group – 2015. The Standard & Poor's Ratings Services Global Financial Literacy Survey is the world's largest, most comprehensive global measurement of financial literacy. It probes knowledge of four basic financial concepts: risk diversification, inflation, numeracy, and interest compounding.

The survey is based on interviews with more than 150,000 adults in over 140 countries. In 2014 McGraw Hill Financial worked with Gallup, Inc., the World Bank Development Research Group, and GFLEC on the S&P Global FinLit Survey.

32. The TIAA Institute-GFLEC Personal Finance Index (P-Fin Index) – 2018.

This is an annual barometer of knowledge and understanding which enable sound financial decision making and effective management of personal finances among U.S. adults. It is unique in its capacity to examine financial literacy across eight areas of personal finance in which individuals routinely function. The 2018 data represents the second wave of the P-Fin Index. Most Americans lack personal finance knowledge for making appropriate financial decisions in the normal course of life. On average, U.S. adults answered 50% of the P-Fin Index questions correctly. In addition, there is essentially a 50/50 split between those who were able to answer one-half of the index questions correctly and those who were not able to do so.

STATEMENTS & RELEASES

Presidential Message on National Financial Capability Month

ECONOMY & JOBS | Issued on: March 30, 2018

The foundation of American prosperity is the freedom of financial independence. The inherent right of citizens to determine the best investments for their hard-earned money has spurred entrepreneurship and innovation that makes our country great. Too many hard-working people, however, struggle to invest in their financial independence, despite working long hours at well-paying jobs. Our Nation must endeavor to improve the financial capabilities of our citizenry. During National Financial Capability Month, we affirm the importance of financial literacy and highlight the need for all Americans to plan for their futures.

Across our Nation, millions of Americans are finding more opportunities to invest and save their hard-earned money with help from the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017. This historic law includes the biggest tax cuts and reforms in American history. It cuts taxes by $5.5 trillion over the next decade, providing much needed fuel to boost our economy. Since I signed this legislation into law in December 2017, more than 440 businesses have announced new investments, raises, or bonuses that are benefiting more than 4.5 million American workers.

As our economy continues to thrive, we must also focus on protecting our renewed prosperity by ensuring that all Americans can make informed financial decisions. In order to enhance the financial freedom of our citizens, my Administration is working to improve how Americans learn about evidence-based practices, which they can use to save and grow their earnings. The Department of the Treasury is leading these efforts, through a review of the effectiveness and quality of Federal financial education programs. This includes an assessment of the Financial Literacy and Education Commission, a body made up of representatives from more than 20 Federal agencies. This reform process will allow us to fix or eliminate ineffective programs and build innovative tools that truly empower Americans to make smart financial choices, save for retirement, and build individual wealth.

During National Financial Capability Month, I invite families, communities, schools, employers, and other institutions to join us in empowering Americans of all ages and backgrounds to make informed financial decisions that will lead to an even more prosperous future.

Take the pledge

The Arizona Department of Financial Institutions (AZDFI) is a state agency that regulates and examines a variety of state chartered enterprises and institutions.

AZDFI is committed to promoting financial education. In 2015, Arizona joined 18 other states in adopting April as Financial Literacy Month supporting increased awareness of personal financial education.

We developed this web page for Arizona residents who are looking for information and resources about finances.

Ultimately, financial responsibility means living within your means, regardless of the level of those means. Take a close look at your financial situation, evaluate your earnings and spending habits, and make the necessary adjustments to obtain financial freedom.

AZDFI Financial Literacy Tip Of The Month

Choosing the right home loan is just as important as choosing the right home. Even saving a fraction of a percent on your interest rate can save you thousands of dollars over the life of your mortgage loan. STATE OF ARKANSAS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

PROCLAMATION

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS COME – GREETINGS:

WHEREAS: The world is changing quickly, and the financial world is no exception. Teenagers, college students, young adults, and retirees frequently hold bank and credit union accounts, credit cards, and other financial tools before they are trained how to use them responsibly; and

WHEREAS: All too often, teens begin struggling with mounting financial debt before they are even out of school. When learned early in life, financial literacy can prevent terrible debt problems and provide a strong foundation upon which Arkansans can build their future; and

WHEREAS: Whatever their income level, Arkansans can have a bright future if they take charge of their financial management skills today. Financial education plays a key role in helping our youth mature into responsible adults, and ultimately, lead them to financial freedom; and

WHEREAS: Organizations across this great state work to promote awareness and education on financial management. Their efforts include instruction on development of financial goals and explanation of the benefits of bank or credit union accounts, savings programs, and prudent spending; and

WHEREAS: Having budgeting strategies and a strong grasp of how to avoid credit card debt empowers Arkansans to make sound financial choices for their future financial stability; and

WHEREAS: Throughout the month of April, an awareness campaign will be conducted to highlight the importance of financial literacy, among both young and old, and the need to develop financial capability and capacity;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, ASA HUTCHINSON, Governor of the State of Arkansas, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the laws of the State of Arkansas, do hereby proclaim April 2018, as across the State, and I encourage Arkansans of all ages to learn more about financial strategies and options.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Arkansas to be affixed this 7th day of March, in the year of our Lord 2018.

Financial Literacy Month

California is a dynamic state and draws people from every part of the nation and world. The ability to build a secure future requires access to trustworthy financial services and products. Consumers also need skills to navigate rapidly changing and complex financial systems.

By empowering Californians with the knowledge and tools they need to help them make critical decisions, including financing higher education, buying a home, starting a business and saving for retirement, we are investing in a brighter and more successful future.

April is California Financial Literacy Month. Public, private, academic, and community institutions across the state will work together to reach out to schools, workplaces, and communities and give consumers of all ages resources to build better lives.

During this month, let us all take time to increase our knowledge of our finances and encourage our friends and family to do the same. I encourage Californians to take advantage of the free resources – including seminars and workshops, classroom presentations, online services and educational materials – and learn how to better manage money, investments, credit and debt and avoid financial scams and fraud.

Sincerely,

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

STATEMENT IN OBSERVANCE OF FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH

Whereas, managing personal finances today is more complicated and more important than ever before; and

Whereas, careful financial and estate planning can greatly assist our citizens in accumulating and preserving assets built over a lifetime for the benefit of the family, heirs, or charities; and

Whereas, it is estimated that over 120 million Americans do not have up-to-date estate plans to protect themselves or their families in the event of sickness, accidents, or ultimately death; and

Whereas, a 2004 Roper poll commissioned by the American Institute for Certified Public Accountants found that two-thirds of Americans over age 65 believe they lack the knowledge necessary to adequately plan for retirement, and nearly one half of all Americans are unfamiliar with basic retirement tools, such as 401K plan; and

Whereas, estate planning involves many considerations, include safekeeping of important documents, documentation of assets, operation of law within the various states, preparation of legal instruments, insurance, availability of trust arrangements, charitable giving, and other important factors; and

Whereas, estate planning encourages timely decisions about the method of holding title to certain assets, the designation; and

Whereas, personal financial education is essential to ensure that individuals are prepared to manage money, credit, and debt, and become responsible workers, heads of households, investors, entrepreneurs, business leaders, and citizens.

Now, Therefore, We, John Carney, Governor, and Bethany Hall-Long, Lieutenant Governor, do hereby recognize April 2018 as

The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 12-week training program consisting of 3 sessions per week. The control group performed no training. The results showed that the training group had a significant increase in the weight of the head and neck and in the strength of the neck muscles compared to the control group. The authors concluded that a 12-week training program can improve the strength of the neck muscles and the weight of the head and neck in healthy young men.

DFI Shares Classroom Lessons for Financial Literacy Month
April Activities Include School Presentations and a Train-the-Trainer Workshop

FRANKFORT, Ky. (April 17, 2018) – The Department of Financial Institutions (DFI) is celebrating Financial Literacy Month by sharing resources and lessons with second-grade students in Frankfort, as well as with teachers and extension agents across Kentucky.

Governor Bevin declared April to be Financial Literacy Month to raise public awareness about the importance of financial literacy and the need for financial education.

"Learning financial skills at an early age will help individuals make wise financial decisions throughout their lives," said DFI Commissioner Charles Vice. "The department provides resources to teachers and community members to use in classrooms and workshops statewide to help children as well as all residents of Kentucky."

DFI offers curriculum materials and resources on a variety of financial topics, including saving and investing; avoiding fraud; cybercrime; budgeting; credit; and other topics listed at <http://bit.ly/DFITeacher>.

On Tuesday, a DFI representative will speak with teachers and extension agents at the Kentucky Association of Family and Consumer Sciences (KAFCS) Annual Meeting in Lexington. The presentation, "Financial Literacy Throughout the Year," will highlight some fun "holidays" that lend themselves to a finance lesson focus.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, a DFI representative will speak to nearly 200 students at three Frankfort elementary schools: Westridge, Hearn and Collins Lane. As part of Teach Children to Save Day, DFI joins the Kentucky Jump$tart Coalition to place volunteers in second-grade classrooms to read "Less Than Zero," an engaging story about a penguin that learns to save money. Each participating school receives a book for their library, and students are given a Yesterday, Governor Phil Bryant signed the official proclamation designating April 2018 as Financial Literacy Month for Mississippi. Nationally, the month is an opportunity to promote strong financial education and empower Americans of all ages and income levels to take control of their personal finances. President Trump has issued his annual Presidential Message on National Financial Capability Month, as well.

The text of the Governor's proclamation is as follows:

WHEREAS, the Mississippi Council on Economic Education is dedicated to improving the personal financial literacy of Mississippi youth by promoting the teaching of personal finance concepts using the economic way of thinking in kindergarten through twelfth grade; and

WHEREAS, it is essential that the people of Mississippi be financially literate in order to make informed and responsible decisions regarding money management, saving, investing, finance, credit, and debt; and

WHEREAS, two out of three Mississippians do not have sufficient savings to cover emergencies; and

WHEREAS, 44.2 million Americans owe $1.48 trillion in student loan debt; and

WHEREAS, over half of Mississippi college graduates in 2016 had student loan debt and that average debt was $29,384; and

WHEREAS, 39% of U.S. adults carry credit card debt month-to-month and more than 1 in 4 adults do not save anything saved for retirement; and

WHEREAS, 38% of Mississippians have no savings at all and 56% of residents have less than $1,000 saved; and

WHEREAS, acquisition of financial literacy skills by citizens will improve the quality of their lives, provide them with skills for success, contribute to positive changes in the communities in which they live and work, and benefit the economy of Mississippi; and

WHEREAS, the Treasurer's Education About Money (TEAM) initiative is committed to providing financial education to Mississippi schools at no cost to the school through a public-private partnership powered by EverFi and the Mississippi Council on Economic Education; and

WHEREAS, 30% of 4th-12th graders in Mississippi public schools are using EverFi's online financial literacy curriculum in over 441 Mississippi schools, which is the highest percentage of students enrolled in this curriculum of any state in the nation; and

WHEREAS, the Mississippi Council on Economic Education will host the state Financial Literacy Challenge at Millsaps College in Jackson, Mississippi on Thursday, April 19, 2018, from 9:00 am until 3:00 pm at which the state challenge winners and the state financial literacy student of the year will be named and receive Mississippi Affordable College Savings (MACS) scholarships; and

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Mississippi Council on Economic Education to designate April as "Financial Literacy Month" raising the public's awareness of the need for financial education not only among our youth but all Mississippians and hereby urge all citizens to participate fully in this observance; and

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Phil Bryant, Governor of the State of Mississippi, hereby proclaim April as FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH in the state of Mississippi.

STATE OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

Sound financial management is an important skill for all Texans. Whether we are saving money for a home, a college education or retirement, budgeting and successful financial planning are crucial to reaching our goals.

Through careful money management, Texans of all income brackets can add to their economic security and work toward better quality of life. We can achieve financial stability and independence by establishing realistic and comprehensive plans that identify financial weaknesses and build on financial strengths.

Each year, the month of April is dedicated to promoting the importance of financial literacy.

At this time, I encourage all Texans to recognize the importance of saving, investing and having clear financial goals. Through the application of sound financial planning principles, we can live well now and in the future.

Therefore, I, Greg Abbott, Governor of Texas, do hereby proclaim April 2018 to be in Texas, and urge the appropriate recognition whereof.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this the 20th day of March, 2018.

Financial illiteracy is a huge problem in the U.S. Americans spend $1.22 for every $1.00 earned. In response, the AICPA, with the support of the state CPA societies, developed the award-winning 360 Degrees of Financial Literacy program.

What is 360 Degrees of Financial Literacy?
360 Degrees of Financial Literacy is a multi-faceted effort, spearheaded by the AICPA, with the support of state CPA societies. The program encourages CPAs to take a broad leadership role in volunteering to educate the American public, from school children to retirees, on financial topics that apply specifically to their particular stage of life. Throughout the country thousands of CPAs are volunteering in their own communities to improve the nation's financial literacy. For more information, email financialliteracy@aicpa.org

360 Degrees of Financial Literacy Consumer Web site
At the AICPA's financial literacy Web site, consumers can find information to help them make sound financial decisions at every stage of their lives, from childhood to retirement.

CPA Financial Literacy Resource Center
CPAs and the state CPA societies can find information to use in educating consumers at a new online resource center. It features a free CPE course and toolkits created by the AICPA and the California Society of CPAs that are tailored to each life stage and include a PowerPoint presentation and fact sheets.

Financial Literacy Volunteer Database
By registering, CPAs can make their interests known to volunteer on either the state or national level and also keep apprised of the latest developments in the 360 Degrees of Financial Literacy effort. Registered CPAs receive a newsletter, invitations to financial literacy conference calls and access to resources to use in volunteer efforts.

National Public Service Advertisement Campaign with the Ad Council
The AICPA and the Ad Council have signed an agreement to launch a national public service advertisement campaign on financial literacy. The effort will target 24 – 35 year olds and focus on helping Americans positively change money management habits. The PSAs will lead consumers to the AICPA's financial literacy resources and Web site.

Certificate for Volunteer Financial Literacy Service
To qualify for the certificate, a CPA must be either a member of the AICPA and a state CPA society and have five volunteer financial literacy occurrences (e.g., present a speech at a local community group, hold a brown bag luncheon session at a firm, author an article in local newspaper, etc.) or perform seven or more hours of volunteer service leading or presenting financial literacy programs or serving as a leader of an AICPA or state society committee/group/task force whose main focus is on financial literacy.

Please join PGDC as we partner with The Financial Awareness Foundation and other leading financial service and nonprofit associations, their professionals and companies, nonprofits, educational institutions, larger employers, membership based organizations, technology companies, government agencies, and the news media in celebrating, supporting and participating in the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement with its concentrated personal finance content media blitz built around the strategic venues of:

- 14th anniversary of National Financial Literacy Month (NFLM-April) next April
- 10th anniversary of National Estate Planning Awareness Month / Week (NEPAW-3rd week in October)

With so many people on the path to or verge of running out of money before their life expectancy, many families burdened with large amounts of student loans and other forms of growing debt, and more than half of our adults (120 million) not having nor understand why they need an up-to-date estate and financial plans to protect themselves and their families, we have a serious problem. This lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy epidemic places a HUGE growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits; as well as the ultimate safety net – the state and federal government. This is not just a domestic epidemic it is an international one.

The goals are to encourage you to actively participate and support this very important movement to alert, educate, motivate, and assist the general public to cost effectively establish and keep their financial and estate plans and gifting plans current. This is such a great opportunity to "do good" for the general public, generate new revenue opportunities for you, and help produce needed gifts and bequests for nonprofits.

We understand that this is a massive undertaking; but as we move into the 10th year of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement it's being accomplished through thought leading financial service and nonprofit organizations and their professionals, educational institutions, municipalities, employers, the news media, and other concerned organizations and individuals. Below is a link to the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement Report & Magazine™. This provides a broad picture of the lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy epidemic, an overview of the strategy behind the movement and campaigns, and a sampling of the community participation, including supporting 22 Governor's Proclamations, expanded Educational Initiatives, an International Section, and so much more.

April is Financial Literacy Month!

Dear Tribal and Native Leaders:

April is Financial Literacy Month!

Increased financial capability in Native communities is critical for a better future. When Native individuals, families, businesses, and tribes make better financial decisions, it benefits all of us and helps strengthen our economies. Recent large financial settlements, transfer and per capita payments, and increasing tribal and individual businesses mean we must focus our efforts to build financial capability in our youth and young adults, returning veterans, elders, and all tribal citizens.

The Native Financial Education Coalition (NFEC) is an alliance of tribes, Native organizations, federal government agencies, private financial institutions, Congressional policymakers, and others committed to improving financial capability in Native communities. We invite you to join NFEC in recognizing April as National Financial Literacy Month, as designated by Congress in 2004.

NFEC is pleased to provide this toolkit of resources to help you highlight the importance of financial education in April – and beyond. Please use these materials as needed and adapt for your specific needs:

- ▶ Talking Points and Key Messages about Financial Education
- ▶ Tips for Building Financial Empowerment
- ▶ Possible Activities for Financial Literacy Month
- ▶ Facts for Financial Education

Tribal and community leaders can join governors, mayors and other government leaders in issuing proclamations or passing resolutions, and in holding special events and activities, all to recognize financial education's importance. Research shows that Native American youth are less prepared to make informed financial choices than most of their peers, with financial literacy scores consistently among the worst. With 42 percent of the American Indian and Alaska Native population younger than age 25, it is imperative that we empower our young people to better navigate financial decisions, both as individual citizens and as future leaders of our nations.

Please join us, starting with using National Financial Literacy Month, to show your community the importance of financial education. Find the toolkit at www.ncai.org/initiatives/nativefinancial-ed/nfec. For more information, contact nfec@ncai.org or Sherry Salway Black at sblack@ncai.org. And please share with us your success. We would love to hear what actions you take to strengthen your community's financial capability.

SEC Promotes Investor Awareness During National Financial Capability Month

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Washington D.C., April 3, 2018 — As part of National Financial Capability Month, the Securities and Exchange Commission's Office of Investor Education and Advocacy (OIEA) is encouraging investors to go to Investor.gov to learn about the importance of saving and investing early, and to check out their investment professional before investing. Investor.gov also provides investors with free financial planning tools such as a compound interest calculator, information on investment products, risks and fees, as well as alerts on recent investment scams and bulletins on various securities topics.

In support of National Financial Capability Month, which was designated this year by presidential message, OIEA staff will participate in education programs and activities with military service members, students, seniors and the general public throughout the month of April in an effort to enhance Americans' understanding of financial principles and practices. The office's public service announcements and additional investment resources are available online at Investor.gov.

"Education is a critical part of our efforts to empower investors to make informed investment decisions, not only during National Financial Capability Month, but every day throughout the year," said SEC Chairman Jay Clayton. "Learning how to invest wisely and be alert to risks can help all Americans reach their financial goals."

"National Financial Capability Month brings increased focus on the importance of financial literacy and provides an opportunity to remind investors of the work they must do to help themselves make smart investment decisions," said Lori J. Schock, Director of the SEC's Office of Investor Education and Advocacy.

Among the themes the SEC's investor education office will convey to investors this month:

- Learn About the Importance of Saving and Investing Early – Learn about the effect of compounding over time on your initial investment.
- Check Out Your Financial Professional on Investor.gov – Use free resources that are available to check the backgrounds of investment professionals before investing. Learn some top tips for selecting a financial professional.
- Research and Understand Investment Products Before Making a Decision – Understand the basics of investing and how to research public companies before making an investment. Learn about things to consider before investing in an IPO. Learn more about risks involved with fixed-income investments or municipal bonds.
- Take Full Advantage of Company Matching – An easy way to boost your retirement savings is to take full advantage of the "free money" many employer-sponsored retirement plans offer.
- Understand Investment Fees and Their Impact on Returns – Fees and expenses can have a real effect on your investments, including mutual funds and ETFs, variable annuities, and 529 college savings plans.
- Beware of the Red Flags of Investment Fraud – Be alert that claims of high returns with little to no risk are a common red flag for potential investment fraud. Learn more about how to avoid investment scams, take steps to protect your online investment accounts from fraud and look out for potential scams involving public companies making ICO-related claims.

For Immediate Release

GOVERNOR OTTER PROCLAIMS APRIL "FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH"

Boise, Idaho . . . Governor C.L. "Butch" Otter has signed a proclamation establishing April as "Financial Literacy Month" in Idaho, noting that, "The quality of every Idahoan's life is dramatically affected by how you manage your money. Education is a key to providing Idahoans the tools to achieve a better financial life. I encourage every Idahoan to take advantage of the great free resources available during the month to learn about the wise use of credit, the basics of saving and investing, home ownership preservation, and the pitfalls associated with financial fraud."

The Idaho Department of Finance, the Idaho Financial Literacy Coalition (IFLC) (www.idahoflc.org) – an affiliate of the JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy – the Idaho Military Financial Alliance, and Idaho Public Libraries have joined together to sponsor "Financial Literacy Month" in April. The IFLC is a partnership of private- and public-sector financial educators. The Department of Finance participates year-round in IFLC efforts and is proud to take part in this opportunity to draw attention to the need for all Idahoans to learn money management skills.

A proclamation ceremony with Governor Otter and members of the Idaho Financial Literacy Coalition is planned for April 12 at the Idaho State Capitol. The ceremony will kick off Financial Literacy Month and will include a presentation of awards to students who have won in selected categories of the Piggy Bank Beauty Contest.

The IFLC membership organizes Idaho's annual "Piggy Bank Beauty Contest." This year's winners were chosen by IFLC members during their annual meeting in March. Contest participants, currently in third through sixth grades, created their own banks and entered them in one of the four contest categories: prettiest, celebrity look-alike, funniest, and most creative. Each winner of the four categories will receive $75 to fund an IDeal-Idaho 529 College Savings Program account. Winners, their parents and teachers are invited to the annual Financial Literacy Month proclamation celebration at the Governor's office.

Along with a variety of non-profit entities and government agencies, the Department of Finance, as a member of the Idaho Scam Jam Alliance, will co-sponsor two Scam Jams on May 14 and 15, 2018, in Idaho Falls and Pocatello. The Scam Jam events are free, open to the public and will begin at 10 a.m. and end at 3 p.m. Registration opens at 9:30 a.m. The keynote speakers for both of these events will be Charles A. Harwood, Northwest Region director for the Federal Trade Commission. Sponsors will have breakout sessions, and the department will have presentations on the red flags of investment scams.

April is National Financial Literacy Month—Ways to Educate Donors About Financial and Charitable Planning

March 21, 2018

April 2018 is the 14th anniversary of National Financial Literacy Month and an important opportunity for all charities to help educate donors about financial challenges and how planning—and including philanthropy in your planning—can help overcome those challenges.

Many Americans are on the verge of running out of money before their life expectancy, while many families are burdened with large amounts of student loans and other forms of debt, and more than half of adults don't have updated—or any at all—estate and financial plans to protect themselves and their families.

This lack of financial awareness and financial literacy places a growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits and the government.

- The majority of the adults in the U.S. that reach the age of 70 are almost out of money, but have life expectancies well into their mid-80's and maybe into their 90's.
- Over 120 million adults, 50% of our adult population don't have a current estate plan to protect themselves and their assets in the event of sickness or when they pass away. And most don't feel they have an estate to plan for, even though planning is important for everyone.
- Too many young people and their families are burdened with excessive education loans and other forms of debt.
- The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau released a report in January that examined the link between financial education and financial well-being. A key finding was that while many adults desire to educate themselves to become more financially literate, they often seek out that information only within their social networks. People are making critical life decisions based on information gained from non-experts and fragmented sources.

The Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement, led by The Financial Awareness Foundation, is working to increase public education about planning. The National Financial Literacy Month is a key part of the campaign, and there are several activities that charities can undertake to help educate their donors about financial planning.

- Place financial and estate planning editorial content within your websites, newsletters, social media groups and other appropriate outlets. Content, including several template articles, is available at The Financial Awareness Foundation webpage, under the Campaign tab.
- Add the "We Support Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy" icon to your website with a link to: <http://home.thefinancialawarenessfoundation.org/campaigns.html>. You can download the icon here.
- Add an "Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Page" to your website, newspaper, and magazine. This is an excellent opportunity to show your support and to provide your employees, clients, prospects, and members of your community with a great platform to share important financial information.
- Initiate local community-wide seminars (similar to job fairs) that focus on improving financial awareness and financial literacy.
- Encourage groups to host or take part national webinars built around estate and financial planning during the months of April and October. Information about these events can be found on the Foundation website.
- Circulating financial awareness campaign materials and the Press & Industry Media Kits and Guides found at The Financial Awareness Foundation website to your members, colleagues, associates, and encouraging them to support and participate.

Press Release: CGP Partners to Promote Financial Literacy Month in April

Monday, April 3, 2018

For Immediate Release
For more information, please contact:

CGP Partners with the Financial Awareness Foundation for Financial Literacy Month

Indianapolis, IN: CGP is partnering with the Financial Awareness Foundation for the 14th annual Financial Literacy Month to bring attention to the growing lack of financial awareness and financial literacy.

The Financial Awareness Foundation through its promotion of National Financial Awareness Month seeks to increase the number of American households with adequate financial and estate planning to better secure their financial future. Across all professions, (including charitable gift planning), the rate of individuals without estate plans is staggering. Over 120 million adults, 50% of our adult population don't have nor understand the importance of having a financial, estate and gift plan to protect themselves, their assets and family in the event of sickness or when they pass away.

Financial and estate planning is not just for the wealthy. It's important for everyone. With so many people on the verge of running out of money before their life expectancy, people need access to better personal financial management tools and information, to communicate and work more effectively with their financial advisors and to make better informed every day money decisions.

Financial Literacy Month efforts strive to mitigate the lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy epidemic. Led by The Financial Awareness Foundation, we have the potential to help solve a major social challenge by advancing and contributing to a broad-based, multifaceted movement for improving financial awareness and financial literacy while advancing philanthropy.

There are several activities that organization can do to participate:

1. Place financial and estate planning editorial content into your website, newsletters, social media groups, local newspapers, and radio/television/web-based shows and ads, in support of National Financial Literacy Month and National Estate Planning Awareness Week.
2. Add the "We Support Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Icon" to your website with this link.
3. Add an "Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Page" to your website, newsletter, and magazine. This is an excellent opportunity to show your support and to provide your employees, clients, prospects, and members of your community with a great platform to share important financial information.
4. Initiating local community-wide seminars (similar to job fairs) that focus on improving financial awareness and financial literacy.
5. Encouraging groups to host or take part in national webinars built around estate and financial planning during the months of April and October.
6. Circulating financial awareness campaign materials and the Press & Industry Media Kits and Guides found here to your members, colleagues, associates, and encouraging them to support and participate.

Helping to Improve Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy

Posted by Valentino Sabuco, CFP®, AEP® on Apr 18, 2018 7:30:00 AM

The Challenge

Managing personal finances today is more complicated, time consuming, and more important than ever. We are living longer, but saving proportionately less. We feel less secure in our jobs, homes, and overall outlooks than previous generations did. We watch, helplessly, as our money evaporates due to exorbitant costs of housing, taxes, education, health care and life's too many "unexpecteds." Many people worry about the future, or unfortunately in many cases, they simply try not to think about it. Until "it" happens – a financial catastrophe that could have been avoided by some advanced planning.

Most people are not taught the essential principle to smart personal financial management – the foundation to personal finance knowledge – at home or in school, thus they don't have the proper tools to address every day money decisions in an informed manner. This jeopardizes their financial and physical wellness, their ability to realistically achieve and maintain their personal and financial dreams and enjoy a financially secure debt free future.

Our research tells us that young people, middle aged and older people know they need 'financial knowledge' but are not sure what it is. We strongly believe that most people have not been provided with the 'foundation to financial knowledge' we call the essential principles to smart personal financial management. Without this empowerment people do not have the critical tools to make informed everyday money decisions throughout their lives.

This is a large part of the reason why many people and families are:

- On the verge of running out of money prematurely
- Burdened with large amounts of student loans and other forms of debt
- And more than half of our adults in America (120 million – poor to wealthy) do not have nor understand the importance of having an up-to-date financial, estate and gift plans to protect themselves and their families

The lack of financial awareness, along with the financial illiteracy epidemic places a HUGE growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, and even nonprofits.

What We're Doing

The Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement is a broad based media and education initiative built on the strategic campaign venues of National Financial Literacy (April) and National Estate Planning Awareness Month/Week (third week in October).

The plan is to touch the majority of the general public – rich to poor, at least twice a year through these strategic campaign venues, with educational and motivating reminders to get and keep their financial, estate and gift plans in order.

We understand that this is a massive undertaking; but as we move into the 10th year of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement it's being accomplished through thought leading financial service, nonprofit, and charitable gift planning organizations and their professionals, educational institutions, municipalities, employers, the news media, and other concerned organizations and individuals.

For further information, access the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement Report & Magazine here. This report provides a broad picture of the lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy epidemic, an overview of the strategy behind the movement and campaigns, and a sampling of community participation.

The National Association of Charitable Gift Planners (CGP) partners with the Financial Awareness Foundation for Financial Literacy Month with efforts to bring attention to the growing lack of financial awareness and financial literacy throughout the month of April. ## Spirit of Banking

Celebrating Financial Literacy Month

In honor of Financial Literacy Month, ABA Foundation participated in financial education events throughout April bringing Teach Children to Save to Financial Literacy on the Hill day and into classrooms from Baltimore to Washington, D.C. ABA President and CEO Rob Nichols joined in the fun by presenting to fifth and sixth graders in Washington, D.C., on April 17. ABA staff volunteers also participated, recognizing the official day on April 20, where they visited 2nd-5th grade students at a local elementary school.

Tell Us About Your Volunteer Experience

Thank you to all the bankers who helped make this year's Teach Children to Save a success. More than 554 banks across the country have given more than 14,328 presentations to more than 451,896 students this year alone—with new bankers continuing to register each day! We need your insight to make your next financial education experience even more successful, and are inviting banker volunteers and the educators you work with to complete a brief survey. Registered 2018 TCTS participants can find the survey links on the private resource page. All other banker volunteers can still register for TCTS to access the survey. As a thank you, we will randomly award 50 survey respondents with a $50 Amazon gift card. Surveys must be completed by June 1.

Celebrate Older Americans Month

May is Older Americans Month and the ABA Foundation has everything you need to make presentations using the Safe Banking for Seniors curriculum or plan a financial education program for seniors using the Protecting the Financial Security of Older Americans Toolbox. The latest resource, FinEdLink, is an online portal that allows senior-focused community organizations or agencies seeking a banker-led presentation on elder financial abuse to connect directly with banks. It's a simple way to spread the Safe Banking for Seniors message to key audiences in your community. To learn more about how to register for Safe Banking for Seniors and how to utilize the FinEdLink tool, visit aba.com/Seniors.

Mark Your Calendar! Community Commitment Awards Call for Entries

The ABA Foundation Community Commitment Awards recognizes and promotes the many valuable ways banks of all sizes and charters contribute to economic growth and community development, as well as enhancing quality of life. Each year—during ABA Annual Convention—we proudly honor winners in seven award categories. Every bank that submits an entry will have an opportunity to showcase their program on the Banks in Their Communities interactive map. Tell us how your bank is committed to strengthening the communities in which it serves—you may be the next winner! Visit aba.com/Awards. Entry period opens May 1.

Financial Awareness Foundation

Background

As a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, the Financial Awareness Foundation was established to significantly improve financial awareness and financial literacy.

The Foundation serves as a nonpolitical "financial awareness advocate" for the general public, the financial service and nonprofit professionals and their organizations, educational institutions, employers, and municipalities.

MISSION:

Our mission is to significantly help solve a major social problem dealing with the lack of financial awareness and financial literacy. We believe that teaching financial literacy and the essential principles of smart financial management are very important. This gives people the tools to address everyday financial decisions in a more informed manner and have the best possibilities to reach and maintain their personal and family financial goals, financial freedom and security, while advancing their philanthropy.

CORE VALUES:

Public Service – Serve as a nonpolitical "financial awareness advocate" to the general public providing them with the financial principles so they can make better every day financial decisions throughout their lives.

Knowledge – Encourage and support financial education to improve financial awareness and financial literacy.

Collaboration – Recognize, promote, and unite the lead financial service and nonprofit associations/organizations that are championing improving financial awareness and financial literacy with other associations, organizations, nonprofits, educational institutions, companies, firms, and individual efforts.

Diversity – Promote cultural diversity within the financial services professions to better serve a diversified public.

Ethics – Encourage ethical behavior within financial service professions, nonprofits, and the business world.

Leadership Role
We are taking an active leadership role to recognize the organizations and their professionals that are championing improving financial awareness and financial literacy. We are then uniting them with other associations, organizations, nonprofits, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers to actively focus their vast community resources into a growing concentrated personal finance content media blitz campaign every six months through the strategic venues of:

Financial Literacy Month

The United States has recognized April as Financial Literacy Month since 2003, and CEE conducts a full roster of events throughout the month to shine a spotlight on the importance of economic and financial education. Our nationwide efforts produce tangible results, including teachers trained in our professional development workshops, an increase in free resources offered, and press coverage. If you're a parent, student, educator, or active citizen who would like to engage policymakers in your state or town, please visit our Policy & Advocacy page for information and guidance on how you can get involved!

CEE Launches #MySavingsStory Campaign to Celebrate Financial Literacy Month

CEE celebrates Financial Literacy Month with Rosie Pope, Elie Tahari and Noelle Scaggs and more.

CEE is thrilled to announce the launch of the #MySavingsStory Video Campaign to inform and inspire kids to understand and take control of their financial lives. We've enlisted fashion designer Elie Tahari, best-selling author of Diary of a Wimpy Kid, Jeff Kinney, entrepreneur Rosie Pope, and others to share, via videos, what they've learned about the importance of financial literacy and saving.

Visit our blog to find the names of those involved and dates when their videos will be released throughout Financial Literacy Month.

And, make sure to check our Facebook page to watch their #MySavingsStory videos and hear their personal finance stories and savings advice firsthand!

Students Explain the Importance of Financial Literacy

CEE asked elementary, middle, and high school students to explain the difference that understanding economics and personal finance can make in their lives. Here's what they had to say!

Financial Literacy Month—2 Easy Ways to Participate

Community Credit Finances Life

April is Financial Literacy Month and Mountain America Credit Union wants you to get involved! To make it easier, we've come up with two simple ways to participate—one that will help you better your own finances and one that will help you help others.

Learn more about a financial topic. Most people could use more information as they make financial decisions. Whether it's credit, investing, mortgages, insurance, retirement or something completely different, commit to learning as much as you can about a particular financial topic by month's end.

Take a class, surf the web, read a book, listen to a podcast—there are so many ways to learn!

Share your knowledge with your family. Bringing up money can be awkward—and sometimes scary! Use the fact that it's Financial Literacy Month as the starting point for conversation. If you do your homework and keep it simple, it can open a dialogue. Talk with your parents about their financial plans or ask them how they are preparing for retirement. Sit down with your spouse to discuss your current financial situation and future goals. A quick chat with your kids about basic money topics can also be beneficial. Explain how credit works or how to start investing. Make it fun!

Make a difference in your financial life (and others') by keeping finances the subject of ongoing conversation. Mountain America is committed to educating our members and the communities we serve about financial matters. Visit our Financial Pathways Learning Center for tools, seminars, articles and more—designed to keep you informed and guide you forward to achieving your financial dreams!

April Is Financial Literacy Month – Why Financial Wellness Matters

Mark Avallone

RideShots/Wel

April is Financial Literacy Month and a great time to focus on financial education. A lack of financial preparedness has huge societal costs, and in the coming years as Americans age, these costs will likely increase. There are daunting challenges facing not only the poor but also the working middle class. In the face of flat real wages, structural unemployment, a high tax burden, and higher health-care costs, it is becoming more difficult for millions of Americans to find extra income to save at the end of the month. In addition, many don't understand the enormous commitment a self-financed retirement entails.

This is a complex problem. According to a recent survey, over 50% of Americans have less than $1,000 in savings. To combat this, our country needs a combination of things that will alert citizens to the financial reality they are facing. To start, workers need skill sets that keep pace with a rapidly changing world and wages that at least track inflation and rise with productivity gains. Workers need to be educated on the importance of regular savings especially with the rapid decline of pensions.

There also needs to be a deeper understanding that everyone is responsible for their own financial freedom and how challenging that is to attain. To accomplish this, we need to educate on the importance of starting early. For example, young workers will need to save close to $1,000 per month to remain in the middle class; $925 per month for 30 years at 8% grows to $1.26 million, but that amount saved for 20 years only grows to about $508,000. Young people are often surprised to learn that the few hundred dollars they're saving each month may not be enough to retire into a middle-class lifestyle.

As a nation, we need an environment where a business can thrive and where sponsoring a retirement savings plan for employees doesn't lead to sizable amounts of paperwork, time, cost, and risk. We need a smart, pro-growth regulatory environment that protects workers and consumers, but also allows for strong economic growth so our workers earn sufficient wages. Historically, each generation of Americans has worked for a chance to achieve a better lifestyle and we need this dream to continue. People would be wise not to look to the government for middle-class financial freedom. We have seen the failure of governments that promise a workers paradise complete with middle-class wealth. This is, after all, an impossible task for any nation to finance—especially one already $21 trillion in debt. With this realization, we should arm ourselves with the knowledge and tools to begin our own journey towards financial freedom.

Governors Sign Proclamations Declaring April Financial Literacy Month

Wednesday, April 4, 2018 9:20 AM

Happy National Financial Literacy Month!

"There is a tremendous need for financial education, and National Financial Literacy Month is an excellent opportunity to increase awareness and inspire consumers to make a change," says Cornerstone Credit Union Foundation Financial Capability Director Paula Upchurch. "Not having the necessary financial knowledge and skills can prevent consumers from ever realizing their true financial capability."

As champions of improving financial capability, credit unions continue to make great strides in deploying financial education into their local schools and communities. During the month of April, credit unions across the Cornerstone region are hosting financial education workshops and classes, lunch-and-learns, and reality fairs.

"We are also very excited that the governors of Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas have all signed proclamations declaring April as Financial Literacy Month," notes Courtney Moran, executive director of the Cornerstone Credit Union Foundation. "In all three proclamations, the governors acknowledge the important role financial education plays in helping consumers make more responsible financial choices."

The Cornerstone Credit Union Foundation would like to encourage your credit union to participate this month. Americans spend months getting their physical health into shape as part of their New Year's resolutions. National Financial Literacy Month is dedicated to helping members get their financial health in shape.

To learn more about other financial capability and to view all three proclamations, please visit the Cornerstone Foundation's website or contact our staff at 800-953-8283.

NATIONAL FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH

National Financial Literacy Month is recognized in the month of April in the United States in an effort to highlight the importance of financial literacy and teach Americans to establish and maintain healthy financial habits.

In 2000, the Jump$tart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy began promoting April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month. In 2003, the United States Senate designated April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month. In March 2014, the Senate passed Resolution 316 that officially recognized April as National Financial Literacy Month, for all ages.

Governor's Asa Hutchinson, Mary Fallin and Greg Abbott proclaimed April 2018 to be Financial Literacy Month in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Click to view the proclamations: Arkansas, Texas, and Oklahoma.

Many credit unions, partner organizations, and school systems promote the month by holding promotional events and offering additional educational opportunities.

"FINANCIAL FITNESS DAY"

The Cornerstone Credit Union Foundation, in partnership with the National Credit Union Foundation, presents "Financial Fitness Day," a fundraising and awareness campaign taking place April 4, 2018. Americans spend months getting their physical health into shape as part of their New Year's resolutions. Kicking off National Financial Literacy Month, Financial Fitness Day is dedicated to helping members get their financial health in shape.

It's easy to participate. Just hold one or more of the following at your organization on Financial Fitness Day, April 4 (or any day during April Financial Literacy Month):

- Jeans or Casual Day for staff
- Bake Sale for staff and/or members
- Deduct or Donate a Buck - Ask staff and/or members to consider a voluntary contribution of $1 or more, either in cash as they complete their transaction and/or deducting from their checking or saving account as often as they choose.

By participating, you'll be raising funds for the Cornerstone CU Foundation and National CU Foundation in support of their critical financial education initiatives, as well as raising awareness to the importance of financial education. For more information, please contact Foundation staff at 800.953.8283.

Rock band Gooding brings financial education to fans

Rock band Gooding hits schools to talk finances

After making "a lot of mistakes" with his own with finances, Steven Gooding decided to help others avoid them.

Now the Ypsilanti-born singer-guitarist is using his band, Gooding, to encourage financial literacy and rock the house when it plays.

Teaming with Operation Hope and sponsored by Raymond James, Gooding — which begins a 14-stop Michigan run this week — blends its regular itinerary of concerts with shows for students, primarily in high school, during which all four band members encourage their audiences to understand personal finance.

Let financial planning make your difference

In support of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement built around National Financial Literacy Month (April) and six months later during National Estate Planning Awareness Month/Week (3rd week in October) the following financial planning article contains a very important message.

Unless you are lucky enough to win the lottery or receive a substantial inheritance, very few people can really attain and maintain financial security without forethought and a strategy—a financial plan.

The beginning of the year is always an excellent time to review and update your existing financial plans or start the process if you haven't done so yet.

The process of financial planning doesn't have to be intimidating or a difficult task. In simple terms, a financial plan is whatever strategy you set up for yourself and your family to meet your financial goals, needs, and obligations.

The most successful financial plans are personal in nature. They're based on your own goals, values and lifestyle choices; they even reflect your personality.

Are you aggressive by nature, or are you a risk avoider?

Would you rather own stocks and bonds, than leveraged real estate or fine art? Do you like to rely on professional advisers or talk with a lot of people before making a decision, or do you prefer to do your own investigation and come to your own conclusions?

It's important that you understand the steps you'll need to take in putting together a winning strategy to reach and maintain your financial objectives, regardless of your goals or personality.

The subject matter of financial planning is very broad, and its areas of expertise overlap. Accountants, attorneys, bankers, financial planners, insurance agents, investment advisers, realtors, stock brokers, trust officers and others can act as financial advisers and planners. Each of them emphasizes a different aspect of your financial life. This is another reason financial plans can take many different forms.

Once you've defined your personal and financial goals, there are six major areas of personal finance that should be addressed in your planning:

- ☐ 1. Financial Independence & Retirement
- ☐ 2. Major Expenditures
- ☐ 3. Investments
- ☐ 4. Taxes
- ☐ 5. Insurance
- ☐ 6. Estate Planning

WHY DEVELOP A FINANCIAL PLAN?

The economics of living today's are more complicated than in previous generations. The uncertainties of the job market, the lack of company sponsored retirement plans, the rising housing costs as well as college education, questions about the future of Social Security and other government programs, and the need to support yourself over a longer life span are real concerns.

Developing a comprehensive financial plan will address your financial situation now while giving you a real sense of security for the future. It will also help you:

Determine what has to be done and achieved to realistically meet your financial goals.

Save time and money when working with financial advisers.

Recognize bad advice and avoid financial pitfalls.

You don't need to become a financial expert to create and carry out a solid financial plan. You do need to develop the assertiveness to ask questions and the willingness to listen until you understand the answers. And you must make the commitment to take appropriate timely actions.

DON'T DELAY YOUR PLANNING

The need for financial planning is obvious, so why do so few people do it? Here are a few reasons:

- ☐ Unorganized finances
- ☐ Lack of financial knowledge
- ☐ Too much information and no system to process it
- ☐ Not enough time
- ☐ Procrastination
- ☐ Lack of goals as a motivating force

SIX EASY STEPS TO YOUR FINANCIAL PLANNING

Comprehensive personal financial planning can seem complex and confusing, and if you don't know how to sort it all out, you may not even try. Armed with a systematic approach for addressing your planning, you'll be in the best position to progress

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"Planning is bringing the future into the present so that you can do something about it now."

toward meeting your goals.

First, you need to do some serious (and playful) thinking about your goals, both personal and financial.

Next, to simplify and clarify the process, use the following six-step system for analyzing and planning each area of your financial life. This approach will guide you in a logical progression toward establishing, understanding and meeting your goals:

Step 1. Define Your Goals: State your financial goals in writing as concisely and specifically as you can.

Step 2. Gather & Organize Your Data: Make sure your financial information is organized so that your current financial position is clear. If you've been working through the previous features in this series, you've already done this (refer to your Net Worth Statement and Cash Flow Planner). If not, do so as you address each of the six areas of personal finance.

Step 3. Analyze Your Situation: Look at your current financial position. Are you meeting your goals, or are you falling short?

Step 4. Develop Your Strategies: Identify plans that will help you achieve your goals in the most efficient manner.

Step 5. Implement Your Plan: This is your action step. Take definitive measures to achieve and maintain your goals.

Step 6. Track & Monitor Your Progress: Check your progress on a monthly, quarterly, semi-annual or annual basis, depending on which of the areas of your personal finances you are addressing.

Using this six-step approach to financial planning gives you a systematic process to effectively address your personal finances.

CHECKLIST FOR AVOIDING PROCRASTINATION

Procrastination is the most common downfall of financial planning. Sometimes it's wise to wait until you have all the information you need or until the timing is right before taking action. But procrastination can cause serious financial issues, including missed opportunities, increased stress, and a cynical attitude about accomplishing anything.

Here are some basic reasons for procrastination:

- ☐ 1. Fear of Failure: "I know I won't do it right, so why start at all?"
- ☐ 2. Perfectionism: "What if I make a mistake?"
- ☐ 3. The Unknown: "I'm not sure what's involved, so where do I start?"

You can break the procrastination habit. Here are some suggestions for getting things done instead of putting them off:

- ☐ 1. Break big tasks into manageable parts.
- ☐ 2. Set priorities and do what needs to be done first.
- ☐ 3. Spend 20 minutes every day on your top-priority task.
- ☐ 4. Plan rewards for yourself as you complete each task.

Oregon Governor Proclaims April 2018 "Financial Literacy Month"

Bankers across the state set out to help build the next generation of savers

Oregon Governor Kate Brown has officially proclaimed April 2018 as "Financial Literacy Month" in Oregon. The Governor bestowed this proclamation at the request of the OBA Education Foundation and in support of the many Oregon banks and organizations raising awareness of the importance of financial literacy.

In conjunction with Financial Literacy Month, Teach Children to Save Day (TCTS) will be held April 20. Now in its 22nd year, TCTS is an annual awareness campaign which mobilizes bankers to visit classrooms and teach young people the value of saving. Bankers use their real-world knowledge and professional skills to encourage young people to start young, and save more. Several Oregon communities will be reached by banks participating in Teach Children to Save this year, including:

Albany Willamette Community Bank	Enterprise Community Bank	Portland Scott Valley Bank
Amity First Federal	Lincoln City First Interstate Bank	Statewide Wells Fargo
Bend First Interstate Bank	McMinnville First Federal	Yamhill First Federal
Dayton First Federal	Medford First Interstate Bank
Dundee First Federal	Newberg First Federal

"Financial literacy is essential to ensure that Oregonians are prepared to manage their money and make sound financial decisions," stated Governor Brown in her proclamation, adding, "By increasing the financial literacy of Oregonians, they may be able to improve the quality of their lives and strengthen the overall financial well-being of this state."

In addition to supporting Financial Literacy Month and Teach Children to Save Day, the OBA Education Foundation is involved in several other initiatives aimed at increasing the financial literacy of Oregonians. Those interested in supporting the Foundation's vision to empower all Oregonians to be financially educated and secure can make a tax-deductible contribution to the Foundation at www.oregonbankers.com/donate.

About the OBA Education Foundation

The OBA Education Foundation works toward its vision of a vibrant banking and business community that attracts the best talent and empowers all Oregonians to be financially educated and secure. It does so by enhancing educational opportunities in banking, finance, financial literacy and business. ## Financial Literacy

Proper use of money directly affects our quality of life. That's why I have made financial literacy a priority of this office. Since adding financial literacy to the duties of the State Treasurer (without spending any additional state funds), we have been busy working with people across the state to help them understand how to navigate their personal finances and make positive change in their lives.

Good financial education needs to start in the home. Parents are the biggest influence on society, and modeling a willingness to discuss finances and seek out helpful resources will encourage children to do the same. Our habits, good or bad, are likely to see themselves repeated in our kids. Showing our children how to work their way into sound financial practices is helpful, no matter where that work begins.

Now is the time to start building your tomorrow. Often, small changes can yield great results. I strongly encourage every North Dakotan to take your information, use the tools provided by my office, and explore the financial opportunities available to you. You will soon see just how easy it is to set yourself up for a future of financial success.

It is important to make learning fun—and to that end, we have launched a program called “Financial Football,” <http://www.northdakota.financialfootball.com> which is an NFL themed money management video game. These tools are just a start, and I am excited to continue the mission to inspire students and families to start talking about finances.

Another financial literacy initiative is to bring innovative technology-based financial education to every high school across North Dakota. We have collaborated with EverFi, a leader in financial literacy programming, to provide every high school the opportunity to reach its students with a meaningful digital learning experience that is both standards-based and easy for teachers to implement. The course covers critical topics, including credit cards and debit cards, compounding interest, financing higher education, and basic investment options, as well as many other confusing, but vital topics.

April is Financial Literacy Month

Apr 20, 2018

States across the nation are pitching in to help consumers identify better financial habits, increase their savings, and plan for retirement.

Financial Literacy Month, occurring each year in April, is an opportunity for financial corporations, nonprofits, and government agencies to promote educational initiatives and resources. The Jumpstart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy coordinates the work of hundreds of businesses and state and local governments for Financial Literacy Month. CSBS has been a long-standing partner with the Jumpstart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy.

Several state banking departments are already hard at work promoting financial literacy for their consumers. Here is just a small sampling of states participating in Financial Literacy Month:

District of Columbia

In observance of Financial Literacy Month, District residents can participate in free educational programs, resources and services that promote inclusive prosperity, economic growth and personal financial well-being.

"Many Americans live paycheck to paycheck and worry about not having enough funds to cover daily expenses let alone planning for retirement," said Commissioner Stephen C. Taylor. "Mayor Bowser and her administration are committed to helping all District residents break the cycle of living paycheck to paycheck by providing the educational tools and strategies for managing household debt and create pathways to the middle class."

Idaho

Governor C.L. "Butch" Otter has signed a proclamation establishing April as "Financial Literacy Month" in Idaho, noting that, "The quality of every Idahoan's life is dramatically affected by how you manage your money. Education is a key to providing Idahoans the tools to achieve a better financial life. I encourage every Idahoan to take advantage of the great free resources available during the month to learn about the wise use of credit, the basics of saving and investing, home ownership preservation, and the pitfalls associated with financial fraud."

The Idaho Department of Finance, the Idaho Financial Literacy Coalition (IFLC) (www.idahoflc.org) – an affiliate of the JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy – the Idaho Military Financial Alliance, and Idaho Public Libraries have joined together to sponsor "Financial Literacy Month" in April. The IFLC is a partnership of private- and public-sector financial educators. The Department of Finance participates year-round in IFLC efforts and is proud to take part in this opportunity to draw attention to the need for all Idahoans to learn money management skills.

Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania Governor Tom Wolf declared April as "Financial Capability Month" in Pennsylvania. In his proclamation, Governor Wolf recognized the Pennsylvania Department of Banking and Securities for its work with CSBS to assist thousands of Pennsylvanians each year.

The Department also conducts several consumer outreach events year-round, with emphasis on financial literacy and avoiding common financial scams. For senior citizens, the Department will conduct a "Consumer Fraud Bingo" event, a program to help develop a spending plan, and an in-depth discussion on avoiding scams and identify theft, banking basics, and budgeting. For Students, the Department will conduct a presentation combining lessons on credit reports and scores, banking basics, and creating a spending plan.

Texas

The Texas Department of Banking supports Financial Literacy Month, promoting the "Smart Kid" Essay Contest. The "Smart Kid" Essay Contest is aimed at helping students develop knowledge of financial concepts, understand budgets, recognize the importance of financial planning, and become better prepared for future roles as consumers, investors, and employees. In support of Financial Literacy Month, the Financial Fitness Greater Austin (FFGA) "Smart Kid" Essay Contest, presented by Capital One Bank, encourages middle school and high school students in the Greater Austin area to answer this year's "Smart Kid" question.

Washington

The Washington State Department of Financial Institutions is also a partner celebrating April 2018 as Financial Capability Month. Understanding the importance of financial education, Washington Governor Jay Inslee proclaimed April as Financial Capability Month.

This month presents opportunities for partners like DFI, the Treasurer's Office, JumpStart Washington Coalition and the Financial Education Public-Private Partnership (FEPPP) to highlight and support the work being done to increase and improve financial education in our state - and assist the many educators and organizations currently providing financial education to Washington residents.

"Helping Washington residents improve their financial skills and capabilities is part of DFI's core mission," DFI Director Gloria Papiez said. "When more residents understand how to make sound financial decisions and avoid financial fraud, they can protect themselves — and our state as a whole is stronger."

Wisconsin

Dozens of communities across the state will participate in Money Smart Week Wisconsin April 21-28 with events focused on improving the personal financial awareness and education of Wisconsin citizens.

Money Smart Week Wisconsin is the highlight of April being national Financial Literacy Awareness Month. The Governor's Council on Financial Literacy, in partnership with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, is spearheading Money Smart Week Wisconsin, the celebration of which was proclaimed by Governor Scott Walker on April 2.

Governor Haslam and Three Tennessee Schools Honored by Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission

Nashville, TN - Yesterday, leaders from across the state joined the Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission (TNFLC) at the State Capitol to celebrate the impact of financial education in Tennessee and honor the supporters who are making it possible. State Treasurer David H. Lillard, Jr., who serves as Chair of the TNFLC Board, was joined by Governor Bill Haslam, Lieutenant Governor Randy McNally, Speaker Beth Harwell, legislators, and business leaders for the event.

The evening was a celebration of the overall achievements of the Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission. Under the direction of Treasurer Lillard and Director Bill Parker, the TNFLC has helped Tennessee K-8 students in 148 schools across the state complete 28,315 hours of online financial education modules. After utilizing the online learning platform, students have increased their scores by an average of 36% per child.

Treasurer Lillard and the Financial Literacy Commission presented the Champion of Financial Literacy Award to Governor Bill Haslam. Governor Haslam's leadership and support have paved the way for the Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission to train more than 4,200 Tennessee teachers and educate more than 19,000 Tennessee students through Vault-Understanding Money, an online interactive financial literacy program used in classrooms throughout the state.

"This work gets to the heart of so many things we need to be teaching our citizens, including those at early ages," Haslam said. "The principles behind financial literacy are important for our children to learn and to carry with them in life."

The Commission also presented the 2018 Leadership Award to a school from each Grand Division for their efforts to advance financial literacy education in their classrooms.

Principal Travis Hurley and fifth-grade teacher Christy Malone accepted the Leadership Award for East Side Elementary in Elizabethton. Mrs. Malone, who has a passion for bringing financial education to life for her students, has also served as the Vice Chair of the TNFLC Board since 2010.

The Leadership Award for Middle Tennessee was presented to Thomas Magnet School in Shelbyville and accepted by teacher Rachel Grijalva. After attending a TNFLC educator training session, Mrs. Grijalva began incorporating financial literacy into her classroom lessons immediately.

"Through the use of the Vault program in my building, I believe that we are planting a small seed of the understanding of financial responsibility at the elementary level... I appreciate Treasurer Lillard and the TN Financial Literacy Commission for making the Vault-Understanding Money program available to elementary students in Tennessee," said Mrs. Grijalva.

Delano Optional School in Memphis received the TNFLC Leadership Award for West Tennessee, accepted by Principal Patrice Shipp and teacher Will Miller.

The Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission is a tax exempt 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that relies on donations from individuals and businesses for a majority of its funding.

About the Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission:

The Tennessee Financial Literacy Commission was created to equip Tennesseans to make sound financial decisions in regard to planning, saving, and investing. The Commission has the goal to reach every K-8 classroom in Tennessee, providing financial literacy resources like Vault and the nationally recognized Financial Fitness for Life curriculum. The TNFLC provides both of these resources, including training, free to Tennessee K-8 schools.

J&F Advisors promotes Financial Literacy Month to small business owners

Branden Hunter

April is many things — a month that begins with obvious pranks, a month when we celebrate Easter, and a month when taxes are due. It is also Financial Literacy Month. Americans will learn why financial literacy is so important and how being financially aware will enhance your daily, monthly and annual financial decisions.

Certified Public Accountants Ashley Johnson and Robyn Fuller founded J&F Advisors LLC, in 2011 and are experts on financial literacy. A large percentage of their clientele base are small business owners in Detroit, who they stress the importance of financial literacy to.

"Financial literacy is having the knowledge and skillset to maximize your financial resources," said Fuller. "Understanding basic management of money, credit and debt, as you begin to age and take on more financial responsibilities, is key in maintaining long-term financial security."

"As small business owners, a lot of times people start business based on hobbies, and things that they are passionate about. It is especially key for small business owners to understand the financial element of running a business to avoid financial scrutiny, especially relating to taxes."

Johnson and Fuller are both graduates of Detroit Cass Tech and have bachelors and master's degrees in accounting. They both recently quit their jobs at Fortune 500 companies to run J&F Advisors full-time.

As the youngest African-American female-owned CPA firm in the Detroit area, J&F Advisors is extremely vested in directly impacting the growth of the small business community in the city. Johnson and Fuller understand, for Detroit's economy to grow, small business owners must have a certain level of financial knowledge to make well informed business decisions.

Financial Literacy Initiatives

Utah Council on Financial & Economic Education (UCFEE)

The Utah Council on Financial and Economic Education works to:

- Reach all Utahns and connect current financial education programs with consistent, common language for increased impact and results.
- Embed financial education into all areas of a person's life in order to reinforce financial concepts and encourage positive financial behavior.
- Make financial education accessible to all, and create opportunities for those seeking education or teaching financial concepts to have the tools and support needed.

The goal of UCFEE is to serve as a centralized, coordinated access point for this information, and to connect you with programs and resources to meet whatever financial challenges you may be facing.

Utah Educational Savings Plan (UESP)

Utah Educational Savings Plan

Utah's Official 529 College Savings Plan, the Utah Educational Savings Plan (UESP) is a plan that may help grow your child's educational dollars and offers you a beneficial tax incentive. UESP is a "direct-sold" 529 plan. Contributions are commission-free.

Money Smart Week® Wisconsin April 21-28, 2018

Madison, WI—This year, Money Smart Week® Wisconsin is April 21-28 where communities across Wisconsin are participating in events designed to promote and improve personal financial awareness.

"Money Smart Week® is an excellent opportunity for Wisconsinites to evaluate their financial well-being while investing in their community," said Commissioner and Co-Vice Chair of the Governor's Council on Financial Literacy Ted Nickel. "Remember to consider your insurance needs as the primary purpose of insurance is to help protect you and your loved ones from financial hardship. Visit moneysmartweek.org to check out the scheduled events in your community."

Money Smart Week® Wisconsin was created in partnership with the Governor's Council on Financial Literacy and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Governor Scott Walker issued a proclamation declaring Money Smart Week® Wisconsin. The week aims to improve financial literacy and financial health across Wisconsin. Learn more about Money Smart Week® and information about scheduled events at moneysmartweek.org.

Below are examples of steps you can take to become better educated about your insurance coverage:

- Make sure all your insurance information is located in a safe place but somewhere you will find it.
- Consider reading through your insurance policies. Too many consumers are surprised after they have an event because they never read through their policy to begin with.

Part of a financial game plan should include a thorough review of life, health, and property insurance policies to maximize coverage at the best possible premium. A review should also include planning for future insurance needs in order to determine if other policies, such as long-term care insurance or annuities, should be a part of future financial plans.

The Office of the Commissioner of Insurance (OCI) offers a comprehensive selection of insurance information for consumers. Publications include Consumer's Guide to Auto Insurance, Consumer's Guide to Homeowner's Insurance, and answers to many frequently asked questions all available free of charge on OCI's Web site at oci.wi.gov.

Created by the Legislature in 1870, Wisconsin's Office of the Commissioner of Insurance (OCI) was vested with broad powers to ensure the insurance industry responsibly and adequately met the insurance needs of Wisconsin citizens. Today, OCI's mission is to lead the way in informing and protecting the public and responding to its insurance needs.

State Treasurer Highlights Funding the Future Program

Headquartered in Wyoming, Funding the Future is a nonprofit organization educating young people about the importance of managing and saving money by setting S.M.A.R.T. goals.

The unique financial literacy presentations teach middle, high school and college students about financial literacy by first grabbing their attention with an excellent rock & roll mini concert, then delivering a talk about why making a living in any industry requires hard work, planning and an understanding of basic financial principles. Students are inspired to see their own dreams as possibilities. Student engagement is amped as the message is delivered with a "cool factor" that's difficult to duplicate. The program has been delivered to over 35,000 students across the United States and Canada. In Wyoming, Funding the Future has reached students in Cheyenne, Laramie, Casper, Gillette, Sheridan, Buffalo, Greybull and Basin with Treasurer Gordon often introducing the band. Learn more about Funding the Future on their website. There, you'll also find a complete listing of tour dates and locations.

April is Financial Literacy Month

April 03, 2018

April is a great time to start talking to kids about choices with money. Just as the weather changes, so do the "i wants" seem to get louder. I notice it in myself as I see Spring clothes come out and as I see neighbors out in their yards. I think it is natural after the winters we have been having to want to refresh and spruce up a bit.

The opportunity presented by Moonjar is one of "how can we make it happen"; our tools are a great way to set plans and goals to achieve those special spring wants. Simple budgeting conversations as a family can help set even young children on the right path in terms of SAVE SPEND and SHARE.

Jump$tart Coalition is a group that works to keep Youth Financial Literacy and Education in the forefront of national and statewide legislation and ideology. We have been a part of the coalition since we started over 17 years ago. They are a wonderful resource for all ages! They were integral in making April Financial Literacy Month.

Here is a bit of the history:

National Financial Literacy Month is recognized in the United States in April in an effort to highlight the importance of financial literacy and teach Americans how to establish and maintain healthy financial habits. Financial Literacy Month evolved from Youth Financial Literacy Day, introduced by the National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE) more than a decade ago as an activity of its High School Financial Planning Program. NEFE turned Financial Literacy Day over to the Jump$tart Coalition to promote among its network of national partners and state coalitions. Jump$tart expanded the day and in 2000, began promoting April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month. In 2003, the United States Senate designated April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month. In March 2004, the Senate passed Resolution 316 that officially recognized April as National Financial Literacy Month, and both Houses of Congress have passed similar resolutions each year since then.

Financial Capability Month

April is Financial Capability Month, and the Minnesota Department of Commerce hosted the 8th Annual Financial Capability Roundtable on Wednesday, April 25, 2018, at the Minneapolis Central Library, 300 Nicollet Mall.

To highlight that financial capability involves education through all stages of life, from kindergarten to retirement, this year's Roundtable theme was "You're Never Too Old (or Too Young) for Financial Capability."

The featured speaker was Nancy Carlson, the popular children's book author and illustrator. She talked about her background and work in picture books (such as "Start Saving, Henry!") that introduce basic financial concepts to young children. She also shared her personal story of financial hardship and lessons learned as a result of her late husband's undiagnosed early-onset dementia that caused him to mismanage their family's finances. Nancy discussed coping with his illness, finding him care and working to get out of debt.

Nancy's presentation was followed by a discussion about the financial capability needs of older Minnesotans and their families, including services and resources to help.

- Amanda Vickstrom, Executive Director, Minnesota Elder Justice Center
- Susan Schroeder, AFC® Financial Empowerment Program Developer, Dakota County Community Services
- John Comer, CFP®, Financial Planning Association of Minnesota
- LaRhae Grindal Knatterud, Director of Aging Transformation, Minnesota Department of Human Services

The event concluded with an expo to promote networking and allow organizations to showcase their financial capability work.

EVERFI Launches Roadshow to Promote Financial Literacy Month

New Partners Include Prominent Higher Education Institutions, Global Brands, and Private Foundations

RELEASED

Washington, D.C.

EverFi, Inc., the education technology company that teaches, assesses, and certifies students in critical skills, today announced the launch of its first-ever Financial Literacy Month Roadshow. EverFi will host more than 50 financial literacy events in 20 states as part of the Roadshow, including a signature event today at Brackenridge High School in San Antonio, Texas, with special guest Mayor Julian Castro. Over 400 students will be recognized at the event for having completed EverFi's financial literacy platform.

In a recent survey of U.S. high school students, commissioned by EverFi to gauge their knowledge and feelings toward money management, 83 percent of students said that personal finance should be mandatory in schools. However, only four states require at least a semester-long course devoted to the topic. Working closely with sponsors, EverFi is embarking on this Roadshow to provide students the financial education they are asking for.

"When we started EverFi in 2008, we drove an RV across the country to talk with students, teachers and administrators about the pressure financial issues put on them," said Tom Davidson, Chief Executive Officer of EverFi. "Today we are still on that journey in small towns and large cities across the nation working to ensure that all students can become financially literate using the technology they love."

Roadshow events will be hosted at K-12 schools across the nation and will include launch receptions for schools new to the program and certification ceremonies to recognize students who have completed the EverFi digital learning platform. In addition to Mayor Castro of San Antonio, the Roadshow will include state and local government officials including Rhode Island State Treasurer Gina Raimondo and Missouri State Treasurer Clint Zweifel.

EverFi partners with more than 500 financial institutions, corporations and non-profit organizations to bring its innovative learning platforms to K-12 schools at no cost. Partners participating in the Roadshow include BMO Harris Bank, the Bruce Rauner Family Foundation, Capital One, Genworth, Mutual of Omaha Bank, Regions Bank, Sandy Spring Bank, PNC Bank, and US Bank.

Among the cities included in the Roadshow are Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Phoenix, Richmond, San Antonio, San Diego, St. Louis and Washington, DC. Stay connected to Financial Literacy Roadshow updates at the EverFi Blog.

FINANCIAL LITERACY TOUR

Our Financial Literacy Tour uses the power of a live rock performance and our own personal story to inspire young people with lessons of finance and discipline to help them see their own dreams as possibilities.

Through a concert, multimedia presentation and talkback, we discuss predatory lending, the danger of credit card debt, saving early and looking to students' own communities for support and mentorship, while exposing the myth of rock stars, athletes and actors who sell the false image of overnight success.

Students who do not receive this message early often drop out of college and return to the same cycle of financial irresponsibility as their parents. Children from lower income households and un-banked families are especially at risk.

We seek corporate sponsorships to fund our FinLit Tour. Our sponsors include Raymond James, United Way, The Millstone Evans Group of Raymond James, First Interstate Bank, and the Nebraska Council of Economic Education.

When corporate sponsorship funds are not available, and there is little or no school budget, our program is funded by Funding the Future, Inc. Funding the Future (FTF) has goals that are similar to our FinLit Tour, and it has been active in ensuring we are able to perform whenever there is an opportunity for presenting our program to students.

We are officially registered as a nonprofit and donations can be sent to Funding the Future at

- One in five teenage students in the U.S. lack basic financial literacy skills, data from the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA) showed.
- Financial literacy is a basic life skill that is more than a nice to know, it's a need to know. And now it's more relevant than ever.

Not everyone aspires to be an investment manager when they leave school, but the core elements of financial literacy should be common knowledge.

This is particularly true today, in an increasingly global economy where people are spending more and living longer. Understanding how to manage personal finances is critical for anyone, and it helps to start young.

Unfortunately, we are not quite there yet. One in five teenage students in the U.S. lack basic financial literacy skills, data from the Program for International Student Assessment (PISA) showed. Among adults, only 20% of those polled by the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) in a study said they were offered and have participated in some form of financial education. It seems the country has a lot of work to do on the financial literacy front, and many teachers appear to agree.

Citizens Bank Announces More Than $1.5 Million In Financial Literacy Charitable Contributions To Non-Profits In Nine States

Business Wire April 5, 2018

PROVIDENCE, R.I.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

Citizens Bank today marked the start of National Financial Literacy Month with the launch of its multi-faceted financial education program, Citizens Helping Citizens Manage Money; reaching more than 350,000 people through local partnerships to deliver home buyer's assistance training, financial empowerment, earned income tax credit programs and small business development.

The Citizens Helping Citizens Manage Money program is a yearly effort by the bank to teach financial literacy throughout the communities it serves. This year, the bank will provide more than $1.5 million in contributions to 80 nonprofits in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and New York. The program will help people obtain a better understanding of financial topics ranging from the basics of checking accounts to the intricacies of household budgeting and long-term financial planning.

"At Citizens, we believe that becoming financially savvy is a skill that benefits everyone. Learning the basics is the first step in achieving your financial goals and getting on the path to financial security," said Barbara Cottam, Head of Corporate Affairs for Citizens Bank. "With Citizens Helping Citizens Manage Money, more than 400 Citizens Bank colleagues will provide fellow members of their communities with the knowledge, confidence and resources they need to budget, save, invest and be fiscally healthy."

Citizens Bank also offers helpful tips on its website for consumers to learn how to budget and save as well as advice on how to save to buy a home, seek identity protection and more. The bank is also inviting those interested in learning more about money management to follow along on social media, including Facebook, Twitter and Instagram, throughout the month of April to learn and share tips about topics such as goal-setting, saving, and managing credit. The bank's Community Ambassadors will offer their real-world tips on saving and money management.

Citizens Helping Citizens Manage Money is part of the bank's broader Citizens Helping Citizens program, which addresses three key areas: hunger, financial education and strengthening communities.

For additional information on Citizens Helping Citizens Manage Money, visit Citizens' website.

It's time to protect your family & your future

In support of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement personal finance content blitz built around the strategic campaign venues of National Financial Literacy Month (April) and six months later during National Estate Planning Awareness Month / Week (3rd week in October), the following estate planning article contains a very important message.

Over 50% of our adult population (120 million adults) does NOT realize the importance of not having a current or up-to-date estate plan to protect themselves and their family's assets; that can include half your family, friends, and associates.

Estate planning is a financial process that can protect you and your family and is a very important component of your overall financial planning. Now is the perfect time to put your estate planning house in order.

If you don't have an up-to-date estate plan and you happen to get hurt or sick and cannot manage your financial affairs, the courts will have to appoint someone to manage them for you.

The person they appoint might not be the one you

Without an estate plan, when you pass away, your affairs will be settled by default through a complex legal system called "probate." The handling of your financial affairs can turn into a costly and frustrating ordeal for your family and heirs. Your assets may not pass to their desired party, and there is no way for your assets (significant or modest) to get to their favorite charities or causes unless some advance arrangements are made.

The crafting of a good estate plan starts with planning, followed by the proper drafting and signing of appropriate legal documents such as wills, trusts, buy-sell agreements for business owners, durable powers of attorney for financial management, and an advanced health-care directive or health-care power

TODAY'S THOUGHT

"The only person who doesn't need an estate plan is the one who lives forever and never gets sick." -Your financial PARTNER of attorney. Having these documents in place saves you and your family a lot of money and time at a very difficult and emotional time.

Your estate planning should also address the coordination of the way you hold title to your various assets, your beneficiary selections, and the possible transfer of certain assets while you are alive.

Regardless of the extent of your net worth, estate planning is important for everyone. Complex strategies may be used by wealthy people to reduce death taxes and costs. Others may only require a simple will and/or trust to pass on property to their heirs and provide for minor children.

Even if a simple will and power of attorney is all you require, an estate plan is an essential part of your financial and gift planning. Everybody will need it someday. The time to address or update your estate plan is now.

CHECKLIST – SIX STEPS TOWARD SUCCESSFUL ESTATE & GIFT PLANNING

1. DEFINE YOUR GOALS: What do you want to happen to your assets in the event of your death or disability? If your beneficiaries predecease you, who are your alternate selections? How will your assets be distributed, and when will these distributions take place?

☐ Decisions on distribution of your estate assets should take into account the size of the estate, the ages and abilities of your children, and your personal desires. For example, a distribution to children over time might consist of 10 percent of the estate at age 18, 25 percent at age 21, 50 percent at age 24 or upon completion of college, and the balance at age 30.

☐ Choose your appointees for important roles: Who will be your executor and, if applicable, trustee and/or guardians? It is advisable to list at least a first and second alternate for each appointment in case your first choice is unwilling or unable to serve.

☐ If you have children who are minors, the appointment of a guardian is probably the most important decision you'll make. With the court's approval, this person, or persons, will raise your children. Consider appointing a family member and spouse, or another close couple who'll care for your children the way you would want.

☐ You may want to consider listing multiple executors, trustees and guardians to serve together in handling the details of your estate. This can provide a check-and-balance system for the appointees and help them avoid oversights or misappropriations. Consider appointing family members, friends, professionals, advisers and/or trust companies for this position.

☐ There is some risk here: If these people disagree and have problems, they can each be represented in court by counsel paid for by your estate, so be very careful in making your selections.

☐ Living trusts have become popular because less administration is required in comparison with a will. Be aware that having a living trust does not eliminate the need for a will and administration at either the first or second spouse's death.

☐ To get the benefits of the trust, certain details must be attended to, and this is the job of your appointees. For example, leaving a trust for the surviving spouse requires that the trust be funded properly and in a timely manner at the first death, or major tax benefits can be lost.

☐ Is estate privacy an issue for you? Do you want your estate to be public record upon your death? Do you have any special gifts you want made to charity? Do you want an elderly parent or friend to be financially cared for? All of these circumstances should be noted in your plan.

2. GATHER & ORGANIZE YOUR DATA: There are three basic tasks to be accomplished:

☐ Review and update your financial position.

☐ Review how you hold title to your assets. Is it consistent with your estate plan?

☐ Review your beneficiary selections. Are they aligned with your estate plans?

Did you know that how you hold title to assets has a higher legal priority than your will? For example, if you and your best friend held title to an investment club account as joint tenants and you died, the property would revert to your friend even though you had willed your interest to your spouse.

3. ANALYZE YOUR SITUATION: Start by determining your current net worth, assuming your death occurred today. This can be done by totaling your current assets and liabilities, and adding the value of any life insurance.

Try sketching a picture or flow chart of your existing estate plan. Review your appointees:

- ☐ Executor
- ☐ Guardian of the Person/of the Property
- ☐ Trustee
- ☐ Power of Attorney - Financial Management
- ☐ Advance Health-Care Directive or Health-Care Power of Attorney

ESTATE PLANNING ALERT

On December 22, 2018 President Trump signed into law the "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act" (TCJA). This new law contains massive changes to personal and business income taxation. It also touches on Gift / Estate / Generation-Skipping transfers (GST) Tax Exemptions doubling the estate, gift, and GST tax exemptions to $11.2 million per US domiciliary; that's $22.4 million per US couple! Like most individual provisions these will expire after 2025 unless it's addressed in future tax acts. The gift tax exclusion per donee increases in 2018 to $15,000. The top estate, gift, and GST tax rate is 40%.

Portability – Beginning for taxpayers dying after Dec. 31, 2010 the estate tax exclusion becomes "portable" between spouses. This means that the surviving spouse's exemption is increased by any exemption not used at the first spouse's death. However, this is not automatic; it must elected by timely filing a 706 estate tax return.

Carryover Basis – For most capital assets transferred at the time of death the beneficiary receives a "stepped up" basis to its fair market value at the date of death.

Check with your financial advisors for updated information.

4. DEVELOP YOUR STRATEGIES: With the assistance of your estate planning advisor(s), identify the legal documents that need drafting or make any necessary adjustments to existing documents. Determine any other actions that must be taken for your wishes to be carried out.

5. IMPLEMENT YOUR PLAN: Do what needs to be done – i.e., create or create new wills, trusts and powers of attorney, adjust title to your properties, change alternate beneficiaries of retirement plans and life insurance policies. Consider making current or planned gifts to family and your favorite causes and nonprofits. Provide your executors and trustee with a location sheet as to where you keep things.

6. TRACK & MONITOR YOUR PROGRESS:

Check your estate plan annually or any time there are changes in your family situation or net worth. Use your financial planning calendar to schedule your next review.

April 04, 2018 08:30 AM Eastern Daylight Time

OMAHA, Neb.-(BUSINESS WIRE)--More investors are taking the time to prioritize their financial know-how than ever before yet some investors may delay investing due to a lack of financial knowledge. In an effort to improve financial wellness, TD Ameritrade Holding Corporation (Nasdaq: AMTD) is taking part in Financial Literacy Month by offering investors a special immersive education curriculum to help improve their knowledge and understanding of financial concepts and build their confidence.

"Whether investors have little understanding of how to invest or are sophisticated traders looking to sharpen their knowledge, this is an opportunity to take advantage of the free resources we have available to all retail investors"

Tweel this

An educated investor is better equipped to manage their money and more confident when making investment decisions. This is why teaching financial literacy and building confidence early on is key, as it gives investors the opportunity to build more wealth throughout their lifetime. If a young adult were to invest $24,000 between ages 21 and 41 – assuming an 8 percent annual return – at age 67 they would save approximately $412,000 more than an adult who invested the same $24,000 between ages 47 and 67, thanks to the potential of interest returns over time<sup>1</sup>.

TD Ameritrade wants to help investors get started on their financial journey sooner, which is why it's providing education ideas and resources to investors throughout the entire month of April.

Just How Low Is 401k Financial Literacy?

It's higher among men than women, but all around awful

Failing grades are never fun.

POSTED BY: JOHN SULLIVAN APRIL 4, 2018

"Most Americans lack personal finance knowledge necessary to make appropriate financial decisions in the normal course of life."

Harsh, direct and (unfortunately) true.

The TIAA Institute and the Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center found that adults answered, on average, 50 percent of survey questions correctly.

Financial literacy is the lowest in the area of comprehending risk, according to TIAA, with only 35 percent of questions on risk answered correctly.

"Given that risk and uncertainty are inherent in most financial decision-making, low knowledge levels on this topic carry implications for Americans' overall financial well-being," it notes.

Compared to the 2017 findings, personal finance knowledge remains strong on the topics of borrowing and debt management, with 60 percent of those questions answered correctly.

For many individuals, knowledge and understanding of debt-related topics may emerge from confronting accumulated debt across the life cycle, often from a young age because of student loans.

"Less than one in five U.S. adults demonstrated a relatively high level of personal finance knowledge by answering more than 75 percent of the survey questions correctly," Annamaria Lusardi, academic director of GFLEC, said in a statement. "Low levels of financial literacy, among not only the young but also people close to retirement, show we need to step up the effort to promote financial knowledge across the entire population."

The survey found financial literacy is significantly higher among men than women; with a share of 21 percent of men answering 75 percent of the questions correctly, compared to 12 percent among women.

Not surprisingly, individuals who have participated in a financial education class or program answered more questions correctly on average than those who have not received financial education. This positive correlation shows the importance of financial education in schools and the workplace.

Personal Finance: Financial Literacy Month a great opportunity to improve financial literacy

April 11th, 2018 | by Christopher A. Hopkins | in Business Around the Region | Read Time: 2 mins.

Retirement should be anticipated as the reward for a lifetime of work. But too many adults rightly feel a sense of foreboding at the prospect if they have not prepared adequately. In an age where pensions are an artifact of a bygone era, the burden falls upon each of us to save and invest for our golden years. But the reality is too few of us have set aside enough to ensure a comfortable retirement. Study after study have demonstrated we aren't saving nearly enough to get the job done, often because we don't know where to start.

National Bureau of Economic Research estimates more than 90 percent of all private contribution to retirement savings plans now goes to defined contribution plans such as 401(k)s, and less than 10 percent into traditional pensions, increasing the need for individuals to master the financial skills necessary to reach the finish line.

Millennials in particular are falling farther behind. According to a recent analysis by the National Institute on Retirement Security, 66 percent of working Millennials (born between 1980 and 1996) have saved literally nothing for retirement. With each passing year, the hill gets steeper.

Meanwhile, debt continues to accumulate, complicating the picture. Student loan debt in particular is exploding, adding to the mounting burden of preparing for the end of our working years. Some 44 million Americans have some college debt, totaling an astonishing $1.5 trillion. That figure is $620 billion more than all the credit card debt in the United States. And for the first time, we are witnessing examples of Social Security payments being garnished to repay old student loans.

It has never been more important for Americans to actively engage in enhancing their own money skills. Fortunately, there are many more sources today providing financial education resources, both online and in person, including right here in our community.

April is Financial Literacy Month, an annual opportunity to highlight the need for education and to offer resources to get the job done. This coming Saturday, numerous agencies and providers will come together to offer valuable financial education, counseling and consultation, all free of charge.

Money School is an information-packed half-day event organized by Chattanooga Neighborhood Enterprise to enhance financial knowledge and promote essential money habits. The event is completely free to participants age 13 and up beginning at 8 AM at the Brainerd Crossroads. The event features a full slate of workshops dealing with critical financial skills including credit management, basics of mortgage loans, investments, budgeting, estate planning and much more.

Workshops cover a range of crucial topics, divided into five broad categories: The Road to Homeownership, Preparing for the Future, Planning for the Now, Getting out of Debt, and Money Skills for Teens.

In addition to the class sessions, a number of financial professionals will be on hand to offer one-on-one sessions covering credit report analysis, mortgage assessments and personal financial advice.

"Money School provides resources to empower the citizens of Chattanooga to make knowledgeable, confident financial decisions," says Martina Guilfoil, president and CEO of CNE. "The cornerstone for a strong community is stable families, and a key component of family stability is financial literacy and money management skills. These are services Money School offers."

This annual event has grown rapidly in the four years since its inception, and 2018 promises to be the biggest and best yet. For more information, check out www.MoneySchoolCHA.org or call 423- 756-6201. A small investment of your time this Saturday will continue to pay big dividends in the years ahead.

Credit union helps students learn about money

LIBERTY, Ill. -- Liberty High School sophomore Grace Shanks already has figured out one way to handle her money from a part-time job.

Half of it goes into savings, and the other half she can use for whatever she wants.

Learning more about finances -- thanks to a program offered through Members First Community Credit Union -- helps Shanks and some of her classmates think more about saving and less about spending.

"It's helped me to set goals on what you should save," said freshman Dustin Dennis, who has a savings and a checking account along with plans to repair a truck. "People are starting to drive. They need to know how to set aside money for gas."

Students in Jessica Saunders' math class got some more help Tuesday thanks to a presentation from Taylor Gaines with Members First.

The in-person lessons reinforce what the students already learned through Banzai, a world-class software platform designed to introduce students to adult financial dilemmas through real-life simulations.

"I realize what parents go through with money," Grace said.

Members First has offered the program since 2010, reaching more than 1,500 area students in Adams, Brown, Pike and Schuyler counties. More than 35,000 teachers in all 50 states use the free curriculum targeted to elementary, junior high and high school students.

"It's simple things we're hoping to teach kids so they're more prepared for the real world," said Gaines, a business development representative with the credit union. "It offers students the opportunity to learn the trade-offs, the good and the bad, the discipline of making financial decisions with things that might come up, choices they might make."

It's especially apt in April, National Financial Literacy Month.

"It has really helped them to think more about their futures," Saunders said.

Gaines wants to see more schools take advantage of the Banzai curriculum and the credit union's additional assistance.

Char Cearlock, an associate faculty member at John Wood Community College, has used Banzai in several different teaching settings -- and even with her own daughter.

"It's just changing students' perspective, so they don't become adults that make poor financial decisions," Cearlock said. "They understand money instead of becoming young adults who don't understand money -- and how they can make it work for them."

The lessons are fun, kid-friendly and adaptable for a wide range of ages and classrooms.

"Years ago I made it fit in a computer class, in a college prep careers exploration class, in life skills or an accounting class," Cearlock said. "It can supplement your curriculum, or it can be on its own. It is aligned to state standards. That's attractive for teachers and administration as well."

More information about Banzai is available online at teachbanzai.com.

First State Bank gives children piggy banks to promote financial literacy

By FRED FACE The Herald-Dispatch fpace@herald-dispatch.com Apr 12, 2018 (0)

BARBOURSVILLE — Many young children are not taught to save money, according to Willa Midkiff with the Barbourville Public Library.

"When I was a child, nobody told me that I could open a savings account until I was older," she said. "I made sure my children got one, and I think today's event will encourage other parents to do the same."

Midkiff handles all the children's programs at the library and said she was happy to have representatives with First State Bank in attendance Wednesday for the library's story hour.

"We have been doing a major push in community outreach," said Ashley Taylor Scott with First State Bank. "April is National Financial Literacy Month, so we are doing events in the community and giving out free piggy banks to children."

The bank's goal is to promote financial literacy among community youth, according to Scott — and for good reason. A 2016-17 report by the Federal Reserve on the economic well-being of Americans found that just under half of adults polled had saved at least some of their income in the year prior to the survey.

Several children attended the event and listened to the story, "My First Trip to the Bank."

Following the story hour, children received free piggy banks and then were taken on a tour of First State Bank's main office, located just a block away from the library.

"Families of the children have the opportunity to open a free savings account without a minimum balance requirement to help them learn the importance of saving from a young age," Scott said.

Utah Ranks Fourth In Nation For Financial Literacy

By MATILYN MORTENSEN • APR 11, 2018

CREDIT: BLOOMBERG / BLOOMBERG VIA GETTY IMAGES

April is National Financial Literacy Month. In a recent report released by WalletHub, Utah ranked fourth in the nation for financial literacy.

The organization assessed the financial literacy of individuals with questions on topics like interest, stocks and investing. The report also analyzed financial education and consumer habits.

"After the Great Recession, it was really clear that people needed to learn more about financial literacy," said Jill Gonzalez, a WalletHub analyst. "And I think that we've come a long way from that, but not necessarily far enough. We ended last year with a record high in credit card debt. So it seems like across the country, we're kind of forgetting of what the Great Recession taught us in terms of financial lessons."

Gonzalez said Utah doesn't seem to be following the national trend. It ranked number one out of 51 when it comes to financial planning and habits, and number three for results on the survey.

The state did rank 47 on financial knowledge and education, however, Gonzalez said this isn't necessarily an outlier.

"These states that do have that low financial knowledge or education ranking," she said, "rely more so on families to instill those values in their children and then to pass them on that debt is bad, saving more than spending is good, etc. So relying really more so on a family dynamic than a schooling dynamic for the education and financial literacy component."

Gonzalez said individuals struggling with debt may find the survey data useful for identifying areas of financial literacy to improve in their own lives by looking at the areas their state struggles with as a whole.

How Parents Can Help Boost Kids' Financial Literacy

Posted: Tuesday, April 10, 2018 11:00 pm

(StatePoint) April is Financial Literacy Month, providing the perfect opportunity to actively engage kids on the topic of money.

"Even young children should learn about basic money concepts, like saving for a goal and spending only what you can afford," says Alison Summerville, business administration executive and head of Corporate Citizenship at Ally Financial. "Building an understanding of basic money skills and good savings habits at a young age can positively impact your children by giving them a solid foundation that they can use to manage their finances at every phase of their lives."

This month and beyond, consider the following lessons:

Money Basics

Conceptualizing how money works can be challenging for kids, who may see you using credit or debit cards, buying things online, and even purchasing movies on televisions and mobile devices. Since many consumers rarely use cash, children may not realize when you are actually spending money.

Discuss the prices of various products and services. Explain how money can be spent only once, and that after buying something, a person needs to earn more money in order to buy something else. To teach this concept, play "grocery store" or other games that involve buying and selling items. Take turns being the cashier and the customer.

Start Saving

An allowance can be an opportunity to teach kids how to save. Having "give," "save" and "spend" piggy banks is a simple but effective way to illustrate the three main uses of money and teach them about giving. Kids can practice math skills by tracking the amount saved for future spending on the things they want.

To maximize the benefits your child receives from saving money, you may want to consider a Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (UTMA) or custodial bank account. For example, those offered by Ally Bank, Member FDIC, require no minimum balance to open, and offer competitive interest rates and no monthly maintenance fees. When opening such an account, take time to discuss interest and other basic banking concepts.

Needs vs. Wants

Help your children learn the difference between needs and wants. Explain how you have to pay for needs like food, shelter and heat, before buying items that you want, such as toys and electronics. Help your children come up with a plan to save and spend their own money that takes into account their needs and wants.

Helpful Resources

Turn to free resources that your family can use to help teach kids financial concepts. For example, Ally, a digital financial services company, released "Planet Zee and the Money Tree," a book for parents and educators that uses a fun and futuristic story line to teach kids ages 6-10 basic financial literacy. Parents can visit allywalletwise.com to download the book and play "What's Zee Answer?" an interactive game where players answer questions based on the concepts covered in the book. Additional resources for all ages are also available at fdic.gov/moneysmart.

This April, take the time to plant the seeds of money mindfulness and boost your children's financial knowledge.

New Research Finds Americans Less Likely to Discuss Domestic Violence Today Than Four Years Ago, Despite Momentum of Women's Movement

National survey from Allstate Foundation Purple Purse reveals gap between public concern and action on domestic violence and financial abuse

NORTHBROOK, Ill., April 16, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- As women around the country continue to bravely share their stories of harassment and abuse, a survey released today in honor of Financial Literacy Month by Allstate Foundation Purple Purse reveals the topic of domestic violence is becoming increasingly taboo. While survey findings show the American public ranks domestic violence as one of the most serious national issues, one-third think discussing domestic violence is taboo, a 10-point increase since the 2014 survey (34 percent in 2018 vs. 24 percent in 2014).

Sixty-two percent of Americans rank domestic violence as an extremely serious problem in the United States, placing it on par with issues such as substance abuse (70 percent), terrorism (65 percent), crime (65 percent), identity theft (62 percent) and poverty (60 percent). Still, the lack of discourse can make the most common form of domestic violence – financial abuse, which occurs in 99 percent<sup>1</sup> of domestic violence cases – even more difficult to detect and understand, especially when considering nearly half (47 percent) aren't familiar with financial abuse as a form of domestic violence.

"Our new research validates that the public recognizes the severity of domestic violence and financial abuse and their long-term impact on survivors; yet, as a society, we are still afraid to speak up and provide help," said Vicky Dinges, Allstate's senior vice president of corporate social responsibility. "Now more than ever, we must stand up to abusers and speak out for survivors. By facing this issue head on, we can amplify the voice of the too-often silenced domestic violence victim, and accelerate the powerful momentum surrounding the women's movement on a national scale."

Since 2005, The Allstate Foundation has been committed to ending domestic violence through financial empowerment services for survivors. The Allstate Foundation conducted the national survey to inform its ongoing work, with a particular focus on public perception of domestic violence and financial abuse during this important moment in time.

A snapshot of the survey's most compelling findings is included below:

A snapshot of the survey's most compelling findings is included below:

- Despite Americans' reluctance to talk about domestic violence, nearly 69 percent think the recently shared stories around workplace harassment will spark more testimonials in the public sphere.
- The public struggles when it comes to recognizing the signs of financial abuse and knowing how to help victims.
  - Forty-eight percent agree that financial abuse is the hardest form of abuse for an outsider to recognize — more than physical, sexual and emotional abuse.
  - Only 34 percent would know how to help if they suspected a family member or friend were a victim.
  - Fifty-one percent of survivors, even with their personal experience with the issue, wouldn't know how to help another victim.
- Fifty-five percent of respondents reported being or knowing a victim of domestic violence or financial abuse, but less than half (44 percent) have talked about the topic with a family member or friend.
- Seventy-one percent of those who have experienced financial abuse think the most effective way to keep victims from returning to their abusers is through financial empowerment.

Since 2005, Allstate Foundation Purple Purse has empowered more than 1.3 million survivors on the road to safety and security through its educational resources, including The Allstate Foundation's Purple Purse Moving Ahead curriculum. The curriculum equips women with the necessary knowledge to empower themselves financially and recover from financial abuse. To date, The Allstate Foundation has invested more than $60 million to help educate the public about financial abuse and provide critical survivor services, including financial education, asset-building, job training and readiness programs.

If you or someone you know is in a domestic violence situation, call the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-SAFE (7233) or TTY 1-800-787-3224.

Methodology

The Allstate Foundation Domestic Violence and Financial Abuse survey was conducted online between February 9-17, 2018, by CfK among 1,840 American adults over age 18. It was a nationally representative sample of 1,052, with demographic oversamples (age 22-37), as well as residents of Florida, Illinois, New York and Texas. The margin of error for the total sample is +/- 2.6 percentage points at the 95 percent confidence interval. The survey was offered in both English and Spanish.

REPRESENTING YOU - Understanding personal finances for a more secure future

By Kathy Kreag Richardson, Indiana State Representative, District 29

Monday, April 16, 2018 1:13 AM

April is National Financial Literacy Month and a good opportunity to become more educated on how to better manage our money. From balancing check books to understanding interest rates and avoiding scams, understanding personal finances is key to making important decisions. The state offers a variety of resources to help Hoosiers become more financially fit and responsible stewards of their fiscal futures.

Whether a child just starting out with a piggy bank or an adult applying for a mortgage, the Indiana MoneyWise Financial Education Program promotes financial literacy for Hoosiers of all ages. At no cost to taxpayers, this program offers interactive learning tools and resources.

Teenagers can develop basic financial skills, including how to set up a budget, pay for higher education, invest, establish long-term goals, build credit, manage credit cards, rent property and pay utilities. Adults can better understand retirement options, refinancing tools and mortgages. There are even tips for newlywed couples to follow and ideas for helping children understand money management.

Teachers can also access coursework materials aligning with state and national financial education standards. Web-based lessons are available for those in grade levels 9-12, and take about six hours to complete. For teens and young adults, understanding basic financial concepts is key to avoiding bad credit that can negatively impact them throughout their lifetimes.

Many Americans are burdened with excessive loans, not taking into account increased life expectancies as they prepare to retire, falling prey to scams, and failing to protect themselves and their assets in the event of an illness. These are tough situations to face, but need to be addressed.

Locally, students from Noblesville High School are preparing for their futures while helping their peers. As overall winners of the statewide high school pitch competition hosted by the Indiana Economic Development Corporation, Indiana Department of Education and Ball State University, team Educaid will receive one year of paid college tuition at a state institution, mentoring services, internship opportunities and $10,000.

After participating in rounds of pitches to a panel of judges from the Indiana entrepreneurial community, Colin Wareham and Jackson Ramey won the competition based off of their board game that teaches marketing and management concepts.

Congratulations, team Educaid! Noblesville is proud of all of you and your innovative idea.

Regardless of your age or circumstances, please take advantage of the free resources provided online at www.in.gov/sos/indianamoneywise. It's never too early or too late to become more financially literate.

Kathy Kreag Richardson is a Republican State Representative from District 29, which includes Noblesville, and has served in the legislature since 1992. She also is the elections administrator for Hamilton County. You may contact her at h29@in.gov.

1 In 3 Americans Is Financially Fragile

DENVER—Research funded by the National Endowment for Financial Education® (NEFE®), and conducted by the Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center at the George Washington University, identifies a widespread problem affecting millions of Americans. The recent study finds one in three Americans are financially fragile, meaning they are unable to cope with emergency expenses in a short timeframe.

Using survey data and focus group discussion findings, researchers assessed responses focused on financial preparedness—specifically respondents' confidence that they could come up with $2,000 within a month's time if needed for an emergency. Individuals answering that they certainly could not or probably not come up with that amount of money in that timeframe are considered financially fragile. The analysis found that one in three (36 percent) respondents in the 2015 National Financial Capability Study (NFCS) fall within this vulnerable group.

"It's inevitable that a person will experience a financial setback or an income disruption during their lifetime," says Billy Hensley, Ph.D., senior director of education at NEFE. "If you're getting money back from Uncle Sam this tax season, consider investing this windfall toward starting or growing an emergency savings fund."

Financially fragile Americans could not cover the cost of a midsize shock, such as a medical bill, car or house repair within a reasonable amount of time, in the case of this study one month. This number has dropped since 2009 during the Great Recession, when nearly 50 percent of working-age adults were considered financially fragile. Still, the prevalence of unsteady personal finances is concerning.

What causes financial fragility? Researchers investigated the causes of financial fragility and found three main factors: high debt, lack of assets, and low financial literacy.

"Financial fragility does not mean simply lack of precautionary savings," says Annamaria Lusardi, Ph.D., academic director of GFLEC. "Both sides of households' balance sheet matter; heavy indebtedness can also make individuals financially fragile."

Higher income does not always protect against financial fragility. Not surprisingly, the majority of financially fragile people are in the low-income bracket. Yet almost 30 percent of middle-income households (annual income in the $50–75k range) and 20 percent of high-income households (annual income $75–100k) also are considered financially fragile.

Financial literacy events later this month at local library branches

Free workshops part of Money Smart Week

MONEY SMART WEEK®

Money Smart Week is April 21-28.

By Joe Veyera, Staff Reporter
4/18/2018 1:22 PM

National Money Smart Week starts April 21, and both the Queen Anne and Magnolia branches of the Seattle Public Library will host several free financial literacy events as part of the thousands to be held across the country.

Jean Cormier of Cormier Insurance will host a "Medicare Made Clear," workshop on April 22, covering the different parts of the federal health insurance program and the pros and cons of each ways to receive benefits. The presentation — which starts at 1 p.m. at the Magnolia branch (2801 34th Ave. W.) — will also include eligibility and enrollment guidelines. Cormier is not affiliated with the Federal Medicare Program.

Identity theft will be the topic of discussion during an April 26 workshop at the Queen Anne branch (400 W. Garfield St.), taught by the Seattle Credit Union. The hour-long program will cover the various types of identity theft, how to prevent it, steps victims can take to recover if they're targeted, and the techniques that thieves use. The event starts at 2 p.m.

The credit union will also host back-to-back events that Saturday afternoon at the Magnolia branch, also beginning at 2 p.m. "Building a Better Budget," will take attendees through the basics of tracking spending and designing a realistic financial plan, along with tips for sticking to that saving strategy. That presentation will be followed by, "The Psychology of Spending," at 3:30 p.m. — with a half-hour break between the two — which covers the factors that influence spending decisions beyond personal preference. Coffee and light refreshments will also be provided.

Registration is not required for any of the events.

Money Smart Week was created by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago more than 15 years ago, to help consumers better manage their personal finances.

For more information on Money Smart Week, go to www.moneysmartweek.org. To learn more about the library programs, visit www.spl.org/event-calendar.

Harper Lee's Will Unsealed

by Morgan Wiener | Holland & Hart LLP

As The New York Times recently reported, the will of Harper Lee, author of To Kill a Mockingbird, was recently unsealed in connection with a lawsuit seeking access to the document. Ms. Lee died a resident of Monroeville, Alabama, and, as in Colorado, wills in Alabama are typically considered to be public documents.

However, the personal representative of Ms. Lee's estate obtained an order from a Monroe County, Alabama probate judge to seal the will after her death in 2016. Ms. Lee closely guarded her privacy during her lifetime, and the personal representative cited concerns about the "potential harassment" of those named in the will as a reason for sealing it; Ms. Lee's family members were also in favor of sealing the will.

Family Conflict Tops the List of Estate Planning Challenges in 2018

by David H. Lenok | wealthmanagement.com

Tax reform is on the tip of everyone's tongue, but not at the top of this list, according to a recent survey.

When the topic of estate planning comes up, talk about taxes is soon to follow. That train is rarely late. Taxes are important, but they aren't what keeps planners up at night in 2018.

2017 Wealth Advisor Confidence Survey

We all have preconceptions of a stereotypical CPA: level-headed, trusted, respected, hates when you ask tax related questions at dinner parties (no?...just me?). Well how about pessimistic? According to a recent survey conducted by The Financial Awareness Foundation and HB Publishing & Marketing Company, LLC, CPAs are statistically more pessimistic than their peers—but that healthy degree of skepticism can be an attribute.

The Wealth Advisor Confidence Survey™ 2018 took the pulse of CFPs, Financial Advisors, Insurance Professionals, and CPAs. Broadly speaking, CPAs were more likely to forecast a recession, predict market corrections in the stock market, and project less optimistic growth for their firm and the growth of their industry as a whole.

But according to Hank Berkowitz, Principal at HB Publishing & Marketing Company, LLC and co-author of the survey, the raw data might point to CPAs being more pessimistic but when put into context CPAs are more in-tune with their clients and in-tune with broader economic indicators than their peers.

“I’d venture to say they [CPAs] are a little more pessimistic about the economy, the financial markets and certainly about tax reform... and that’s why CPAs remain the most trusted advisors for so many clients.”

10% Market Correction

One key indicator surveyed in the study was stock market confidence. On average, 54% of participants noted the high value of the stock market as a key factor that is chipping away at the confidence level of affluent clients.

When asked further about whether or not they predict a 10% or more market correction in the upcoming year, CPAs were more likely to answer yes. The survey was conducted in the fall of 2017 and interestingly enough, the stock market fell by 12% in just two weeks during February 2018.

CPAs were also more pessimistic when it came to broader economic indicators and were more likely to predict a recession (let’s just hope they’re not right about that one as well).

Constant Client Communication

One startling fact about the study was the number of CPAs who are in constant contact with their clients. 2 out of 3 CPAs reported they speak to their clients 2 to 5 times per month on average, compare that with the 29% average of the survey's population.

CPAs are more than twice as likely to stay in contact with their client throughout the year and therefore have a pulse on broader economic outcomes. For example, a CPA with 20 clients in the healthcare sector might notice a 10% drop in sales amongst his clients. Broadly speaking, their pessimism might be borne out of real world examples and not mere headline reading or cocktail party anecdotes.

What are CPAs Talking About?

So, what's the biggest topic of conversation between client's and their CPA? Well according to the survey, CPAs are more likely than any other financial advisor to help clients with college financing plans.

With all the tax incentives for college savings it's no wonder why CPAs are 5 times more likely than any other financial planner to help clients save and pay for college.

Conclusion

Although the data gathered points to CPAs as being more pessimistic, they just might be more realistic than their peers. Also, they are more likely to be in constant communication with their clients and they see trends across several industries. It's no wonder why CPAs remain one of the most trusted type of financial advisors.

1 In 3 Americans Is Financially Fragile

DENVER—Research funded by the National Endowment for Financial Education® (NEFE®), and conducted by the Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center at the George Washington University, identifies a widespread problem affecting millions of Americans. Using survey data and focus group discussion findings, researchers assessed responses focused on financial preparedness—specifically respondents' confidence that they could come up with $2,000 within a month's time if needed for an emergency. Individuals answering that they certainly could not or probably not come up with that amount of money in that timeframe are considered financially fragile. The analysis found that one in three (36 percent) respondents in the 2015 National Financial Capability Study (NFCS) fall within this vulnerable group.

"It's inevitable that a person will experience a financial setback or an income disruption during their lifetime," says Billy Hensley, Ph.D., senior director of education at NEFE. "If you're getting money back from Uncle Sam this tax season, consider investing this windfall toward starting or growing an emergency savings fund."

Financially fragile Americans could not cover the cost of a midsize shock, such as a medical bill, car or house repair within a reasonable amount of time, in the case of this study one month. This number has dropped since 2009 during the Great Recession, when nearly 50 percent of working-age adults were considered financially fragile. Still, the prevalence of unsteady personal finances is concerning.

What causes financial fragility? Researchers investigated the causes of financial fragility and found three main factors: high debt, lack of assets, and low financial literacy.

"Financial fragility does not mean simply lack of precautionary savings," says Annamaria Lusardi, Ph.D., academic director of GFLEC. "Both sides of households' balance sheet matter; heavy indebtedness can also make individuals financially fragile."

Yet almost 30 percent of middle-income households (annual income in the $50–75k range) and 20 percent of high-income households (annual income $75–100k) also are considered financially fragile.

"The contrast of a $2,000 emergency expense in comparison to higher-income levels is striking," says Hensley. "Among lower-income individuals and families, most rely, due to the limits of financial liquidity, on borrowing from their network of friends and family or working multiple jobs. Unfortunately, financially fragile households are less likely to have a precautionary safety net."

Financial fragility and retirement. Financial fragility is shown to make people vulnerable not only in the short term, but also in the long term, as financially fragile individuals are less likely to plan for their retirement.

Fragility impacts all age groups. Financial fragility does not seem to decrease with age. People of all age groups are financially fragile at comparable levels, despite the expectation that people earn more money as they get older.

Education and gender decrease fragility risk. The higher the education level, the lower the probability of being financially fragile. Also at risk are women, a substantially higher proportion of working-age women are financially fragile relative to men.

"Financial fragility is a multifaceted problem facing a wide representation of the American population," says Hensley. "We urge everyone to consider the unique factors in their life and prioritize their finances accordingly to work toward long-term financial goals."

"Initiatives such as incentivizing short-term savings and requiring financial education in school and the workplace can be important steps toward increasing financial resilience," Lusardi adds.

The idea that credit unions can directly counsel and educate members on their personal finances has taken on organizational heft. According to NAFCU, approximately 36% of the 5,689 federally insured U.S. credit unions offered financial counseling and education to members in 2016, and more than 20% offered financial literacy workshops last year.

One notable approach to celebrating financial education this year comes from Philadelphia Federal Credit Union ($1.1B, Philadelphia, PA), whose #StopMoneyShaming campaign encourages locals, including students at Temple University, to use that hashtag to share a money confession and help ease the stigma around talking about financial problems.

Financial Fitness Kits available at libraries, online

Apr 20, 2018

OKLAHOMA CITY - April is National Financial Literacy Month and to celebrate, the Oklahoma JumpStart Coalition is observing Money Smart Week, April 21-28. Helping to promote financial education statewide, the Oklahoma Society of Certified Public Accountants is offering free Financial Fitness Kits through public libraries, including the Hulbert Community Public Library and the Tahlequah Public Library, and online at www.KnowWhatCounts.org.

The OSCPA's free Financial Fitness Kits include sections on establishing a budget, understanding insurance, facing family issues, dealing with taxes, preparing for and overcoming a crisis, avoiding scams and more.

Money Smart Week brings organizations, businesses and schools together to educate Oklahomans about important money issues, and the OSCPA's free Financial Fitness Kits were created to help Oklahomans year-round with a variety of financial issues.

In the "2018 Prosperity Now Scorecard," Oklahoma ranked 45th - out of 51, essentially earning a "D" - in income and financial assets outcome measures that include liquid asset poverty rate, net worth, emergency savings, unbanked and underbanked households, borrowers over 75 percent of their credit card limit, severely delinquent borrowers, consumers with collections, bankruptcy rates and more.

Oklahoma also ranked 44th in health care outcome measures that included uninsured rates, uninsured low-income children, poor or fair health status and more. Oklahoma ranked 45th on education outcome measures that included median student loan debt, four-year degrees, reading and math proficiencies and more. Oklahoma's overall ranking was 40th of 51.

Carr Celebrates April as Financial Literacy Month in Georgia

April 2, 2018

ATLANTA, GA – Governor Nathan Deal has proclaimed April as Financial Literacy Month in Georgia. Accordingly, Attorney General Chris Carr is encouraging Georgians to take advantage of the educational resources available through the Office of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Unit.

"Understanding how to manage your money, make smart purchases and protect your data is key to having greater financial ease and success," said Attorney General Carr. "Georgians can call or visit our Consumer Protection Unit's website to learn more about the resources we have in place to help them with their important financial decisions."

A 2016 Federal Reserve study reported that 44 percent of adults either could not cover an emergency expense costing $400 without borrowing money or selling assets, and the national personal saving rate of disposable personal income was 3.2 percent in January 2018, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce. In addition, student loan debt continues to rise. According to the Institute for College Access and Success, 68 percent of graduating seniors from public and private nonprofit colleges in 2015 had student loan debt, with an average of more than $30,100 per borrower. For Georgia borrowers, the default rate for student loans is 12 percent.

The Office of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Unit developed ConsumerEd.com to help Georgians become savvy consumers. It contains tools and information on saving and investing, creating a budget, understanding your credit score, managing debt, purchasing a home, buying a vehicle and protecting yourself from identity theft. The site also features a blog entitled "Ask Consumer Ed," which answers actual questions on a wide variety of consumer topics. And, for our men and women serving in the military and their families, the Consumer Protection Unit created a free consumer app called "Basic Training," which contains financial information and tools for our military community. To download the app, consumers can go to consumer.georgia.gov/app.

Financial Attitude and Financial Literacy

April 3, 2018 / Lea DeRosa / From the Blog, Money Saving Tips, Personal Finance / 0 comments

April is Financial Literacy Month! There are many aspects of being financially literate, and a significant part of that is your attitude.

Just like all other aspects of your life, your attitude towards your financial situation has a large impact on your finances. Your "financial attitude" goes hand in hand with your "money attitude," as some refer to it.

What is a Money Attitude?

Your money attitude is specifically how you "feel" about money. There tend to be four major categories of money attitudes but it is possible to fall under more than one;

Adoring: It is pretty straightforward. If you adore money, you love to spend it. People who have this attitude tend to be impulse shoppers. He or she often relies on credit and shops because they can. They also tend to get themselves into debt because of this; they don't recognize the fact that swiping your card adds up and they will have to pay it at some point.

Entitled: Those who have an entitled money attitude are the ones who love to show-off. They have the best of everything, regardless of whether or not they can actually afford it. Behind closed doors, it is entirely possible they struggle financially and bare a large financial burden.

Avoidance: An attitude of avoidance isn't about avoiding problems; it's about avoiding the concept of money. This type of person gets stressed/ anxious about money very easily. They count every penny purely out of fear of not having enough. It is a hard attitude to change, but can still have a negative impact on your financial situation.

Cautious: Cautious people are those who are very frugal or "scrooges." They refuse to spend their money on anything that isn't deemed necessary. This can cause them to miss out on opportunities and any sort of enjoyment. They also tend to squeeze everything they can from their budget, but not in a good way.

An investment for the future: Hawaii kids learn about financial literacy

HONOLULU (HawaiiNewsNow) - A campaign to teach the youth of Hawaii and other Pacific islands to save money kicked off Friday in Kalihi.

Students at Princess Victoria Kaiulani Elementary School received money management lessons from Bank of Hawaii volunteers as part of Teach Children to Save Day.

"We know that recycling, saving a nickel a day, a quarter a day all adds up. Letting our students know that these kinds of things, these kinds of practices, these kind of habits, will make a difference in the long run. It needs to start right here," the school's principal Jill Texeira said.

This month, more than 150 bank volunteers went into schools across the state to teach financial literacy. Six Oahu schools and 19 other neighbor island campuses held the program for their students so far.

"We find children that know about saving have a higher propensity to attend college in their later years," Timothy Chang, Sr. VP, Kalihi Market Manager for Bank Of Hawaii said. "We think it's a really good investment in our community."

Across the Pacific, 15 other schools in American Samoa, Guam, Saipan and Palau have also taken part in the campaign.

Financial Literacy Month: The Time Has Come

 3 MINUTE READ

Here's a sentence you may never have expected to read. Dave Ramsey, former President George W. Bush and current President Barack Obama are in complete agreement on an issue of national importance—the need for financial literacy education across all the demographic segments of our population. Thanks to those two presidents, throughout April that vitally important issue will be at the forefront of public awareness during Financial Literacy Month.

The Birth of a Good Idea

President Bush responded to a U.S. Senate resolution and declared April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month as far back as 2003.

President Obama designated April as National Financial Literacy Month in 2010, saying that America's recent financial crisis "was the result of both irresponsible actions on Wall Street and everyday choices on Main Street."

And as millions of Americans already know, Dave has been beating that drum for more than 16 years, aiming his growing clout at the terrible consequences of such a tragic lack of knowledge and awareness.

The Consequences Of Ignorance

It's a long-accepted fact that financial ignorance leads to irresponsible spending, dangerous debt levels and high amounts of stress that can damage relationships, destroy families and deprive individuals of all hope. And yet the antidote for such a destructive poison is so simple. It is education, and the earlier the better!

To be sure, the problem is multi-generational. The Journal of Consumer Affairs recently stated that "Between 1997 and 2007, average undergraduate student loan debt rose from $9,250 to $19,200—a 58% increase after accounting for inflation.

Similarly, a 2006 poll published in USA Today found that 30% of young adults ages 22–29 worry about debt frequently; 29% put off or decided against furthering their education; and 22% took a job they would not have taken otherwise.

At the other end of the spectrum, in 2009 the National Bureau of Economic Research found that "Two groups that stand out from our analysis are the elderly and women; both of them display very low [financial] knowledge."

Confidence and Empowerment for All

Dave wants us all to help make Financial Literacy Month a really big deal. Awareness is the first step toward enlightenment. ## Financial Literacy Month

Today, a majority of consumers are experiencing some sort of financial difficulty causing a significant impact on their everyday lives. In fact, Americans carry more than $2 trillion in consumer debt and 30 percent of consumers report having no extra cash; making it impossible to escape the burden of living paycheck to paycheck.

April has been declared National Financial Literacy Month; and for good reason. Too many Americans are insufficiently educated about their personal finances.

The first and most important step in developing and following a financial plan is to examine your attitudes about money. Are you ready to accept responsibility for changing your financial situation? Do you believe that you can and will change the way you make financial decisions? Can you identify at least one benefit you hope to gain by changing your money management behavior? (<http://www.financialliteracymonth.com/>)

How to Keep a Budget

As soon as you start spending your own money, it's time to start tracking your spending so that you can create and follow a personal budget. Keeping track of expenses, while sometimes tedious, is the best way to find out exactly where your money is going.

The simplest way to keep track of your finances, especially your cash, is the low-tech way, with a notebook and a pen. By carrying around the notebook with you, you can track exactly where every dollar is going—from a small coffee on your way to work to a spending splurge at the mall. If you'd prefer, on a daily or weekly basis, you can transfer your handwritten notes to a computer spreadsheet.

Once you have collected information for about a month, you'll have a good baseline of information to use to create your personal budget. Some major categories that you'll want to include are housing, utilities, insurance, food (groceries and dining out), gasoline, clothing, entertainment, and "other". Using a spreadsheet program (such as Excel), online service, or other personal finance program, add up the expenses that you've been tracking, and then calculate what you'd like to budget for each category. Keep in mind that you'll need to budget for some items, like gifts and automobile repairs, which will be necessary but won't occur every month. You can either create a budget for each individual month, with variances for irregular expenses (e.g., heating expenses which will be higher in winter months, or car repairs and gifts), or a standard monthly budget where you include an average amount for expenses such as car repairs, heating, and gifts.

Your budget should also contain some personal savings amounts for retirement savings, college savings, an emergency fund, long-term savings, and any other savings goals you may have. Don't wait until the end of the month to see what's left – budget for your savings first.

Creating a personal budget is a good first step, but the most important thing is to follow the budget. Make time weekly or monthly to track your spending, and start to see if you are actually keeping to your budget. Using a personal finance program or an online service is probably the easiest way to do this on an ongoing basis, but make sure you continue to track where your cash is going. You may be surprised to find out how the frequent small amounts you spend actually add up to big money.

After tracking your personal budget, you may notice some areas where you'll have to make changes. Don't just increase your budget without considering alternatives. While you may have no choice, if prices or expenses go up, shop for better deals before giving in to the extra expenses.

Financial literacy sessions slated for week of April 23

Sean Yoder
April 20, 2018

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — In early May, most students will be leaving their Penn State campus and looking toward their planned summer events. For many, that includes a summertime job.

The Financial Literacy and Wellness Center at Penn State can help students make the most of the precious dollars they earn over the summer, as well as prompt deeper questions about attitudes toward money and building a life of financial security.

The Financial Literacy and Wellness Center has multiple sessions open to everyone scheduled during April, which is also National Financial Literacy Month.

On Monday, April 23, and Thursday, April 26, the center will be hosting financial literacy overview sessions. Staff will provide information on the importance of financial literacy and how to establish financial freedom. The April 23 sessions are slated for 4 to 5 p.m. and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Business Building Room 110. The April 26 session is scheduled for 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in Outreach Building Room 119.

The center also will be presenting sessions specifically geared toward saving and investing from 4 to 5 p.m. and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on April 25 in Business Building Room 110. Another session will be held from 11 a.m. to noon on April 26 in Outreach Building Room 119.

The saving and investing sessions are open to everyone and will focus on the complex world of saving and investing for the future. No longer can workers rely on company pensions, social security and saved cash for emergencies. Instead, the modern worker will need to take advantage of complex financial products and protect their assets.

For more information and a full list of upcoming events, visit financialliteracy.psu.edu.

April is Financial Literacy Month

Posted Wednesday, April 4th, 2018 by SDSU iGrow
Categorized: Healthy Families, Family & Personal Finance

BROOKINGS, S.D. - In an effort to emphasize the important of financial literacy and teach Americans how to establish and maintain healthy financial habits April is recognized throughout the U.S. as Financial Literacy month.

"Financial literacy is your ability to make sound financial decisions based on your financial knowledge. A high level of financial literacy will improve your financial well-being," said Lorna Saboe-Wounded Head, SDSU Extension Family Resource Management Field Specialist.

Let's celebrate

Throughout the month of April, the Financial Literacy and Education Commission (FLEC) has developed tools and resources designed to encourage consumers to take action to improve their financial well-being. Weekly themes for the month include:

April 1-7, 2018 - Planning
April 8-14, 2018 - Saving
April 15-21, 2018 -Protection through insurance
April 22-30, 2018 - General financial preparedness

To access tools and resources for each theme, visit the USA.gov website.

Information about budgeting, goal setting, tracking spending, retirement, insurance, and credit is available at the Family and Personal Finance community.

Year-round focus

Through her role with SDSU Extension, Saboe-Wounded Head, works with consumer across the state of South Dakota to improve their personal finance skills and knowledge.

Ways she works with South Dakotans to increase their financial literacy include: one-on-one financial counseling, small and large group financial programs, on-line courses, and worksite wellness programs.

April Is National Financial Literacy Month!

By Ayo Mseka

April is National Financial Literacy Month--the perfect time for you to explain to your clients the importance of establishing and maintaining healthy financial habits. Doing so will help them manage their finances more effectively, and hopefully, save enough money to buy your products and services.

In March 2004, the U.S. Senate passed Resolution 316 that officially recognized April as National Financial Literacy Month. Many organizations and business professionals promote the month by holding promotional events and creating educational materials that focus on teaching consumers how to effectively handle money and deal with debt. To support the mission of National Financial Literacy Month, Money Management International, a nonprofit credit and debt counseling firm, has created a microsite featuring a step by step process for improving financial wellness. For more information on how you can help your clients enhance their financial literacy, visit www.FinancialLiteracyMonth.com.

Numerous studies have revealed that financial illiteracy is a major problem in the U.S. Many consumers have enormous personal debt and little or no savings, and often are unaware of the financial consequences of spending irresponsibly. According to an annual survey released recently by the TIAA Institute and the Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center at the George Washington University School of Business, large numbers of Americans do not have the knowledge associated with making financial decisions.

The 2018 TIAA Institute-GFLEC Personal Finance Index (P-Fin Index) reveals that financial literacy is the lowest in the area of comprehending risk, with only 35 percent of questions on risk answered correctly, on average. Given that risk and uncertainty are inherent in most financial decision-making, low knowledge levels of this topic carry implications for Americans' overall financial well-being.

"The annual P-Fin Index provides a deep understanding of the state of financial literacy among U.S. adults," said Stephanie Bell-Rose, Head of the TIAA Institute. "Given the link between financial knowledge and financial outcomes, individuals would clearly benefit from increased financial literacy levels. This is particularly important in an ever-changing financial landscape."

"Less than one in five U.S. adults demonstrated a relatively high level of personal finance knowledge by answering more than 75 percent of the survey questions correctly," said Annamaria Lusardi, Academic Director of GFLEC. "Low levels of financial literacy, among not only the young but also people close to retirement, show we need to step up the effort to promote financial knowledge across the entire population."

Given that risk and uncertainty are inherent in most financial decision-making, low knowledge levels on this topic have implications for Americans' financial well-being.

How's your financial literacy?

Did you know April is Financial Literacy Month? At Marcus by Goldman Sachs®, we'd like to help you be in command of your personal finances. So we surveyed over 1,000 Americans with savings accounts on a variety of topics—including how in the know they are when it comes to their personal savings and general feelings toward their banks. We did this to help us estimate the overall financial literacy of our customers.

Financial literacy starts with having a clear understanding of your financial landscape, which helps you make better decisions about your money.

We'd like to help you save better by increasing your "Savings IQ." Because the more you know, the more you could be saving.

What can you tell us about your savings account?

Have you ever been curious about where your savings stand in comparison to others? While it's recommended that you start by putting at least 10% of your income, or as much as you reasonably can, into your savings, that's not feasible for everyone. Here's how America weighed in:

How much do you have in your savings account?

More than half of our respondents said they have less than $5,000 in their savings accounts today. If you don't have a savings goal or are having trouble hitting yours, start by setting a realistic goal and making a plan to reach it. Start small and learn how to maximize your savings by getting educated about your finances.

Treasury Launches Financial Education Newsletter and Outlines Elements of a Successful Financial Education Program

FROM THE OFFICE OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS

JS-1111

The Treasury Department's Office of Financial Education (OFE) today released the first issue of its on-line, quarterly newsletter, The Treasury Financial Education Messenger. The inaugural issue contains a message from Secretary John Snow stressing the importance of financial education as well as the eight elements of a successful financial education program.

"Financial education is extremely important for all Americans. As the President's Jobs and Growth Plan puts more money into the hands of consumers through lower marginal tax rates, an increased child tax credit, and accelerated marriage penalty relief, Americans have an even greater chance to save, invest, or spend extra money wisely. Yet without access to financial education resources, many people may miss out on this golden opportunity," said Secretary John Snow.

The eight elements of a successful financial education program in this edition of The Messenger offer guidance to financial education organizations as they develop programs and strategies to achieve the greatest impact in their communities. Each element is classified as relating to the program's content, delivery, impact or sustainability.

A successful program...

Content	1. focuses on basic savings, credit management, home ownership and/or retirement planning.
	2. is tailored to its target audience, taking into account its language, culture, age and experience.
Delivery	3. is offered through a local distribution channel that makes effective use of community resources and contacts.
	4. follows up with participants to reinforce the message and ensure that participants are able to apply the skills taught.
Impact	5. establishes specific program goals and uses performance measures to track progress toward meeting those goals.
	6. demonstrates a positive impact on participants' attitudes, knowledge or behavior through testing, surveys or other objective evaluation.
Sustainability	7. can be easily replicated on a local, regional or national basis so as to have broad impact and sustainability.
	8. is built to last as evidenced by factors such as continuing financial support, legislative backing or integration into an established course of instruction.

The Treasury Financial Education Messenger is available online at www.treasury.gov/financialeducation, where visitors can also subscribe to receive future issues of the newsletter by e-mail.

The Department of the Treasury's Office of Financial Education was established in May 2002. The Office of Financial Education is responsible for focusing the department's financial education policymaking, and for ensuring coordination on financial education within the Department and all of its bureaus. The Office of Financial Education serves to provide the Department of the Treasury with expertise on the many complex and interdisciplinary issues involved in financial education, and is able to tap into the Department's wide base of expertise on finance.

U.S. News Money

April 18, 2018, at 12:01 a.m.

Washington, DC — April is Financial Literacy Month, and U.S. News & World Report provides the resources to help consumers brush up on financial skills and knowledge, including understanding credit cards, saving and budgeting in 2018. Stay in the know with tips from U.S. News Personal Finance Editor Susannah Snider's article 8 Scary Financial Statistics – and How to Avoid Becoming One:

1. Keep a rainy day fund: Just 46 percent of Americans have a rainy day fund, even though a robust emergency fund is key to weathering financial downturns, such as job loss, and funding unexpected expenses, such as health care bills. You should have cash reserves on hand for expected but irregular expenses.
2. Co-manage your money responsibly: Among adults who have combined finances in current or previous relationships, 2 out of 5 fess up to committing financial infidelity. An open and honest attitude toward money is important in any relationship with shared finances because it can ensure that you're on track to meet financial goals and are sticking to a shared budget. Couples can use myriad strategies to co-manage their money, from joining every single account to managing everything separately.
3. Know how to use your credit card wisely: Nearly one-third of Americans pay the minimum due on their credit card each month, but paying just the minimum on your credit card balance means you'll pay more in interest. Beyond that, carrying a balance could potentially ding your credit score by maintaining a high utilization rate, typically one of the more important factors in your credit score.

"Building and maintaining your financial literacy can help you make savvy financial choices, avoid predatory money products and choose a trusted financial advisor," Snider said. "At U.S. News Money, we offer expert advice and tips for readers who want to be more comfortable building a spending plan, filing taxes, improving their credit score and reaching other financial goals."

Promoting Financial Literacy

The JumpStart Coalition is the original promoter of April as Financial Literacy Month, which evolved from Youth Financial Literacy Day, introduced by the National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE) nearly two decades ago as an activity of its High School Financial Planning Program.

NEFE turned Financial Literacy Day over to the JumpStart Coalition to promote among its network of national partners and state coalitions. JumpStart Coalition expanded the day and in 2000 when it began promoting April as Financial Literacy for Youth Month and later, simply Financial Literacy Month.

To mark the month the JumpStart Coalition hosts two major events: the Annual Awards Dinner and Financial Literacy Day on Capitol Hill.

Awards Dinner

Each April, the JumpStart Coalition recognizes leadership and outstanding achievement in the effort to advance the financial literacy of students at its annual awards dinner in Washington, DC.

Hill Day

Introduced in 2003, Financial Literacy Day on Capitol Hill – known as “Hill Day” – attracts hundreds of participants. The location of the event alternates between a location on the House of Representatives side and the Senate side of Capitol Hill.

April is Financial Literacy Month, and a great time to get your personal finances on track. Here are a few tips to help you get started.

- Create a budget. The first step toward taking control of your financial life is to find out how much money you take in and how much you spend. Use our budget worksheet to get started.
- Pay yourself first. Consider using a payroll savings plan to automatically deposit a certain amount of money into your savings account each payday.
- Keep credit card use under control. Got a credit card? Remember, incidental purchases add up. Paying only the minimum amount due each month can result in finance charges that quickly make small purchases very costly. Your credit also can take a hit. If possible, pay your full balance every month.
- Protect your personal information. Reduce your risk of identity theft. Here's how: Ask questions before sharing your personal information and know who you're sharing the information with; store and dispose of your personal information securely; and maintain appropriate security on your computers and other electronic devices. While you're at it, check out the warning signs that someone might be using your personal information.
- Order your credit report from annualcreditreport.com. Make sure the information is accurate, complete, and up-to-date before you apply for a mortgage or other loan, buy insurance, or apply for a job. If you find errors, dispute them.
- Learn about your options, and what to expect at the dealership, before you lease or finance a new or used vehicle.
- Comparison shop for home loans and mortgages. A mortgage is a product, just like a car, so the price and terms may be negotiable. You'll want to compare all the costs involved in obtaining a mortgage. Shopping, comparing, and negotiating can save you thousands of dollars.

Please share our resources with friends, family, coworkers, and neighbors. And if you have a financial tip of your own, post it in our Comments section.

It's National Financial Literacy Month!

by Karen Mello, Director of Financial Stability, United Way of Western Connecticut

April is National Financial Literacy month! So, where can you find volunteers with finance backgrounds and expertise, local agencies and businesses as well as area banks all working together to make a difference in the financial literacy of residents in our community? At the Financial Resource Center of United Way of Western Connecticut, that's where. With a mission to improve the financial literacy skills of residents in Northern Fairfield and Southern Litchfield County, the Financial Resource Center (FRC) is already empowering individuals and families toward financial capability.

Thanks to funders such as Bank of America, Newtown Savings Bank, and Wells Fargo, as well as private donors, United Way of Western Connecticut (UWWC) has been able to get the program off the ground and running in 2013 and has already provided one on one financial coaching to over a dozen households. In addition, the FRC held a financial literacy workshop at the Danbury Library and is currently holding a series of workshops at Del-Tron Manufacturing, in Bethel. The most popular topics requested are on budgeting, savings and credit.

Financial literacy education is a need that continues in our communities. In a 2013 Consumer Financial Literacy survey, prepared for The National Foundation for Credit Counseling, 60% of Americans said they do not have a household budget and 78% of Americans say that they could benefit from advice and answers to everyday questions about managing their money. With this in mind, the main objective of the FRC is to reach individuals and families who are working, but living paycheck to paycheck, to give them the added education about personal finances and the support of community resources. "United Way is not only focused on the immediate needs in our community but we also have programs that are focused on creating long term change to help reduce those immediate needs," said George Herring, of Savings Bank of Danbury and Chair of The FRC's Advisory Board. The Advisory Board also includes representatives from Bank of America, Fairfield County Bank, Newtown Savings Bank, Union Savings Bank and Wells Fargo who support the program and its mission by providing guidance, direction and other resources.

In fact, many of the participating banks have recruited financial coaches for the effort and in a short amount of time; the one on one financial coaching aspect of the program has been proven to be successful. Anyone interested in the program is first invited in for an initial screening. At that time, clients are asked to take a short financial literacy quiz and are asked to identify at least one short term financial goal. Clients are then matched up with a volunteer financial coach and will work with that coach for an average of four months to meet their goal, such as developing a household budget, decreasing expenses or debt, or increasing income or savings. "I just needed to see it from a different perspective that is what really helped me the most. My financial coach was able to take my bank statement and reorganize it and lay it all out so I could see where my money was going. That was a huge eye opener for me" said a client of the FRC. Another client of the FRC says "After being denied for two years because I did not qualify, with the assistance offered by United Way's Financial Resource Center and their local program partners, I was finally able to realize my dream to refinance to a lower mortgage interest rate. Every person I met along the way was so kind, encouraging and helpful that the process was a very positive experience, many thanks to all."

In addition, the volunteer financial coaches of the FRC are delighted to be able to share their financial knowledge and skills and remain dedicated to the effort. "My parents taught me at an early age how to manage my money, and this lead to a career in Finance. I'm hoping that as a volunteer financial coach I can give back to others who are struggling with money management issues and share what I have learned, and help them incorporate these skills into their own situation."

It's a community partnership where everybody wins; residents are getting the financial literacy education and support they need, volunteers are finding joy in giving back in their particular area of expertise and the agencies and banks are able to refer their clients to the FRC for financial literacy education and one on one coaching. Each of the clients come to us with a different "financial story", however at the end of the day, it's really all the same; financial education leads to financial empowerment and ultimately financial capability. When our clients tell me how much the FRC has made a difference in their lives, that's when I know we're on the right track.

Financial Literacy Month: The Importance of Investor Education

March 22, 2018 | 5 min read

Share Print

Editor's Note: Follow Lee on Twitter. During each week in April, she'll be sharing education ideas and resources that focus on different aspects of financial literacy.

We all know it's a good idea to regularly check in on our financial plans, making sure we're on track to pursue our goals. Throughout that process, you may also identify areas where you'd like to strengthen your knowledge. According to a recent TD Ameritrade Financial Literacy Survey, more than 3 in 4 investors say the more educated they are about investing, the better equipped they are to manage their money. While a statistic like this shows the positive outcomes that can come out of owning our financial wellness and acumen, finding the time to kick-start the process isn't always on the top of our "to do" lists.

This is where having a yearly reminder comes in handy. In 2004, the U.S. Congress officially recognized April as National Financial Literacy Month as a way to improve knowledge and understanding of financial concepts such as budgeting, handling debt, and making the most of compound interest.

This may be a good time to ask yourself questions that will jump-start the process:

- Are you on the right track with your savings, investing, and retirement planning?
- Are there gaps in your investment knowledge, and do you know where to turn to fill those gaps in your education?
- If you have children, are you teaching them the importance of financial literacy, and are you encouraging them to spend and save wisely?

Spending time answering questions like these will help you set goals for what you'd like to focus on, which is the first step to getting started with education. (We will talk more about the 3 steps to education in early April.)

Investing in the futures

As bankers, financial literacy is dear to our hearts (and our expertise). Because few causes are more important to Tennessee's future prosperity, our foundation sponsors:

- Mini-banks in Junior Achievement model cities in Greater Knoxville, Memphis, Hamblen, Cleveland, Chattanooga and Nashville, where students simulate earning a living and budgeting. General support and volunteerism for Junior Achievement is provided in Northeast Tennessee
- The University of Tennessee Extension's Youth Consumer and Financial Education program that reaches more than 45,000 students across Tennessee annually.
- In Nashville, funded scholarships and mentored women as leaders and professionals through the YWCA and CABLE Connects
- In Chattanooga, the Chamber Education Initiative, where financial institutions work together to develop financial academies in three Hamilton County schools and collaboration with the Partnership for Families, Children and Adults, where the bank sponsors a program called Consumer Credit Counseling
- The Bank On initiative, a network of organizations whose goal is to raise public awareness, target outreach and expand access to financial education.
- Develop strategies to help unbanked customers enter the financial mainstream
- In Knoxville, supports the Knoxville Area Urban League's Homeownership Center Homebuyer Education classes, Foreclosure Counseling, and Financial Fitness classes. Also provides Financial Literacy Classes through HomeSource East Tennessee.
- In Hamblen County, supports the HC*Excell programs for Financial Literacy and workforce development for Public School Students.
- In Jefferson County, supports the Jefferson County Economic Development Oversight Committee, which promotes economic development and new job creation for the county.

Our bank also has trained volunteers who, on their own time, teach identity-theft prevention and spending and credit management courses for adults who need to better understand and control their personal finances.

Because strong communities need solid support structures and healthy job markets, we support:

- Chambers of Commerce in the communities where we do business, with our employees serving in volunteer leadership roles
- A regional economic development initiative spanning the Knoxville/Oak Ridge Innovation Valley that fosters new jobs and economic growth
- The Small Business Resource Center in East Tennessee that offers free information to people interested in starting, operating and owning small businesses.
- Commitment to the Boys & Girls Clubs of the Tennessee Valley for Our Kids, Our Future Capital Campaign in order to serve more kids, more often.
- Commitment to the Boys & Girls Clubs of the Smoky Mountains for their Fulfilling The Dream Capital Campaign to build a Boys & Girls Club facility in Pigeon Forge.
- The Mid-South Minority Business Council's Model Diversity Corporation Initiative, which promotes the purchase of goods and services from minority-owned businesses and establishes best practices in supplier diversity, workforce

Understanding Personal Finances

Common Questions

How do I begin to Invest?

When you invest, you are devoting time, resources and effort to achieve a greater goal. Typically, you will put your money in a brokerage or mutual fund account to buy stocks or bonds in some form, with the idea that you will earn an acceptable return in the future. Learn more.

How much should I save for retirement?

"As much as you can" is the standard advice. Many financial planners recommend that you save 10% to 15% of your income for retirement, starting in your 20s. But that's just a general guideline. A host of factors come into play when determining how much you need to save. Learn more.

Atlanta, GA – April 19, 2018 – In honor of Financial Literacy Month in April, Boys & Girls Clubs of America and Charles Schwab Foundation selected teen Arianna Akinwunmi from Frisco, Texas to serve as the 2018 National Ambassador for the Money Matters financial education program and receive a $5,000 scholarship. Now in its 14th year, the Money Matters program teaches the basics of personal finance and the importance of an early start to financial responsibility.

One in five (22 percent) U.S. teens lack basic financial literacy skills, and the U.S. ranks seventh out of 15 participating countries in the evaluation of 15-year-olds' ability to understand essential financial concepts, according to the Program for International Student Assessment. As the National Money Matters Ambassador, Akinwunmi will advocate for early financial literacy in an effort to help teens across the country expand their knowledge of money management.

Since the program's inception in 2004, more than 850,000 Boys & Girls Club teens have completed Money Matters in more than 1,700 Clubs. The program aims to help young people achieve financial independence and well-being. Through the program, Charles Schwab Foundation has presented more than $550,000 in college scholarship grants to Boys & Girls Club teens who excelled in the program and demonstrated newly acquired personal finance skills.

Akinwunmi, now a high school senior, first became interested in the Money Matters program in fourth grade and completed the course at her Club during her eighth grade year. Since then, she has shared her newfound financial knowledge with other youth at Boys & Girls Clubs of Collin County and throughout the Frisco, Texas community.

Education and Financial Literacy

When people have access to knowledge and expertise, they are more confident, can make better decisions, and generally achieve better outcomes. We apply this approach both in helping customers and in supporting the communities where we live and work.

Our Commitment to Education

Foundational Education

Financial Education

In partnership with established nonprofit organizations and regional school systems, our primary focus is to create volunteer opportunities for our employees that use their insights and experience to help provide students in need with an educational foundation to feel more confident, make smart decisions, and achieve personal and financial goals.

We believe this foundation begins with the basics—a quality education complete with strong analytical and critical thinking skills—delivered in a dynamic setting that helps young people thrive. Long-term success also requires financial education programs focused on key economic and personal finance concepts that enable students to make smart financial decisions, expose them to new learning situations, and expand their career opportunities.

Whether we're mentoring students or teaching them financial concepts, we foster an environment that encourages our employees to share their time and talent throughout the year.

It gives me great pleasure to see Fidelity Investments and its employees taking time to care for the citizens of Salt Lake City, and more specifically giving back to our schools and students in need. They are a true example of what a public-private partnership can do to help our school system thrive.

This Financial Literacy Month, Stay Cash Conscious: You Can Take It to the Bank

Every year, millions of happy customers help Girl Scouts learn financial skills when buying a box (or six!) of tasty Girl Scout Cookies. With these everyday yet important cookie sales transactions, Girl Scouts get valuable lessons in budgeting, financial planning, money management, and so much more.

The Girl Scout Cookie Program is one of the largest, and definitely the most iconic, financial literacy programs available to girls. This beloved program teaches millions of girls the five essential skills that prepare them for leadership, success, and an empowered life. And in 2014, Girl Scouts of the USA amped up the cookie program's innovation and evolution with the launch of the Digital Cookie® platform. This online tool teaches girls how to market and sell cookies via the web and mobile devices. Talk about business skills that are SUPER important in the 21st century! Now in its fourth year, and with Dell's support since 2015, Digital Cookie continues to keep Girl Scout programming current and relevant to today's girls.

So how does all this invaluable financial literacy programming break down? Girl Scouts can earn more than a dozen entrepreneurial Cookie Business badges as part of the Girl Scout Cookie Program. From profit planning to budget management, girls get real hands-on experience running their very own businesses as they show the world their go-getting spirit. But that's just the beginning! Through the Girl Scout Leadership Experience, girls have many more opportunities to gain a higher level of financial prowess with relevant badges available from Daisies to Ambassadors.

Girls can also earn 11 dedicated Financial Literacy badges designed to simulate real-life situations, ensuring girls are poised to budget, save, and spend like a BOSS! You may be shocked to learn that, according to the 2013 report Having It All: Girls and Financial Literacy, a whopping 90 percent of girls say it's important to learn how to manage money, but only 12 percent feel "very confident" making financial decisions. With this alarming stat in mind, it's no wonder that financial management programs are more important now than ever.

FINANCIAL LITERACY 2018 LEGISLATION

The financial world that consumers must navigate has changed significantly and grown more complex, increasing the need for financial literacy and raising questions regarding consumers' financial capability.

Financial literacy focuses on the specific knowledge and concepts consumers need to manage their money and build wealth, depending on an individual's situation. It may mean learning how to create and manage a household budget, learning how to invest money for retirement, or participating in one-on-one coaching and counseling to determine how to buy a house or start a business. It also can be part of an overall strategy to increase economic security for lower-income families.

Financial literacy is one factor in the larger analysis of the financial capability of consumers, which is the broader picture of how consumers manage their resources and how they use their financial literacy to make financial decisions.

Twenty-nine states and Puerto Rico have financial literacy legislation in the 2018 session.

Arizona enacted legislation to instruct the superintendent of Public Instruction (SPI) to establish a State Seal of Personal Finance Proficiency Program to recognize public school graduates who have attained a high level of proficiency in personal finance. Colorado created a voluntary contribution designation benefitting the Young Americans Center for Financial Education Fund that appears on the state individual tax return forms. Florida required child transition plans to address financial literacy by providing specified information. The transition plan must address specific options for the child to use in obtaining services, including housing, health insurance, education, financial literacy, a driver license, and workforce support and employment services.

Iowa added a one-half unit of personal finance literacy requirement as a condition of graduation. Kansas provided compensation for a person who was wrongfully convicted and imprisoned; included the awarding of tuition and personal finance literacy assistance and participation in the state health care benefits program. Kentucky a requirement to attend a financial literacy course as a high school graduation requirement; directs the Kentucky Board of Education to promulgate administrative regulations establishing academic standards for the financial literacy course; directs the Department of Education to develop curricula, materials, and guidelines which may be used by schools for the financial literacy course. Louisiana enacted R.S. 17:270 and 3996(B)(45), and repealed R.S. 17:282.3, relative to required courses of instruction; provides relative to required instruction in personal financial management; required that certain public high school students receive specified instruction in personal financial management as a prerequisite to graduation.

Maryland required the Department of Human Services to identify a representative payee or fiduciary for a child in the Department's custody; required the Department, when serving as the representative payee or in any other fiduciary capacity for a child, to provide certain notice to the child, through the child's attorney, of certain actions taken with respect to certain benefits for the child. Puerto Rico amended the Act of the Department of Education for the purpose of imposing the obligation to the Department of Education to include in the curriculum topics the management of finances, in coordination with the Institute of Financial Education in Puerto Rico. Utah modified the public education code regarding educator licensing and provisions regarding financial literacy course instruction.

Delaware designated the week of April 23, 2018, as "Teach Children to Save Week" in Delaware and encouraged all citizens to teach their children to save. Florida recognized April 2018 as "Financial Literacy Month." New Mexico adopted resolutions requesting the secretary of children, youth and families to convene a task force to study and recommend concrete policy changes that could be implemented to provide youth in foster care access to bank accounts and to provide youth in foster care or who are currently receiving voluntary services from the children, youth and families department financial literacy and money management education. Michigan declared April 2018 as Financial Literacy Month and April 21-28, 2018, as Money Smart Week in the state of Michigan. Rhode Island proclaimed the month of April 2018, to be "Financial Literacy Month" in the state of Rhode Island.

FINANCIAL LITERACY FOR PROFESSIONAL ATHLETES

Financial Challenges Among Retired Professional Athletes

Financial problems are common among professional athletes, as many professional athletes lack the skills necessary to effectively manage their personal finances. Our research shows that athletes start declaring bankruptcy as early as two years after the end of their athletic careers and 16% of NFL players will go bankrupt within the twelve years following retirement. Conducting research relating to the NFL and NBA, GFLEC highlighted financial issues among professional athletes and is working to create effective solutions for this group.

Our Findings About NFL Players

$3.2 million
the median income of an NFL player

16% of NFL players will go bankrupt
within 12 years of retirement

$30k
the average yearly pension of NFL players at age 55

NFL Research Highlights

- Regardless of total wealth accumulation during their careers, many NFL players go bankrupt.
- One out of six NFL players will file for bankruptcy during retirement.
- Bankruptcy filings start as early as two years after retirement.
- NFL stars or long-term players have the same risk of bankruptcy as any other NFL players.
- Retired players are a vulnerable group and are an important target for money management programs designed to ensure successful retirement transitions.

HOW TO PARTICIPATE IN FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH

06 MAR HOW TO PARTICIPATE IN FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH

Posted at 09:00h in Blog by Carina Wingel · 0 Comments · 0 Likes · Share

Last month we talked about national nutrition month (See the post here.) How is that going for everyone? Be sure to share your results on the nutrition blog article at the end of the month!

April is financial literacy month – which makes sense considering the tax deadline April 18th. Since everyone in business deals with finances to some degree, it's really easy to participate.

Here are a few ideas we came up with (and plan on practicing ourselves!)

This month is the perfect opportunity for media companies to get creative when it comes to finding advertisers for content marketing or native advertising. Think beyond banks and real estate agencies to business like wedding planners, travel agencies or even school districts!

All of these businesses have financial advice they could give about paying for a wedding, planning a trip or saving for college. This native ad we did for the Honesdale National Bank is the perfect example of a financial-themed native ad.

FINANCIAL LITERACY INITIATIVE

NACDD believes that people with developmental disabilities should be in charge of their own finances, to the degree to which they are capable, and deserve the training and opportunity to do so. NACDD is setting the stage for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities to better understand and carry out their financial responsibilities, as well as how to take charge of their financial future.

By increasing knowledge among DD Councils on the topic of financial literacy for people with developmental disabilities, NACDD is exploring making this topic a national initiative in collaboration with the National Disability Institute (NDI), Consumer Educational Services Inc. (CESI), Autistic Self-Advocacy Network (ASAN), Self-Advocates Becoming Empowered (SABE), the National Youth Leadership Network (NYLNL) and the Sibling Leadership Network (SLN).

The Case for High School Financial Literacy

Why High Schools?

Personal finance education should start early at both home and school. Ideally, personal finance concepts should be taught in elementary, middle and high school, and should continue into college. In mathematics, you start with counting, move on to addition and subtraction, and then move on to division and multiplication. You need to learn letters before you can read. Personal finance education should be a cumulative process, with age-appropriate topics taught each school year. The reality is that many states and school districts do not provide any substantive personal finance education until high school, if at all.

The basics of personal financial planning-teaching young people about money, its value, how to save, invest and spend, and how not to waste it-should be taught in school as early as elementary school. But too many school districts teach personal finance for the first and only time in high school.

According to the National Center for Education Statistics, in 2015, 69% of students enrolled in college in the fall immediately following high school completion.<sup>1</sup> That means that about 31% of students are likely entering the workforce after high school. For those graduates who choose to go on to higher education, personal finance education in college is often scant and scattered, with few colleges offering a personal finance elective and even fewer requiring personal finance instruction as a graduation requirement. Regardless of when a young person's formal education ends, they will be thrust into situations where they need to know how to manage daily living expenses. So, high school seems like the best and most logical place to deliver personal finance education to America's youth.

Admittedly, a high school focus could omit some of the students who have dropped out of high school. The National Center for Education Statistics indicates that the high school dropout rate (the percentage of people ages 16 through 24 who are not enrolled in school and have not earned a high school credential) was about 6% in 2015.<sup>2</sup>

The Center's High School Report Card focuses on each state's financial literacy education policy because that data is obtainable. It is very hard to measure the amount and intensity of personal finance instruction that is occurring in people's homes, and meaningful data on this topic is hard to obtain for the thousands of elementary and middle schools across the country. Definitive college data is equally hard to find in this area. However, a lot of great things are happening in our colleges and universities as well as our elementary and middle schools. In the section of this report entitled "Extra Credit: State Policies and Programs That Are Making a Difference," we attempt to give you a small sampling of the many state initiatives that are trying to bring personal finance concepts to K-8 children and to young adults in college or the workplace.

The Case for High School Financial Literacy

Personal finance education in high school provides students with the knowledge and skills to manage financial resources effectively for a lifetime of financial well-being. Here are just some of the reasons our young people need to learn about personal finance:

- The number of financial decisions an individual must make continues to increase, and the variety and complexity of financial products continues to grow. Young people often do not understand debit and credit cards, mortgages, banking, investment and insurance products and services, payday lending, rent-to-own products, credit reports, credit scores, etc.
- Many students do not understand that one of the most important financial decisions they will make in their lives is choosing whether they should go to college after high school, and if they decide to pursue additional education, what field to specialize in.
- Kids are not learning about personal finance at home. A 2017 T. Rowe Price Survey noted that 69% of parents have some reluctance about discussing financial matters with their kids.<sup>3</sup> In fact, parents are nearly as uncomfortable talking to their children about sex as they are about money. Only 23% of kids surveyed indicated that they talk to their parents frequently about money, and 35% stated that their parents are uncomfortable talking to them about money.
- On an international financial literacy test of 15-year-olds, the U.S. ranked 7th out of 15 countries, trailing China, Canada, Russia and Australia, and was just slightly better than Poland—what a “Sputnik moment.”<sup>4</sup>
- A 2016 survey indicated that only 31% of young Americans (ages 18 to 26) agreed that their high school education did a good job of teaching them healthy financial habits.<sup>5</sup>
- Most college students borrow to finance their education, yet they often do so without fully understanding how much debt is appropriate for their education or the connection between their area of study and the income level that they can expect upon graduation. Many students attend college without understanding financial aid, loans, debt, credit, inflation, budgeting and credit scores.
- At many colleges, financial literacy education is largely composed of brief, federally mandated entrance and exit loan counseling for students. Student feedback indicates that most do not comprehend the information presented, and view it as one more requirement of the financial aid process rather than a learning opportunity.
- Student debt can be very high for some recent college graduates and large debt variations exist from state to state. According to a recent study of 2016 four-year public and private college graduates, these students left college with average student debt that ranged from a low of $20,000 in Utah to a high of $36,350 in New Hampshire. The percent of these students graduating with debt ranged from a low of 43% in Utah to a high of 77% in West Virginia.<sup>6</sup> According to the U.S. Department of Education, 11.5% of students who graduated from college in 2014 have loans in default.<sup>7</sup>
- Employee pension plans are disappearing and being replaced by defined contribution retirement programs, which impose greater responsibilities on young adults to save and invest, and ultimately spend retirement savings wisely. If they fail to do this, they could become a significant economic burden on our society.
- A 2014 study indicated that only 24% of Millennials (ages 18 to 34) surveyed could answer four out of five questions correctly in a financial literacy quiz.<sup>8</sup> By comparison, 48% of Baby Boomers (born between 1946 and 1962) were able to answer four out of five correctly. While Boomers should be more knowledgeable, our young citizens are dangerously illiterate in this area.
- Credit scores are a difficult concept for many young adults. The economic cost of low (or no) credit score is very high. One's credit score and borrowing history impacts one's daily life: applying for a credit card, purchasing a home or car, renting an apartment, buying insurance, signing up for certain utilities, and even getting a new job. Having an excellent credit score could save a consumer in excess of a $100,000 in interest payments over a lifetime (see: Credit.com's Lifetime Cost of Debt Calculator).

Financial literacy leads to better personal finance behavior. There are a variety of studies that indicate that individuals with higher levels of financial literacy make better personal finance decisions. Those who are financially illiterate are less likely to have a checking account, rainy day emergency fund or retirement plan, or to own stocks. They are also more likely to use payday loans, pay only the minimum amount owed on their credit cards, have high-cost mortgages, and have higher debt and credit delinquency levels.

As a society, we need more training programs that increase the number of financially literate citizens who are able to make better and wiser financial decisions in their own lives. Such programs are not just good for the individual but also helpful to society. The 2008 financial crisis clearly shows that poor financial decisions by individuals had negative consequences on our country.

About The Financial Awareness Foundation

The Financial Awareness Foundation, is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization; our mission is to significantly help solve a major social problem dealing with the lack of financial awareness and financial literacy. The Foundation serves as a nonpolitical "financial awareness advocate" for the general public – rich to poor, the financial service and nonprofits professionals and their organizations, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers. We believe that teaching financial awareness, financial literacy and the essential principles to smart personal financial management – the foundation to personal finance knowledge – are very important as this gives people the tools of empowerment to:

- Make better informed and productive everyday money decisions
- Save time and money with their financial advisers and service providers
- Have the best opportunities to reach and maintain their personal / family financial dreams
- Enjoy a financially secure debt free future
- Advance their legacy

7th Annual Financial Literacy Art Contest rewards students with $9,500 in scholarships

By Mark Cavitt, mcavitt@digitalfirstmedia.com, @MarkCavitt on Twitter, Oakland County Treasurer Andy Meisner is continuing a program that rewards students

Tuesday, April 17, 2018

The Annual Financial Literacy Art Contest allows county high school students to submit original artwork and videos that promote financial literacy in order to compete for scholarships that range from $100 to $1,000.

This year, $9,500 worth of scholarships were handed out to 24 students from Avondale, Bloomfield Hills, Brandon, Clarenceville, Lake Orion, Pontiac, Rochester, Southfield and Troy. The contest has awarded over $70,000 in scholarships over the last seven years.

Meisner said promoting financial literacy and education is a personal passion and primary focus of his office.

"The art contest is one of the most effective and enjoyable ways in which we accomplish that mission," said Meisner. "It is a real pleasure to honor these student-artists from across Oakland County and see their creative perspectives on financial themes."

The students will be honored at a reception and art show on April 18 at the Flagstar Strand Theatre in downtown Pontiac. The artwork will also be displayed at Meisner's office for one year and included in an online art gallery on the his website.

The grand prize winners from each grade level received $1,000 scholarship while the others received $100, $250, $500 and $750 scholarships.

This year's grand prize winners include:

- 9th Grade: Seoyeon Choo, Rochester Adams High School, "Desperation to Disperse Student Loans" (pencil)
- 10th Grade: Emma Mackela, Lake Orion High School, "New Horizons" (pencil)
- 11th Grade: Christine Cho, Rochester Adams High School, "Welcome to the Dark Side" (pencil)
- 12th Grade: Olivia Barone, Stoney Creek High School, "Don't Bet on Jet" (video)

National Financial Literacy Month

April is National Financial Literacy Month. The month-long initiative offers an opportunity for individuals to learn about finances and effective strategies to better their overall financial situation. The effort started in 2003 when the U. S. Senate declared the month of April as Financial Literacy Month.

The purpose and mission of The University of Memphis' Student Financial Aid Office is to help students achieve their educational goals by providing and informing them of any and all financial resources that they are eligible to receive. We are also committed to providing guidance and resources when it comes to financial literacy.

Financial literacy involves being able to understand and make the proper decisions in managing personal finances. Whether creating and/or managing a budget, taking on and paying down debt, saving for and paying for college, it's important to have the knowledge and skills in order to make the right decisions. Knowing and managing your personal finances now will save you a lot of trouble and anxiety while you are in school and later on in life.

YOUR MONEY YOUR FUTURE

These 10 states do the best job of teaching kids about money

- 24 states require students to receive personal finance education either through a separate class or as part of another course.
- A 2014 study by researchers at the Federal Reserve suggests that such instruction is effective in reducing debt delinquency and boosting credit scores.

When high school graduates toss their caps in the air this spring, they probably won't be thinking about grownup financial issues.

Yet, whether heading off to college or diving straight into the workforce, these teens will find themselves suddenly navigating the complicated world of adult money matters. They could be trying to grasp the terms of their student loan or feeling bewildered by exactly what credit is and why it matters.

"There's a variety of financial concepts they should know," said John Pelletier, director of the Champlain College Center for Financial Literacy in Burlington, Vermont.

"Do we only want people to learn about these things by experience and mistakes, or do we want to help them learn in advance so they don't make mistakes that harm them?" Pelletier said.

As part of the center's shout-out to Financial Literacy Month, which ends April 30, the center released a list of the top 10 states that do the best job of providing personal finance instruction to their high school students (below). The ranking is based on the center's 2017 National Report Card on the topic.

Best states for personal finance education in high school

Rank 	State 	Grade
1	Utah	A+
3	Missouri	A
4	Tennessee	A
5	Virginia	A
6	Florida	B+
7	Illinois	B+
8	West Virginia	B+
9	Georgia	B+
10	Maryland	B

Source: Champlain College Center for Financial Literacy

As it stands, 24 states mandate personal finance education, either through a separate class or as part of another course, according to the report card.

And while parents could be teaching some of these topics at home, it appears their efforts are lacking.

About 44 percent of parents are "extremely reluctant" to discuss money with their kids, and 76 percent of children say their parents sometimes confuse them when talking about money, according to a 2017 T. Rowe Price survey.

A separate report from the National Foundation for Credit Counseling found 42 percent of adults gave themselves a C, D or F grade regarding their personal finance knowledge.

Rating the states on personal finance education

Grade 	Share
A	Five states (10%)
B (15+ hours of instruction)	Six states (12%)
B (under 15 hours of instruction/hours can't be estimated)	13 states (26%)
C	12 states (24%)
D	Four states (8%)
F	11 states (22%)

Source: Champlain College Center for Financial Literacy's 2017 National Report Card

"Adults struggle mightily with personal finance," Pelletier said. "The idea that parents are teaching it to their kids at home is wrong."

There is some evidence that mandating such courses in high school works. Students required to study personal finance boasted better credit scores and lower debt delinquency rates as young adults, according to a 2014 study from researchers at the Federal Reserve.

The only state that earns an A+ grade from the Champlain Center's top 10 list is Utah. High school students there must take a half-year course dedicated to personal finance and then take an end-of-year exam, administered by the state, to test their knowledge.

Fredonia students sweep top three in regional MoneySKILL Mania competition

By Matthew Biddle

Release Date: April 16, 2018

BUFFALO, N.Y. — It was a clean sweep for Fredonia High School in this year's MoneySKILL® Mania financial literacy competition, sponsored by the University at Buffalo School of Management and M&T Bank in high schools across Western New York.

Kevin Seybold bested nearly 1,000 students in the 11th annual competition, which tests students' proficiency with basic money management concepts, including budgeting, income, credit and insurance. As the top-scoring student, Seybold won an Apple iPad.

Coming in second and third, respectively, were Travis Langworthy and Glen Bennett, who each received $250 for college savings. As the teacher for the top-three students, Laura DePue won a $100 gift certificate to the UB Center for the Arts.

This year, teachers from 22 public and private schools, as well as five career and technical centers, played MoneySKILL Mania in their classrooms, representing six Western New York counties: Allegany, Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Erie, Genesee and Niagara. The highest scoring student from each participating school won a $50 Amazon gift card.

529 Tips

529 Facts For Financial Literacy Month

Share

April is designated Financial Literacy Month. When you're thinking of saving for your children's future higher education costs, there's a lot of information to sort through. To help, Ohio's 529 Plan, CollegeAdvantage, answers the most frequently asked questions about these tax-advantaged college savings programs.

529 plans can be used nationwide

Just because you are placing your college savings in Ohio's 529 Plan, CollegeAdvantage, that doesn't mean your child must attend a post-secondary school in Ohio. The funds in your 529 account can be used at any federally accredited institution nationwide. If the school has a Federal School Code on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), then withdrawals for the qualified higher education expenses at that school will be tax free.

529 plans are created to be used at any federally accredited educational institutions – whether for a two-year, four-year, graduate or professional degree, or any other post-secondary credential. This list includes community colleges, vocational or trade schools, graduate schools, and even some study-abroad programs.

When filling in FAFSA, the 529 account is considered an asset. When owned by a parent, the funds in a 529 plan are only assessed at a maximum of 5.64% of its value. For lower-income families, this percentage rate could be lower.

Federal student aid is available in a variety of forms. Need-based federal financial aid is typically offered in the form of grants, loans or work-study. With Pell Grants, this aid given to a student will not have to be repaid. Federally subsidized student loans and parental loans must be repaid after college with interest by either the student or you. Work-study programs allow enrolled students to work part-time to earn money for some college costs. Make sure you understand what type of aid is being offered to see whether or not you will have to repay it with accrued interest.

Another reason to fill out FAFSA: Other organizations — like states, universities, colleges, and private organizations — also use it to determine what institutional scholarships or loans to offer to students interested in attending their school.

529 plans designed to work with scholarships

Your Ohio's 529 Plan account is still an important component of your college-saving strategy even if your child does earn a scholarship. Very few scholarships cover 100% of the costs; for instance, a scholarship may only cover the cost of tuition. A 529 plan is perfect for filling any gaps with other qualified expenses such as: room and board during any academic period the beneficiary is enrolled at least half-time; mandatory fees; computer equipment and related technology and services; books; supplies; and equipment required for enrollment or attendance; and certain expenses for a special-needs student.

And if my child decides not to go to college?

You always have access to the money you have saved in a 529 plan. Hold onto to the account to see if your child rethinks the decision. There are no time limits for when a 529 account must be used. Let the 529 plan sit and watch the tax-free earnings continue to grow. If not, you can transfer the funds to any member of the family of your beneficiary, including yourself, without any tax consequences.

Financial Literacy

The State Superintendent highlights supplemental resources to help parents, students, and educators ensure that California's next generation of consumers are financially responsible.

Superintendent Torlakson believes that young people need to be equipped with the skills and knowledge that allow them to be savvy consumers and competent managers of their own finances. To that end, he is launching a financial literacy awareness campaign. The goal of this initiative is to provide schools, teachers, students and parents with access to supplemental resources that can help students develop a keen understanding of responsible money management and increase their overall financial literacy. The California Department of Education is partnering with financial institutions, consumer groups, and other government agencies in this effort.

Enhancing Student Financial Education

Today's graduate and undergraduate students are in a much different place financially than previous generations of students. In 2012, total student debt for the first time exceeded $1 trillion and is now over $1.3 trillion. Rising debt levels can cause some students to defer graduate study or to decide that a graduate degree is not for them. At a time when public funding for education is decreasing and student debt is rising, more students are taking on debt to support their educational aspirations.

To help students learn how to successfully manage their finances and educational costs, the Council of Graduate Schools, funded by a grant from TIAA, a leading financial services organization with a long history of serving those in the academic, research, medical and cultural fields, launched a three-year project to enhance the financial literacy of graduate and undergraduate students.

Project Goals

Participating colleges and universities designed programs that prepare students to play an active role in managing their personal finances and making informed decisions about saving, spending, and borrowing. The institutions addressed the needs of different groups of students, while considering factors such as their field of study, degree levels, and chosen career pathways, each of which has significant financial ramifications. CGS and partnering institutions collected and analyzed data to inform the development of innovative, new tools and resources for students.

Key lessons and data from this groundbreaking program are available in the report: "Financial Education: Developing High Impact Programs for Graduate and Undergraduate Students," available in PDF and at studentfinancialsuccess.org. Through this initiative, CGS and partnering universities developed and delivered high quality financial literacy programs, assessed the impact of those programs, and documented best practices. Financial Education illustrates these efforts in-depth and provides diverse and innovative models and practical resources for helping produce and shape effective student financial education programs. This book will be of particular interest to graduate deans, financial aid officers, program directors, and faculty who are interested in understanding the financial circumstances and meeting the needs of today's graduate students. Hard copies of this report are available to CGS members and non-members for purchase here.

GradSense

CGS has developed GradSense.org, a unique online education platform that provides students with financial information about a range of topics including the value of pursuing an advanced degree. Through interactive visualization tools and engaging infographics, we invite students to better understand a variety of issues related to borrowing and spending, potential future earnings, and money management.

Financial Literacy and Personal Finance

Published: 4/30/2016 1:43 PM

The Kentucky Department of Education has created this web page to provide resources to all schools in Kentucky concerning financial literacy and personal finance.

Financial literacy is incorporated in the Practical Living/Vocational Studies program, beginning at the primary level and continuing all the way through high school. It is also important to make connections between financial literacy and the economics subdomain of the social studies standards where possible and appropriate.

CARE Program – CARE is a free financial literacy program which makes bankruptcy professionals available to educators, students and the public to illuminate the dangers of credit abuse. CARE has a presence in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy – JumpStart is a national coalition of organizations dedicated to improving the financial literacy of kindergarten through college-age youth by providing advocacy, research, standards and educational resources. JumpStart strives to prepare youth for life-long successful financial decision-making.

Kentucky JumpStart – The Kentucky JumpStart Coalition believes that all Kentuckians need to have the financial literacy necessary to make informed financial decisions and seeks to improve money management skills throughout the lifecycle of Kentuckians.

The National Council on Economic Education – The National Council on Economic Education (NCEE) is a nationwide network that leads in promoting economic literacy with students and their teachers. NCEE's mission is to help students develop the real-life skills they need to succeed: to be able to think and choose responsibly as consumers, savers, investors, citizens, members of the workforce, and effective participants in a global economy.

ECONOMIC EDUCATION/FINANCIAL LITERACY

Economic education/financial literacy is the integration of various factors relating to personal financial management including: understanding financial institutions; using money; learning to manage personal assets and liabilities; creating budgets; and any other factors that may assist an individual in this commonwealth to be financially responsible.

Every educator, regardless of grade level or content area, can help prepare our young people to navigate the increasingly complex financial marketplace and make informed decisions about their money. The Pennsylvania Department of Education is committed to having every student in Pennsylvania graduate as an active and engaged citizen with knowledge and skills to be gainfully employed and make intelligent financial decisions for the future of Pennsylvania and the nation. Current academic standards encourage integration of financial education into the existing curricula.

ECONOMIC EDUCATION/FINANCIAL LITERACY ACADEMIC STANDARDS

Pennsylvania Academic Standards describe what students should know and be able to do at specific points in time. The standards increase in complexity and sophistication as students' progress through school. The academic standards serve as a framework from which districts develop their specific curriculum.

The Pennsylvania Academic Standards are part of the Standards Aligned System \(SAS\). SAS is the Pennsylvania Department of Education's digital curriculum and instruction resource site. SAS is comprised of six distinct elements which provide a common framework for continuous student, teacher, and school and district growth. The elements are Standards, Assessment, Curriculum Framework, Instruction, Materials and Resources, and Safe and Supportive Schools. Available on SAS are resources for teaching and developing high quality economic education/financial literacy programs. The Pennsylvania Academic Standards, which can be found on SAS, that relate to economic education/financial literacy are:

- Business, Computer and Information Technology
- Career Education and Work
- Economics
- Family Consumer Science

CERTIFICATION

Certification and Staffing Policy Guidelines \(CSPG\) that pertain to economic education/financial literacy certification, and course assignment include: CSPG 33 - Business, Computer and Information Technology; CSPG 35 - Citizenship Education; CSPG 44 - Family and Consumer Sciences; CSPG 49 - Marketing/Distributive Education; CSPG 50 - Mathematics; and CSPG 59 - Social Studies.

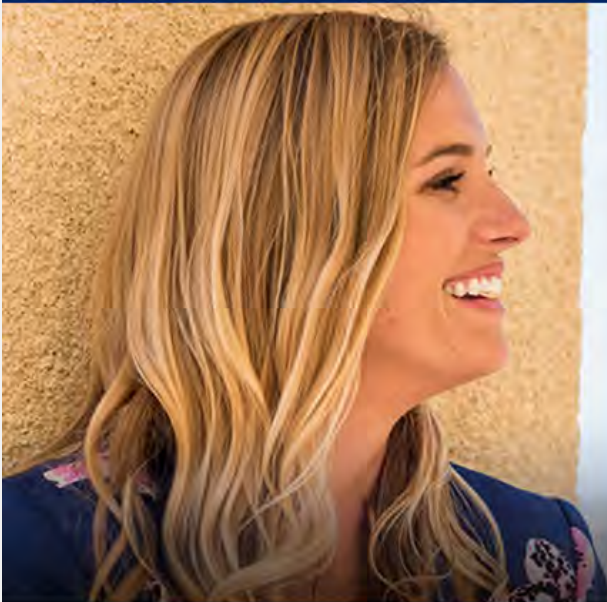

Questions regarding certification requirements should be directed to the Pennsylvania Department of Education's Bureau of School Leadership and Teacher Quality.

Financial Literacy Guide for Kids, Teens and Students

Introduction

We make decisions about money every day. Whether it's choosing a gift for someone or deciding how much to spend on a new phone, opportunities to manage our money are all around us. Unfortunately, sometimes we don't have the financial literacy or good knowledge about money to make the best decisions. In fact, many Americans, especially young people, don't have the necessary skills when it comes to money, and as many as 1 in 5 lack even the most basic knowledge about finances. Compared with other countries, American students do not rank well. But this isn't because students don't want to learn. About 83 percent of students think financial literacy should be mandatory, and over 92 percent of teachers think that financial literacy should be taught in schools.

This financial literacy guide can help everyone learn more, especially students in grades five through 12. The first section will provide some general information on financial literacy. The guide will then look at different resources for financial literacy for students in elementary school, middle school and high school. Then it will list helpful personal finance apps that teach about financial literacy; how to budget, save and spend; and how to have fun doing it.

Global Education Initiative

Launched in 2008, over the first 5 years the Global Education Initiative targeted school-aged children in selected countries throughout Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Latin America and the Asia-Pacific region. Between 2008-2014, the Initiative developed strong partnerships whose programs reached over 100,000 students in over 400 schools in 38 countries. More than 16,000 teachers were trained in subjects ranging from Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) and IT to child-friendly teaching methodologies.

Based on this success, in 2014 Credit Suisse launched a Signature Program focusing on Financial Education for Girls. Aiming to increase both the financial capability of girls and their awareness of their social and economic rights, the program strives to empower the next generation of women to achieve better futures for themselves and their communities. Between 2014-2017 this program was delivered by our partners Plan International and Aflatoun International. Nearly 100,000 girls received financial education and life skills education in selected regions of Brazil, China, India and Rwanda.

Money Matters

The Financial Literacy Initiative at Dartmouth College

A project of the Center for Mathematics and Quantitative Education at Dartmouth and the Financial Literacy Center.

The Financial Literacy Initiative at Dartmouth College advocates a quantitative approach to financial literacy for college students, K-12 students, future teachers and adult learners. The initiative supports this approach through contextually rich curriculum modules for classroom use, short video presentations for faculty development or classroom discussion, and case studies. All materials are freely available through online publication. Links to these are found below.

A joint center of the RAND Corporation, Dartmouth College, and the Wharton School

Modules:

A series of ten quantitative modules allows you and your students or workshop participants to explore the financial aspects of earning, spending, saving and investing. Each module includes an online slide presentation including videos and useful links. The presentation is supported by a set of online instructor notes suggesting activities, exercises, discussion questions and directions for further study or research. Also available online are spreadsheets and worksheets for students (and instructors) to use. Each module also has an associated case study which may be downloaded below.

Modules may be used flexibly in conjunction with a variety of courses. They may be used independently to support an entire course, with student activities supporting about four classroom hours of work plus independent assignments. Alternatively they may be included as part of a course emphasizing developmental mathematics, quantitative literacy, college algebra, or financial literacy.

Go To Modules

Case Studies:

Download Case Studies

Basic Mathematics through Financial Literacy:

This text is intended to be the basis for an alternative basic mathematics course based on real financial decisions everyone will have to make. A large proportion of entering college students are required to take and pass such a course as prerequisite to college level subjects. Largely a review of elementary and high school mathematics, this course is known to have limited success as a conduit to college. Financial literacy provides an entry point to the same material that benefits from its relevance to daily life.

The text may be obtained here.

Video presentations for faculty development and classroom discussion:

Seven videos support faculty development and discussion. Four short videos support presentations and discussions about how financial literacy topics fit naturally into a quantitative reasoning course. Three more short case studies provide an opportunity to look at specific financial scenarios.

PISA 2015 Results – Students’ Financial Literacy Volume IV–

“Basic financial literacy is an essential life skill. Individuals make financial decisions for themselves at all ages: from children deciding how to spend their pocket money to teenagers entering the world of work, from young adults purchasing their first home to older adults managing their retirement savings. Financial literacy helps individuals to navigate these decisions and strengthens their financial well-being. In this spirit, it also promotes inclusive growth and more resilient financial systems and economies.

For the second time, the latest edition of the OECD’s Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) – which serves as the world’s premier yardstick for evaluating the quality, equity and efficiency of school systems – assessed the financial literacy of 15-year-old students. In particular, it examined their capacity to apply their financial knowledge and skills to real-life situations involving financial issues and decisions.

The results call for greater investments in financial literacy from a young age. Students performing at the highest levels of proficiency in financial literacy are more likely than lower-performing students to be oriented towards saving, to expect to complete a university education, and to work in a high-skilled occupation. This suggests that financially literate students may be better able to recognise the value of investing in their human and financial capital.

But PISA 2015 data show that far too many students around the world are failing to attain a baseline level of proficiency. Even in countries and economies that perform at or above the OECD average – including Australia, Italy, the Netherlands, Poland and the United States – at least one fifth of students perform below the baseline level of proficiency. This means that these students cannot even recognise the value of a simple budget or understand the relationship between how much a vehicle is used and the costs incurred.

There is thus an urgent need for all countries, regardless of their economic and financial development, to improve the financial literacy of their students. While we don’t yet have all the answers, the PISA 2015 Financial Literacy Assessment shines the spotlight on a number of important policy considerations.”

About the Survey

The Standard & Poor's Ratings Services Global Financial Literacy Survey is the world's largest, most comprehensive global measurement of financial literacy. It probes knowledge of four basic financial concepts: risk diversification, inflation, numeracy, and interest compounding.

The survey is based on interviews with more than 150,000 adults in over 140 countries. In 2014 McGraw Hill Financial worked with Gallup, Inc., the World Bank Development Research Group, and GFLEC on the S&P Global FinLit Survey.

Learn how GFLEC has promoted the S&P Global FinLit Survey around the world. Contact us here if you would like to have the S&P Global FinLit Survey presented at your event.

Improving Financial Awareness and Financial Literacy

COHECF-KENYA > Improving Financial Awareness and Financial Literacy

Too many people are on the verge of running out of money prematurely – long before their life expectancy. Many families are burdened with large amounts of debt, while many adults don't have nor realize why it's important to have a current financial, estate and gift plans to protect themselves and their families. We have a serious problem. This lack of financial awareness, along with the financial illiteracy epidemic places a HUGE growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits; as well as the ultimate safety net the government. This is not just a local epidemic it's an international one.

Earning and building personal wealth and managing personal finances today are more complicated and more important than ever. We're living longer and need to earn more, save more, invest more wisely to build financial resources to care for ourselves and families. Many of us are insecure with our work and the future of our homes. We see our money being drained by the high cost of food and water, healthcare, housing, education, taxes while dealing with the uncertainty of investments and our local and global economy. We worry about the future, or unfortunately in many cases, simply try not to think about it.

Most people are not taught the essential principle to smart personal financial management – the foundation to personal finance knowledge – at home or in school, thus they don't have the proper tools to address every day money decisions in an informed manner. This jeopardizes our citizen's ability to:-

- Be financially and physically healthy
- Become financially productive and to help grow our economy
- Realistically achieve and maintain their personal and financial dreams
- Enjoy a financially secure and debt free future information.

Significantly improving financial awareness and financial literacy can have a major positive impact on our:-

- Healthcare-Advancements in healthcare and technology are helping us to live longer, healthier, and higher quality lives, improving financial awareness and financial literacy can help us earn more and attract needed money and high quality education to take advantage of these healthcare advancements.
- Education- Improving financial awareness and financial literacy can help us increase our quality of life and attract the needed financial resources to advance our education system so that every man, woman, and child has the fundamental life skills, knowledge, and opportunity to live successful, happy and productive lives.
- Peace- Lasting peace will only exist when the people of a country are properly nourished, healthy, have low or no debt, and have the knowledge and life skills that can give them the opportunity to live and raise their families in safety while they earn and accumulate their fair share of wealth to live happy productive lives.
- Agriculture-Our important agricultural sector is under developed and largely inefficient, employing 75% of the workforce compared to less than 3% in the secure developed countries. Improving financial awareness and financial literacy will help us better manage our natural resources, better feed and provide for our growing population, while creating higher paying jobs and better grow our economy.
- Economic Empowerment-Key drivers of our economy revolves around every man, woman and child. COHECF-KENYA provides encouragement, education and support to enhance all Kenyans to live successful, happy and productive lives. We give particular emphasis to significantly improve financial awareness and financial literacy as this empowers people to make better informed everyday money decisions. This helps all Kenyans to obtain great jobs and build a better life for themselves and the families. We also encourage families, youth and women in Kenya to explore and initiate innovative businesses and micro-enterprises.

April to highlight financial education, preparedness

Daily Post Staff Apr 11, 2018 (0)

The Offices of Guam Homeland Security and Civil Defense encourage the island to take action to improve their financial futures by participating in National Financial Capability Month, throughout April.

Over the month of April, the Financial Literacy and Education Commission, along with the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the U.S. Department of Treasury will focus on financial preparedness.

Financial Preparedness is important at all levels of income, especially during the challenges of rebuilding lives after a disaster or other emergency, the agencies stated. During stressful disaster circumstances, having access to personal financial, insurance, medical, and other records is crucial for starting the recovery process quickly and efficiently.

Residents are encouraged to take the time now to collect and secure these critical records so in the event of an emergency, the documentation is readily available to start the recovery process without delay. Here are some simple tips to be financially prepared, the agencies stated:

Save 6% at Mobil gas stations with your First Hawaiian Bank credit card.

Click here or visit fhb.com/Mobile for more information.

- Gather financial and critical personal, household and medical information.

- Consider saving money in an emergency savings account that could be used in any crisis. Keep a small amount of cash at home in a safe place. It is important to have small bills on hand because ATM's and credit cards may not work during a disaster when needing to purchase necessary supplies, fuel or food.

- Obtain property homeowners or renters, health, and life insurance if you do not have them. Review existing policies for the amount and extent of coverage to ensure that what you have in place is what is required for you and your family for all possible hazards.

Financial Literacy Initiative - Pakistan (FLIP)

Financial Literacy Initiative in Pakistan In the aftermath of the financial crisis, financial literacy and education issues have acquired a momentum. Policy makers worldwide now increasingly acknowledge the importance of Financial Literacy both as a life skill and as a key component of financial and economic stability and development. Acknowledging the importance of better financial education and literacy for improving the ability of people to use financial services; to make effective decisions with respect to their present and future welfare; and in order to respond to growing concerns over adverse affects of low financial literacy levels; a comprehensive and high-level project on financial literacy has been developed to cover a wide spectrum of connected issues. The project is titled "Financial Literacy Initiative" and is being lunched under the aegis of South Asian Federation of Exchanges (SAFE).

Why Financial Literacy?

In a world of increasing financial risks, financial awareness issues and policies have become critically important for several reasons:

- Increasing transfer of risks to families which are more directly responsible for essential financial decisions for their future wellbeing.
- Enhanced individual responsibility in credit, health, pensions and insurance products.
- More families investing more income in financial assets.
- Uncertainties and sophistication of the financial landscape.
- More complex products and increased supply of financial products.
- Overload of financial disclosure.
- Very low level of financial literacy and capability of individuals in all countries.
- Individuals overestimate their financial knowledge and skills.
- Lack of confidence of individual in financial institutions.
- Vulnerable groups are particularly affected.

How to Improve Financial Literacy?

- Governments and all concerned stakeholders should promote unbiased and fair financial education.
- Financial Literacy programs should be focused, coordinated and developed with efficiency.
- Methodologies to assess existing financial education programs should be promoted.
- Financial literacy programs should start at school, for people to be educated as early as possible.
- Financial literacy should be part of the good governance of financial institutions, whose accountability and responsibility should be encouraged.
- Financial Literacy should be clearly distinguished from commercial advice.
- Codes of conduct for the staff of financial institutions should be developed.
- Financial institutions should be encouraged to check that clients read and understand information, especially when related to long-term commitments or financial services with potentially significant financial consequences: small print and abstruse documentation should be discouraged.
- Financial Literacy programs should focus particularly on important life-planning aspects, such as basic savings, debt, insurance or pensions.
- Programs and delivery strategies should be oriented towards financial capacity building, and where appropriate targeted on specific groups and made as personalized as possible.
- Future retirees should be made aware of the need to assess the finance adequacy of their current public and private pension schemes.
- National campaigns, specific Web sites, free information services and warning systems on high-risk issues for financial consumers (such as fraud) should be promoted.

Financial Literacy

"Financial Literacy is the process by which financial consumers/investors improve their understanding of financial products and concepts and, through information, instruction and/or objective advice, develop the skills and confidence to become aware of (financial) risks and opportunities, to make informed choices, to know where to go for help, and to take other effective actions to improve their financial well-being and protection."

Prakash Koirala Uses Piggy Banks To Empower Nepalese Students

April is Financial Literacy Month in the U.S. To honor the importance of personal finance and the power of making smart decisions about the money we earn, KWHS is featuring profiles in April of people from around the world who are champions of financial awareness and inclusion and money management.

First up, Prakash Koirala from FinLit Nepal

To understand Nepal, a landlocked country in South Asia located in the Himalayas, is to consider economic news out of the capital city Kathmandu this week. The Asian Development Bank projected that Nepal's economy will grow 4.9% in fiscal year 2018, compared with 6.9% in 2017. The forward-looking numbers in this Macro Economic Update Report about Nepal are based on a few key factors: the weather and how it has influenced farmers. The report notes, "There is a slight upward revision of the 4.7% growth forecast published in its September edition last year, reflecting better-than-expected harvest despite floods in mid-August." The report goes on to say, "With about one-third share of GDP [Gross Domestic Product], agriculture continues to provide livelihood to two-thirds of the country's population, but mostly at a subsistence level" — in other words, a minimal level that enables farming families to barely get by financially.

It is little wonder, therefore, that a significant percentage of people in Nepal do not have access to financial services. And those who do don't really know how to take advantage of them or to even begin to manage their money.

'It's All about Money'

It was a reality that Prakash Koirala had witnessed from a young age growing up in Dolakha, Nepal. "I was born in a very rich family. At the same time, the community where I was born, I saw the different kinds of people, as well," notes Koirala, who is 26 and now lives in Kathmandu. "They were living in extreme poverty. They were struggling to collect their lunch or dinner. That really motivated me to do something in the field of finance or economics."

Koirala set out to become an economist, but quickly identified a much more hands-on way to impact the lives of his neighbors. "I realized it's all about money. Money drives people into misery and into happiness," says Koirala, who began to promote financial literacy and inclusion in 2011 when he was just a teenager. He later spent extended time in rural parts of Nepal to understand the demands. "Educating people, especially children and women, about how they can use their money was a better way" to make a difference.

Through his company FinLit Nepal, Koirala has developed a financial literacy curriculum that is based in the Nepalese context. He believes strongly in teaching basic financial skills that will empower students and especially women to save their money and ultimately become a part of the country's financial system. He and his small team of staff and volunteers work with school groups to provide month-long lessons in financial literacy. Koirala's "school bank" concept starts with a piggy bank (that isn't always shaped like a pig). "I ask them to save money in this piggy bank for one month," he says. "When it fills up, we break it open and they have 3,000 to 4,000 Nepalese Rupees [about $38 U.S. dollars]. I ask them to go to the nearest financial institution and to open a bank account and save that money in the bank."

As an extension of his financial training, Koirala also works with women in rural areas who take out microloans – a few hundred U.S. dollars – to run very small farming cooperatives or sewing businesses. He teaches them to keep financial diaries of their income and expenses, as well as how to use their loans appropriately and to draw up business plans so they can ultimately have access to even bigger loans. He brings these women together to share their stories of financial success and access and to mentor other women.

His vision is simple: Financial literacy empowers people. "Money is all about freedom," suggests Koirala, who was a 2015 Child & Youth Finance International youth financial education awareness winner and has also won more recent honors from the British Parliament and the government of Nepal. "The world is moving to digital currency, but in rural Nepal they don't know how to have a bank account or manage money. We need to teach our peer and our community so everybody can understand the basic components related to financial literacy."

Paying It Forward

Koirala's latest creation is a comic book that teaches basic financial concepts, everything from piggy bank savings to understanding interest rates on loans. As a council member at the U.S. Embassy Youth Council in Nepal, he is also determined to help the country implement an effective national strategy around financial literacy. "In the absence of baseline data about the financial literacy level of people in different demographic and socioeconomic characteristics, it is hardly possible to formulate and implement efficient and effective financial literacy policy and strategy," notes Koirala. "I would recommend to government that, before designing and implementing national strategies, to measure the level of financial literacy in the context of a particular district. I would also advise them to create an automated school deposit and withdrawal management information system (e-banking) to promote savings amongst school students."

Students hold a special significance for Koirala because of their passion to take what they learn in his classes back to their families. "I taught basic money management to a girl named Ramila," recalls Koirala, who does outreach to students age 12-18, and college-age students as well. "She passed on what she learned to her siblings and her mother. Now all the family members have bank accounts. She has decided not to get married at a young age and to teach others what she has learned and is training others to become teachers. If we want to make impact on society in the next 10 years, we need to focus on the children."

Consumer and financial literacy

The Department of Education and Training recognises the need for Queensland students to be confident and informed financially literate consumers and investors. Consumer and financial literacy is a cross-curricular area of learning and includes the teaching of concepts relating to consumerism as well as financial matters.

The rationale for consumer and financial literacy in education is identified in the National Consumer and Financial Literacy Framework. The framework is designed to guide states and territories in the development of curriculum and support materials. It describes essential consumer and financial capabilities that will support lifelong learning and provides guidance on how consumer and financial education may be structured to support a progression of learning from Foundation (Prep) to Year 10. There are three interrelated dimensions of learning that underpin consumer and financial education: Knowledge and understanding; Competence; and Responsibility and enterprise.

Teaching consumer and financial literacy

MoneySmart Teaching

The MoneySmart Teaching program aims to engage students in a fun way with real life money experiences and supports teachers, both professionally and personally, in building their capacity and confidence to deliver consumer and financial literacy education in their classroom and across the whole school.

The program uses consumer and financial literacy as a context for teaching and learning in mathematics, English and science, with all of the units of work aligned to the Australian Curriculum.

Buy Smart competition

The annual Buy Smart competition is a hands-on learning activity to help young people in Years 4-12 learn about consumer and financial literacy issues. Students must develop a creative project to explain a chosen consumer issue and give advice to a target audience.

Buy Smart is run by the Office of Fair Trading and has been mapped to the Australian Curriculum, making it easy for entries to be applied as a classroom activity, assessment piece or extension exercise. The Teachers' kit has more information about prize money, implementation, resources and incursion opportunities.

Cha-Ching – the first global financial education programme

Prudential has a longstanding commitment to financial literacy and Cha-Ching is our flagship global financial education platform aimed at primary-school children. Developed in Asia with Cartoon Network and Dr. Alice Wilder, an award-winning children's education specialist, the programme helps children learn the fundamental money management concepts of earn, save, spend and donate. Now in its seventh year, the online financial literacy programme, which seeks to instil money-smart skills in children, has expanded from its origins in Asia to each of the four continents where the Group does business. In each of the markets where it has been launched it has been extremely positively received, with strong feedback from parents, teachers, children and political stakeholders.

Following Cha-Ching's introduction to the UK in 2016, research conducted on behalf of Prudential shows that nearly one in four primary school children<sup>1</sup> (23 per cent) have used their parents' card to make purchases and one in five<sup>2</sup> (18 per cent) know their parents' credit or debit card PINs. The research confirms that parents and teachers worry that the cashless society is making it harder for children to understand money.

Cha-Ching (www.cha-chingeducation.co.uk) has now been developed into an online educational resource for use by teachers and parents of primary school children in England and Wales, in partnership with Young Money (formerly pfeg and part of Junior Achievement Worldwide), a charity which supports all educators in developing the financial capability of the young people they work with. The Quality Marked teaching resource is linked to the Personal Finance Education Group's Financial Education Framework and has guidance for teachers on how most effectively to integrate activities into their teaching as well as activities for home-learning. Since launch in late 2016, the resource has been downloaded 17,412 times in 649 schools across the UK.

Genworth Canada looks to promote financial literacy amongst young Canadians

TORONTO, May 23, 2018 /CNW/ - Genworth Canada is pleased to announce a sponsorship commitment of $100,000 over the next three years to The University of Waterloo School of Accounting and Finance (SAF) to support the growth and awareness of the University of Waterloo Financial Literacy Competition.

The Financial Literacy Competition (FLC) developed in collaboration with Business Studies teachers within the Waterloo Region, is offered to Grade 9 and 10 students. The FLC is an exciting opportunity for secondary school teachers to engage their students to test and challenge their knowledge in personal finance, accounting and wealth management, as well as providing a solid literacy foundation to prepare them for the future.

"Basic financial skills are a critical building block in every person's education. Integrating financial skills development throughout the curriculum ensures that students will have the knowledge to make effective decisions throughout their lives," said James Barnett, SAF Interim Director.

The Genworth Canada sponsorship will help support the extension of the FLC across Canada over the next three years in an effort to bring better understanding and awareness of the importance of financial literacy to young adults. It will also reward and recognize the top scoring students who successfully completed the FLC and assist them with financial support towards post-secondary education.

"Genworth is committed to promoting financial literacy amongst young Canadians. As a company that supports the health of the housing market, education is key to responsible homeownership. We need to ensure our younger generation is equipped with the knowledge to help them become financially stable into adulthood. The Financial Literacy Competition is a great catalyst to spread the information in an interesting and interactive way," said Stuart Levings, President and CEO of Genworth Canada.

Two competitions are planned for this year, with the first contest launching on May 30, 2018 and the second to be scheduled later in the year. For more details on how to participate, please visit Financial Literacy in the Classroom.

About The Financial Awareness Foundation

The Financial Awareness Foundation
Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy™
www.TheFinancialAwarenessFoundation.org

The Financial Awareness Foundation, is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization; our mission is to significantly help solve a major social problem dealing with the lack of financial awareness and financial literacy.

The Financial Awareness Foundation is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization; our mission is to significantly help solve a major social problem dealing with the lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy.

The Foundation serves as a nonpolitical “financial awareness advocate” for the general public, the financial service and nonprofits professionals and their organizations, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers.

Mission: Our mission is to significantly help solve a major social problem dealing with the lack of financial awareness and financial literacy.

We believe that teaching financial awareness, financial literacy and the essential principles to smart personal financial management are very important as this gives people the tools of empowerment to:

- Make better informed and productive everyday money decisions
- Save time and money with their financial advisors and service providers
- Have the best opportunities to reach and maintain their personal / family financial dreams
- Enjoy a financially secure debt free future
- Advance their philanthropy and legacy plans.

With so many people on the verge of running out of money before their life expectancy and over half your friends and neighbors not having an up-to-date estate plans to protect themselves and their families we have a serious problem. This lack of financial awareness and financial literacy places a huge amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits; as well as the government. This is not just a domestic challenge it is an international one. We feel the solution to these financial challenges revolves around better financial education.

Purpose: The Foundation serves to benefit you by significantly improving financial awareness and financial literacy.

Vision: The Foundation envisions a world where every person has access to the right financial advice and the skills and tools to manage their finances so they can achieve and maintain their financial stability, security, and freedom throughout their lives, while advancing their personal philanthropy. We see this happening by significantly improving both the public's financial awareness and their financial literacy, while developing & assembling educational content to assist financial service and nonprofit professionals in providing high-quality, cost-effective services to the general public.

Core Values:

1. Public Service – Serve as a nonpolitical “financial awareness advocate” to the general public providing them with the essentials principles of smart personal financial management so they can make better every day financial decisions throughout their lives.
2. Knowledge – Encourage and support financial education to improve financial awareness and financial literacy.
3. Collaboration – Recognize, promote, and unite organizations that are championing improving financial awareness and financial literacy with other organizations, nonprofits, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers, and individuals.
4. Diversity – Promote cultural diversity within the financial services professions to better serve a diversified public.
5. Ethics – Encourage ethical behavior within financial service professions, nonprofits, and the business world.

Focus: The Financial Awareness Foundation has two main focal points that revolve around:

1. Taking an active leadership role to recognize organizations and their management that are championing improving financial awareness and financial literacy. We are then uniting them with other associations, organizations, nonprofits, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers to actively focus their vast community resources into The Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement & Campaigns - a growing concentrated personal finance content media blitz campaign every six months through the strategic venues of

- National Financial Literacy Month (April)
<http://www.thefinancialawarenessfoundation.org/pdf/About-NationalFinancialLiteracyMonth.pdf>
- National Estate Planning Awareness Week (3rd week in October) (We worked with Congressman Thompson's Office during 2007 and 2008 to help create this proclamation that was signed by 50 bi-partisan Congresswomen and Congressmen, and have helped to advance and promote it since.)
<http://www.thefinancialawarenessfoundation.org/pdf/About-NationalEstatePlanningAwarenessWeek.pdf>

The strategy here is to touch the majority of the general public and financial service and nonprofit professionals at least twice a year through these strategic venues with a friendly educational and entertaining (edutain) reminder to get and keep your financial, estate, and plans in order.

We understand that this is a massive undertaking. As we move into the 9th year of the Improving Financial Awareness & Financial Literacy Movement it's being accomplished through thought leading financial service and nonprofit organizations and their professionals, educational institutions, municipalities, and employers.

2. The Foundation also delivers and develops exceptional educational content and programs for the general public and for financial service and nonprofit professionals, and educational institutions that support the public's financial and estate planning and charitable planning needs.

With so many people on the path to or verge of running out of money before their life expectancy, many families burdened with large amounts of student loans and other forms of debt, and more than half of the adults (120 million - US) not having up-to-date estate and financial plans to protect themselves and their families, we have a serious problem. This lack of financial awareness and financial illiteracy epidemic places a HUGE growing amount of pressure on families and friends, employers, nonprofits; as well as the ultimate safety net – the state and federal government. This is not just a US epidemic it's an international one.

We are hard at work to become the 'foundation of choice' for improving financial awareness and financial literacy.

Organizations are not required to financially support The Financial Awareness Foundation in any way. They do not pay any marketing or membership fee, or make a contribution in order to participate in this important improving financial awareness and financial literacy movement, campaigns and programs. And we distribute high quality materials at 'NO Cost'. But as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit financial support and contributions are always welcomed and very much appreciated.
